VOL. 55. NO. 45. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 5, 1902. PRICE FIVE CENTS

FRANCIS BINNION, AGED 102, IS A MOST WONDERFUL CENTENARIAN

He Is Strong, Both Physically and Mentally and Gets About and Works With More Ease Than Most Men of Three Score and Ten.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

VERNON, Ill., Oct. 4.—Francis Binnon of this village, who, 22 years ago, became a hotel keeper at the age of 80, divides his life into two parts—the 54 years prior to the building of the Illinois Central Railroad through Marion County and the 48 years since.

To him the advent of the locomotive marks the dividing line between old fashioned and new-fashioned ways. He considers the discovery of the power of steam and the construction of the first railroads the most stupenduous achievement of the 102 years which constitute his life.

All great mechanical inventions, he dclares, are but a continuation of the achievement and are due to the incentive furnished by the locomotive builder.

It is his firm belief that the construction of agricultural machinery—with which he is thoroughly familiar—and other machinery with which he is not familiar, is due to the effort on the part of the inventors to keep the rest of the world's industries in line with the advancement in transportation methods that came with the railroads. The steam reaper, the steam thresher, the steam shovel and even the electric motor, he can see, trace their existence back to the impetus given mechanical construction by the building of the first locomotive.

Mr. Binnion was born with the nineteenth century—Aug. 9. 1800, to be exact. He was consequently 54 years old when he saw his first locomotive. When it was announced that a railroad was to be built through central Illinois, Mr. Binnion didn't believe it.

"I didn't think such a thing was possible," he told me. "I couldn't see how they were going to climb the big hills, get over the streams and traverse the flats in time of high water. Since I have learned and have became convinced that railroad buliding anywhere is a possiblity. I have ceased to be surprised at anything. Electric cars, compressed air cars and even air ships cannot create the feeling in me that I had the day I saw my first locomotive.

WORLD GOING BACKWARD.

But in spite of the advancement in mechanical invention during the last half century Mr. Binnion is of the opinion that the world is not advancing. In many ways, he declares, it is going backward.

"Time was," says Mr. Binnion, "when people lived for something besides the almighty dollar. They used to help each other, and, when disagreements arose between two persons in a community, the entire community turned out and arbitrated and settled the difficulty. Courts of law were unknown in the early settlements and differences were always adjusted amicably.

"In my 102 years I never have sued a man. I have figured it out to my own satisfaction that money collected through a lawsuit generally costs just a little more to collect than the amount of the debt."

Francis Binnion is a wonderful centenarian, both mentally and physiclally. There isn't the slightest trace of what we are pleased to term senility. He is vigorous in mind and body. In appearance he would pass for somewhere between 70 and 80 years old. His cheeks are rosy, though somewhat wrinkled and the lines of his face are apparently as much due to thought as to old age.

Up to nine years ago Mr. Binnion was a great reader of religious literature, but at that time he lost the use of his eyes as far as reading is concerned. While he can see well enough to perform all the duties of running a hotel in a small village—which consists in welcoming guests, caring for three horses and looking after things generally—he has been unable to find a pair of spectacles which would enable him to read.

"It is a great deprivation," he said to me.

"I used to read a great deal, especially Talmage's sermons."

HE IS NEVER DULL.

But Mr. Binnion is never dull. He has plenty to do to keep him busy, and he does it, in spite of the fact that his children to the number of six, all of whom live in and about Vernon, would be glad if he would not keep himself so busy. His oldest child, a daughter, is 76, and looks as old as her father. The youngest, who is also a daughter, and unmarried, helps him keep the hotel. She is 54, but she doesn't look a day over 40.

"Father will insist on doing just as he has done all his life," she said to me at supper tonight, "even though it does tire him. The other day the limb of one of the maples was bent down, and he thought it ought to be cut off. Nothing would do but he must get a saw and cut it off; and he did."

I reached the hotel today after the dinner hour. Mr. Binnion met me at the door and ordered dinner. He is a most hospitable host. Born in Virginia and raised on the border between Tennessee and Kentucky, he couldn't help being so. To make me feel at home he sat down to the table with me and saw that I wanted for nothing.

"I'm a little tired," he said. "I've just finished putting some blocks under my smoke house, and bending over makes me a little stiff."

After dinner I went out and inspected his work. By the aid of two jackscrews, which he handled alone, he had raised one corner of a good-sized shed, sawed out two good, big blocks and made a new foundation. It was a job that many a man in middle life wouldn't have undertaken alone.

He inquired about St. Louis and the Post-Dispatch.

"The first time I was in St. Louis," he said, "it wasn't much larger than Vernon. That was 77 years ago. I was out West on a prospecting tour. I crossed the river on a ferry run by a Frenchman named Wiggins. He was a short, chunky man. I liked him because he held my horse, which became frightened, and tried to jump into the river."

EVENTS IN THE LIFE OF FRANCIS BINNION.

Born near Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 9, 1800.
Married in 1821 at Walton, Tenn.
Became a widower in 1858.
Has six children, the oldest 76, the youngest 54.
Has 23 grandchildren.
Has 35 great-grandchildren
Has one great-great grandchild.
In September, 1902, rode 34 miles one day to hear W. J. Bryan speak.
Last summer walked seven miles to get a hair cut.
First visited St. Louis in 1825.
Never used tobacco or whisky.
Has been ill and near to death several times, and twice met with accidents which physicians thought would prove fatal.
His father lived to be 104, and his grandfather was killed by an accident at the age of 110.

A FACE UPON WHICH 102 YEARS HAVE LEFT THEIR MARKS

"We see Time's furrows on another's brow.
How few themselves in that just mirror see."
---YOUNG'S NIGHT THOUGHTS.

He Is a Deep Thinker and Theoretically Divides His Life Into Two Parts --That Before the Coming of Railroads and That During the Years Since.

HAS HAD MUCH ILLNESS.

While Mr. Binnion is hale and hearty at present he has suffered more than the usual amount of illness and mishaps. He was just about to enlist for the Mexican war when he was stricken with "milk poison," which came near proving fatal. Some 12 or 15 years later he had a serious attack of typhoid fever. He was once kicked by a horse, and injured so badly that the doctor said he would die. Mr. Binnion declares he didn't believe it, and how many—he fell off of and undee's lived so long he can't remember just so got well. Some years later—hr, a wagon load of wood, and was badly crushed. He has had four bad attacks of grip, the last one nine years ago, which left him nearly blind and quite deaf.

Mr. Binnion neither smokes nor drinks, although he declares that tobacco was largely responsible for his robustness as a boy. Down in Virginia, near Lynchburg, when he was a boy, everyone, at the beginning of the last century, raised tobacco and made whisky. The mother, who was the family physician, dosed the children with a decoction of whisky and herbs for every little ailment. That's why Mr. Binnion never liked whisky. As for tobacco, he tried it once. His first chew was cut from home-cured twist. He became excited and swallowed it.

He was a delicate boy, with liver trouble. When he came to, after a week's illness, his liver was thoroughly active, and he became robust from that time on.

LONG-LIVED FAMILY.

However, Mr. Binnion comes of a long-lived family. His grandfather, who fought in the Revolution, lived to be 110. Then he went out one slippery day, against the advice of his family, fell down and broke his back. He appeared good for many more years. Mr Binnion's father, who fought in the war of 1812, died at the age of 104. But none of Mr. Binnion's brothers or sisters—there were three of the former and two of the latter—lived to be over 80. One died when she was but 7.

While Mr. Binnion has been a Boniface for over 20 years and was a farmer for 50 years before that, he's a carpenter and worked several years when a young man. When he came to Marion County in 1842 he made coffins for any who called upon him.

"And when I'd go to the house and see how sad and sorrowful the whole family looked,' he said, "I didn't have the heart to ask for pay. One of my boys figured out the other day that I might have had over $2000 more if I'd got pay for those coffins. But," a smile spread over his face, "I'm getting my pay now, thinking how I didn't ask for pay, and I'll get it over there."

And he pointed upward.

GLAD HE'S MOST HOME.

"I know I will. I feel as though I was flying. I feel so good. No, I'm satisfied about the coffins.

Mr. Binnion is a member of the Southern Methodist Church, and has been since 1861. His wife died in 1858, and he has never remarried. He says he expects to see her soon.

Although born and raised in the South, and a life-long Democrat, Mr. Binnion was a strong Union man during the war of the secession, and three of his sons served in the Union army. The eldest was killed.

The centenarian considers the rebellion the greatest event in the world during the 102 years in which he has lived. He declares the Union had to be, or the history of the world would have been changed.

"Look at the United States today," he said to me, and his voice was full of enthusiasm "It's the greatest nation on earth. It controls the affairs of this continent, and has much to do with the affairs of the others. What would have happened if the Union had been destroyed? There would have been no great United States, and who knows what nation might now be governing us."

HE LIKES MR. BRYAN.

Mr. Binnion is a great admirer of William J. Bryan, because he considers him a smart man and because he has known him since he was a boy. A couple of weeks ago there was an old settlers' reunion over at Salem, and Bryan spoke. Mr. Binnion got up before daylight, harnessed his horse and drove 17 miles over to hear the speech. He was given a seat of honor on the platform. During the speaking the roof of the stand gave way and fell upon those seated under it. One or two were quite seriously bruised, but, although in the midst of the wreck, Mr. Binnion escaped uninjured, and drove the 17 miles home, arriving just at dark.

A 34-mile drive in one day is considered quite a drive for a man a good deal less than 102 years old.

There is no doubt as to Mr. Binnion's age. The family records are well kept. There are living today of Mr. Binnion's descendants 6 children, 23 grandchildren, 35 great-grand children and one great-great-grandchild.

Having had long-lived ancestors it had been the one desire of Mr. Binnion's life to live to be 100 years old and when that birthday arrived a great gathering of his family and friends was held. They had a jolly time and presented him with a handsome gold medal which he wears continually. In the summer he pins it on to one of his suspenders. He goes in his shirt sleeves just as much as he can.

"I'm rough and ready," he said, "and I stay out of doors as much as possible. I find I'm better for it."

HAS A WILL OF HIS OWN.

While the old man has the mildest of blue eyes, the pleasantest of smiles and his hair is as white as snow, his daughter says he is possessed of the same stubbornness that caused his grandfather to go out against the advice of his family and get killed. Some months ago he took it into his head that he didn't like the way the barber at Vernon cut his hair. The next day he wanted it cut he walked three and one-half miles to Patoka to find a barber to suit him.

Mr. Binnion is known to every man in the county. Everyone calls him Uncle Frank, and the village of Vernon is as proud of his age as other towns are of citizens who have won distinction in science, war or politics. They cannot see why, if he takes care of himself, he should not live to be as as old as his father or grandfather.

Since coming to Marion County Mr. Binnion has always lived within four miles of the spot where he now resides.

ROMANCE MAKES AN HEIRESS

Father Was a Runaway Son and the Daughter Is Now Seeking a Fortune.

FLINT, Mich., Oct. 4.—Mrs. Yibbie F. Moore, a native of Genesee County, and until yesterday a resident of this city, is possibly heiress to $150,000.

Mrs. Moore is the daughter of Thomas Webb, a former resident of Clayton township, who was disowned by his parents for marrying in opposition to their wishes. Webb's real name was Morwell, and his native state was New York. When his parents cast him off he came west and adopted the name of Webb, by which he was known here. He was married under the name of Webb, and to share in a large estate left by the grandfather it is necessary for Mrs. Moore to establish the fact that the son went under an assumed name.

The situation is further complicated by an indiscretion committed by the younger Merwell, alias Webb, which caused his separation from his wife and daughter, and sent the latter to the Coldwater School as a charge of the state.

It is expected to establish the fact that Webb was really the descendant of the deceased Merwell by the testimony of a brother of the wife, residing in Texas, who was cognizant of all the facts. Mrs. Moore's attorneys are now directing their efforts to get the testimony of the uncle. ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 4.—Gorodzeff, a well-known Russian historian, has opened 107 tumuli (mounds) scattered over the Kharkoff province and discovered 299 prehistoric graves. Of these 264 belong to the bronze period and 10 to a period about B. C. 500.

An immense variety of interesting objects in bronze has been found—knives, various shaped vessels of bronze and clay and arrow heads. The skulls found in some of the Scythian graves show traces that after death they were all painted scarlet. Around several heads were rosaries of amber beads. Gorodzeff aserts that the average height of these long dead warriors must have been at least seven feet.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—All Paris is mourning the death of its great python, which was a case of slow starvation.

Since 1900 visitors to the Jardin des Plantes have been entertained by gazing on the huge snake brought from Japan, measuring 19 feet in length and of great thickness. Its skin was of a marvelous beauty, being covered with scales that gave out yellow, green and blue flashes during its numberless undulating movements.

Its daily food was live rabbits, tender little kids and the choicest birds. But very shortly after its arrival it refused nourishment, and for two years it has eaten nothing, losing much of its marvelous embonpoint. The other day it succumbed far from the land of the cherry blossoms.

LEIPSIC, Oct. 4.—Half the people of Leipsic are "up in arms" over a statue of Beethoven which the municipality bought lately to place in one of the public squares.

The sculptor strove to make it original and too classic. He succeeded. It represents the great musician naked to the waist, with a sort of drapery across his knees that does not conceal the lower part of his legs. He is represented as Jupiter ruling the world. On the chair on which he is seated are carved the heads of women with a blue background. On the back of the chair is a scene of the Garden of Eden, with Adam and Eve in its midst. PARIS, Oct. 4.—Magnificence reached its climax at the recent eucharistic congress at Nuncio, when the clergy of all nationalities marched through the streets in imposing splendor.

The great procession was organized by the cathedral of St. Aubin. Every house in the city, with the exception of 27, bristled with decorations. Headed by the papal nuncio, the archbishops of San Francisco, Sebasta, Parios, Arras, Angers, etc., representing nearly all the countries of the civilized globe, walked with a following of 30,000 people, including senators and deputies, singing canticles.

The event created a great sir, owing to the numbers of French clergy in the celebration.

THE DOG OBJECTED TO PLAYING BABY

PARIS, Oct. 4.—All Paris is laughing at the defeat of the ever-successful and inventive Yankee, after a display of genius which merited a better fate.

Some Americans, who had been traveling on the continent with their dog, wished to visit England. The mother country is inhospitable to all dogs transplanted to her shores. This the Americans likewise knew, but they thought to outwit the maternal eye for once.

Hence they clothed their precious bow-wow in the toggery of a young baby, and hired a nurse to lug him tenderly about. All went well until they got to the custom house at Calais. Here the dog suddenly made a squirming effort to escape from his infantile garb, and thrust a shaggy paw into the face of the customs officer, proclaiming "to what manner he was born."

Naturally, there was a trying scene, but the hearts of the officials were stony, and the nurse and dog stayed in France, while the Americans continued their journey.

Rheumatism CURED WITHOUT MEDICINE.

The Feet Found to Be Channels Through Which Pain Is Relieved. Foot Drafts to Anybody ON APPROVAL.

Soaking the feet in hot mustard water has always been a popular home method of treating colds, but most people do not know why they do it. The reason is this: The feet not only contain the largest pores in the body, but they are nervous and circulatory centers as well. It has now been discovered that rheumatism can be absolutely and permanently cured through the feet.

Magic Foot Drafts, worn as shown in the illustration, draw out and absorb the rheumatic poisons from the blood, no matter in what member the pain is located, and at the same time exercise a gentle stimulus that is extremely beneficial to the entire system. These Drafts are already in use in every quarter of the globe. The Drafts are sent ON APPROVAL to anybody. If you have rheumatism send for a pair. If you are satisfied with the help and comfort they give you then send us One Dollar. If not don't send a cent. Write today to the Magic Foot Draft Co., AH 5, Oliver Bldg., Jackson, Mich.

DEAFNESS CURED

190 page book FREE tells all about it.

Since the discovery of a Louisville man it is no longer necessary for any deaf person to carry a trumpet, a tube, or any such old-fashioned device, for it is now possible for anyone to hear perfectly by a simple invention that fits in the ear and cannot be detected. The honor belongs to Mr. George H. Wilson of Louisville, who was himself deaf, and now hears as well as anyone. He calls it Wilson's Common-Sense Ear Drum, is built on the strictest scientific principles, containing no metal of any kind, and is entirely new in every respect.

It is so small that no one can see it, but nevertheless it collects all sound waves and diverts them against the drum head, causing you to hear perfectly. It will do this even when the natural ear drums are partially or entirely destroyed, perforated, scarred, relaxed or thickened. It fits any ear from childhood to old age, and aside from the fact that it does not show is never causes the hearer irritation, and can be used with comfort day or night.

It will cure deafness in any person, no matter how acquired, whether from catarrh, scarlet fever, typhoid or brain fever, measles, whooping cough, gathering in the ear, shocks from artillery, or through accidents. It not only cures but stays the progress of deafness and all roaring and buzzing noises. It does this in a simple, sure and scientific way. The effect is immediate.

Let every person who needs this at once send to the company for its 190-page book, which you can have free. It describes and illustrates Wilson's Common-Sense Ear Drums, and contains many bona-fide letters from numerous users in the United States, Canada, Mexico, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, India. These letters are from people in every station of life—clergymen, physicians, lawyers, merchants, society ladies, etc.—and tell the truth about the benefits to be derived from the use of this wonderful little device. You will find among them the names of [illegible] in your own town or state, and you are at liberty to write to any of them you wish and secure [illegible] opinion as to the merits of the only [illegible]

HAS LIVED WITH LEPERS 20 YEARS

Dr. M. B. Carleton Has an Asylum in India.

CHILDREN BORN BESIDE LEPERS

HE LAUGHS AT IDEA OF CONTAGION TO HEALTHY PERSON.

Still Pursuing Investigations to Discover the Means by Which the Much-Dreaded Disease Propagates Itself.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Dr. M. B. Carleton of Sabattin, near Amballa City, India, one of the most widely known experts in the treatment of leprosy in the Indian Empire, is the guest of Frank W. Foote, accompanied by Mrs. Carleton and two children.

Dr. Carleton was born in India, two years before the Sepoy mutiny, his parents having gone to that country as missionaries from Barrie, Vt., in 1854. When a young man he was sent to the United States, where he studied medicine. He returned to India in 1881, and took up work among the lepers of India. He now has an asylum containing 100 lepers at Sabattin. In answer to questions Dr. Carleton said:

"The last census shows that there are about 400,000 lepers in India. In the district where I live there are about 40 to each 1000 inhabitants. In some other districts the proportion is much smaller.

"I now have about 100 patients, men and women, and a few children, in my compound. We have three Europeans now, one having died since I have been in America. He was a colleague of Mr. Foote while he was in India 10 years ago. He was at the asylum about four years."

"What is the average life of lepers after they contract the disease?"

Average Life of the Leper.

"It differs with the kind of leprosy, of which there are two varieties. In one variety the disease attacks the ams and legs. The hands and arms, and also the feet and portions of the legs, have absolutely no feeling. Sufferers from this kind often live from 30 to 40 years. The other variety attacks the lungs. In these cases the lease of life is not usually over 10 years."

"What is the cause of leprosy?"

"We do not know; we have been seeking the cause. We have found the germ, but as yet have not been able to cultivate it. Neither have we found a germicide. The natives all go barefoot, and it is sometimes thought that the disease is contracted in the same manner as the bubonic plague, through the soles of the feet. Of this I have great doubt as I have had charge of lepers for 20 years, have handled them and am operating all the time when I am at home, removing pieces of bone and performing other necessary operations. To be sure, of late years since I have had a family, I have used some precautions, such as washing my hands with disinfectants after operations, but I never have had the slightest symptoms. For this and other reasons I do not think the germ enters the system through the skin. It seems to attack only people who are inclined to tuberculosis, but we have been unable, during long years of investigation, to ascertain the cause."

"Is your family with you at this leper settlement?" was asked.

"Certainly. Three of my children were born in the compound, not 300 feet from the leper house, and none of my family has ever had the slightest symptom of the disease, nor do I expect that either they or myself will ever have."

"Then this idea of a leper nurse bidding goodby to the world is erroneous?"

Leper Nurses Needn't Bid Goodby to World.

"That is simple nonsense. Why, at Marblehead the other day a man told me that he had been requested to ask me whether it was quite safe for people to shake hands with me, in view of the fact that I have constant charge of an asylum of lepers.

A healthy person, not inclined to tuberculosis, will not contract the disease, even if in contact with it, as I am when at home. In fact, I am firmly convinced that if a healthy person should actually be inoculated with the germ of leprosy—which germ, as I say, we have found and have under observation—that person would not acquire the disease. During my long series of experiments, in the effort to find a germicide, I have frequently inoculated guinea pigs, rabbits and other animals. Not only do they not acquire the disease or any of its symptoms, but when an examination of the blood is made a few days later it is found that the white corpuscles of the blood have destroyed the germs. I am handling the germs constantly in my experiments.

"I am 46 years old and I consider that I have 30 years of life left, according to the mortality tables of the actuaries. To be sure, we have the cholera and the bubonic plague there, and we have the cobra and the kerite in and around our compound, but, speaking with reference to danger from leprosy, I think my chances are for 30 years more of life, health and work."

Dr. Carleton is in the prime of life, and is the picture of health and robust manhood. He has the characteristic dark color of all white people who have lived long in India.

TURTLE FARMING PROFITABLE.

Texas Man Collects and Fattens Them for Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 4.—Texas has a turtle farm. It is on the river near Orange and is conducted by F. Pavell, who has amassed a snug little fortune.

In his warehouse he has 900 alligator hides, which he has purchased in the last thirty days. His average purchase of green skins is 1000 a month. He ships them to New York and other eastern markets.

Pavell devotes most of his time to the turtle business, and many men and boys constantly drag the shallow waters of Lake Sabine for turtles. They often catch as much as 1000 pounds in a single drag.

These turtles are placed in pens and fed for a certain length of time, after which the largest ones are packed in barrels and shipped to New Orleans, where they command good prices.

Favell's son, August, is a member of the Louisiana legislature.

THIS MAN A VAGRANT, SAYS HE CAN AND DOES EARN $100 A WEEK

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Though he is serving a month's sentence on Deer Island for vagrancy, Wesley B. Clark says he can earn $100 a week and his case is one of the most puzzling that has come before the courts here.

Clark's life reads like a novel, and if what he says is true he will soon be a rich man. He said in court that he had a life insurance to the amount of $31,000 which with interest will amount to $40,000, maturing in about one year.

Clark says that he has paid about $200 a month for insurance and that for the last year he made on an average $100 a week. He says that in 3 months his policy will be paid up and that he is a book agent for a firm in Philadelphia.

Clark was found wandering about South Boston and was taken as a suspicious person. He was soon released and was again seen about the district and arrested as a vagrant His shoes were almost gone and his general appearance was very bad. He told stories to the police about large amounts of money, but could show none on his person.

Clark told Judge Fallon that he had traveled all over the United States and that he has sold hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of books to prominent people.

Judge Fallon said that it was not a crime to be a vagrant and that the present condition of the defendant was a misfortune. He said he would send Clark to Deer Island for one month in order that he could be cleaned up and be able to make a fresh start in life.

TWO TRAINMEN KILLED.

Collision Between Express and Freight in Pennsylvania.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 4.—Northbound Northern Central railroad passenger train No. 9, known as the "Erie Express," while running at a high rate of speed crashed into the rear end of a freight train near Milton, Pa., this morning. Passenger Engineer Wheeland of Harrisburg and Freight Conductor Stringer were killed. Fireman Shaffer of the passenger train was seriously hurt. None of the passengers, it is reported. were injured.

BALLOON WILL TRY TO CROSS THE SEA

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Henry de la Vaulx, the aeronaut, will make a second ateempt to cross the Mediterranean in a balloon. After 16 hours of aerial navigation on his first trial, last October, he was received on board the cruiser Du Chayla in sight of Herpignon. This year he starts under much more favorable conditions.

He has built at Palaxas-les-Flots, near Montpelier, a gigantic aerodrome, under the name of the Mediterranean II, and fitted it with 3400 cubic meters of dimension. This operation lasted five days. He counts on the first propitious wind for the ascent.

M. de la Vaulx hopes by proceeding progressively with a rational and scientific method to prove that he can venture on a voyage with safety.

The Epee has been designated by the minister of marine to accompany the Mediterranean II.

WORKING GIRL'S CONSERVATORY

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Working girls of Paris are in a fever of enthusiasm. The Mimi Pinson conservatory is regularly open and the pleasures of learning music and dancing are available for 300 of them.

Gustav Charpentier, the composer of the now famous opera "Louise," is responsible for the new undertaking. He has already organized a scheme known as that of the "Mimi Pinson work" to enable poor young working girls to go to the theater from time to time. The girls are organized in three divisions in order that each girl may have a lesson once a week. The music chosen is that of Gluck, Massenet, Charpentier and other masters. As for the dance, M. Charpentier says he has no intention of "forming" ballet dancers, but he wishes to carry the Greek idea with reference to the dance—that is, to teach to each grace, suppleness and an elegant carriage; in short, the harmony of gesture.

STEAMBOATS UST STOP SMOKING UP

Steamboats have now fallen under the ban of St. Louis' strenuous smoke suppressor.

Mr. Jones has notified the owners of all the boats that make this port to cut them loose from their local moorings or abide by the provisions of the anti-smoke law.

He has found that they emit dense volumes of smoke, just like steam engines, and his official photographer, W. C. Wood, had little difficulty in getting a negative showing that the river craft are openly violating the law.

There may be no prosecutions of the steamboat owners by Mr. Jones, however, as some of them have already promised to be good. An official of one of the lines notified Mr. Jones Saturday morning that all their boats would be equipped with smoke consumers at once. He expects the others to follow suit.

Should the steamboat owners fail to comply with the Jones ultimatum, there might be interesting developments. As long as they are tied to the shore, they fall under his jurisdiction. But should they unhitch and float out to mid-stream the tall black pipes could puff away all day regardless of Mr. Jones and his ultimatum. For that is federal territory and Mr. Jones is a municipal officer. He announces, however, that he is ready for all contingencies.

Marvelous Growth of Hair.

A Famous Doctor-Chemist Has Discovered a Compound That Grows Hair on a Bald Head in a Single Night.

Startling Announcement Causes Doctors to Marvel and Stand Dumfounded at the Wonderful Cures.

The Discoverer Sends Free Trial Packages to All Who Write.

After half a century spent in the laboratory, crowned with high honors for his many world-famous discoveries, the celebrated physician-chemist at the head of the great Altenheim Medical Dispensary, has just made the startling announcement that he has produced a compound that grows hair on any bald head. The doctor makes the claim that after experiments, taking years to complete, he has at last reached the goal of his ambition. To the doctor all heads are alike. There are none which cannot be cured by this remarkable remedy. The record of the cures already made is truly marvelous and were it not for the high standing of the great physician and the convincing testimony of thousands of citizens all over the country, it would seem too miraculous to be true.

There can be no doubt of the doctor's earnestness in making his claims nor can his cures be disputed. He does not ask any man, woman or child to take his or anyone else's word for it, but he stands ready and willing to send free trial packages of this great hair restorative to any one who writes to him for it, inclosing a 2-cent stamp to prepay postage. In a single night it has started hair to growing on heads bald for years. It has stopped falling hair in one hour. It never fails, no matter what the condition, age or sex. Old and young men, women and children, all have [illegible] by the free use of this great new discovery. MAIDS OF HONOR OF THE "VEILED PROPHETS" BALL

MISS RUTH SPENCER.

MISS LOUISE CHAPPELL.

MISS FRANCINE LUCAS.

MIS IDA CROUCH.

Tomorrow afternoon the Veiled Prophet will arrive on his annual pilgrimage to his favorite city of St. Louis.

He will proceed at once to the City Hall, where Mayor Wells will deliver to his Mystic Majesty the keys of the municipality.

On the following evening, Tuesday, Oct. 7, the annual street pageant and ball in his honor will be held.

The Veiled Prophet will arrive at the foot of Olive street by boat. He will be accompanied by his royal treasurer, his imperial secretary and his two attendant high priests.

At the foot of Olive street the Veiled Prophet and his royal retinue will take carriages and will start at once for the City Hall, escorted by two troops of United States cavalry accompanied by their mounted band, in command of Col. Louis H. Rucker, U. S. A.

After receiving the keys of the city from Mayor Wells, the visiting monarch will retire to his den at Twenty-first and Walnut streets and will not again be seen in public until the annual parade begins at 8 o'clock Tuesday night.

The route of the parade this year will be as follows:

ROUTE OF PROCESSION.

From den, east on Walnut to Twenty-first street, north to Locust street, east to Fifteenth street, north to Washington avenue, east to the west side of Twelfth street, south to Market street, north on the east side of Twelfth street to Washington avenue, east to Fourth street, south to Spruce street, west to Broadway, north to St. Charles street, east to Third street, south to the Chamber of Commerce.

The parade will be followed by a ball in honor of the Veiled Prophet and his retinue, as in former years, at the Merchants' Exchange. The large ball room will be lighted and decorated on the same scale of magnificence that has made its appearance so enchanting on previous occasions of the kind.

When the parade is done then will come the ball. The Veiled Prophet and all his retinue will leave their steeds and their chariots and go to the dance.

The great room of the Merchants' Exchange, where grain that is yet to grow is bought and sold, will be lighted with many lights. About it will be decorations of colored flags and of much green. There will be growing plants, long draperies of vines and many festoons of smilax. In the room will be women, debutantes, brides, mothers and even grandmothers—all gowned freshly and beautifully.

The Veiled Prophet will enter, gaze from one to the other and from the throng select his queen. To her he will give a crown and much honor. With her he will dance the first measure. She will be the woman of all St. Louis.

Who she will be is not as yet announced.

It is generally conceded, however, that Miss Maude Wells, daughter of Mayor Wells, is to be queen of the ball this year. The crown will be particularly becoming to Miss Wells' brown hair and her friends would be pleased to see her receive this honor before she becomes a bride in November.

Other names that have been mentioned in this honor are Misses Ida Crouch, Ruth Spencer and Louise Chappelle.

Miss Spencer is, however, quite ill with typhoid fever.

Miss Chappelle as well as Miss Wells will be one of the autumn brides.

After the selection of the queen her maids of honor will be chosen and decorated by the Veiled Prophet. They, too, will dance in that first measure with the attendants nearest to his majesty as their companions.

When the dance music begins the ball room floor will be a beautiful sight covered with the figures of beautifully garbed women and men clad in the fashion of the old French time, that of the French court as well as that of the early St. Louis pioneers.

The Veiled Prophet will remain for a short while, then he will go away, leaving the ball and his followers in charge of his queen.

The dance will go on for a few hours, but ere the heavy gray beyond the Mississippi lightens it will be done and the Veiled Prophet will be far on his homeward journey.

The gentlemen in charge of the ball have framed a set of rules for the guidance of those honored [illegible] and also a set of instructions concerning the carriages of the guests.

CAVALRY ESCORT.

A special feature in connection with the Veiled Prophet's visit this year is that the cavalry escort that will accompany his public appearance will give exhibition drills.

At 10 o'clock 250 mounted cavalrymen will go through Cavalry Horse Exercise on Lindell boulevard to Forest Park and return.

At 2 p. m. on the same day these same troops under command of Col. Rucker, with their mounted cavalry band, will give an exhibition of high school riding; rough riding, cavalry maneuvers and drill, at Handlan's Park, corner of Grand and Laclede avenues, which will be entirely free to the public.

In view of the approaching World's Fair the subject of the Veiled Prophet's parade this year will be especially attractive as well as instructive. It is "the Veiled Prophet's first visit to the Louisiana Purchase territory."

The seventeen floats will [illegible] historical incidents connected with the Louisiana Purchase and depict various phases of life connected therewith.

Float No. 1—Seated on his throne, under a canopy, on a Mexican cart, is the Veiled Prophet; on either side, his high priests. In the background majestic palms and tropical plants. The Prophet's car is drawn by two life-size buffaloes with Indians as attendents.

Float No. 2—The Land of Promise. At the back of the float is an Indian tepee. Before it is a camp fire, around which dance Indian "bucks" in war costume. In the foreground a hunting party, equipped with bows and arrows.

EARLY SPANISH SETTLERS.

Float No. 4—Following De Soto—Down the rocky sides from the back of the float come Indians in war costume, armed with tomahawks, in pursuit of De Soto's party, two of whom have fallen victims to the marauding band.

Float No. 5—On the Mississippi—Two long bark canoes, side by side, on the Mississippi, one filled with Indians, the other containing Marquette and Joliet, with their Indian boatmen and guides; Marquette is distributing articles of clothing and ornaments to the Indians.

Float No. 6—Spanish Life in the Louisiana Territory—Under a bower of green are shown music makers, with mandolins and guitars, and four Spanish maidens, with tambourine and castanets in hand, dancing.

Float No. 7—Founding of St. Louis—An Indian wigwam with warriors in costume, showing old civilization. Half-felled trees, with the axmen by their side and the trapper, with his long rifle, by the campfire, mark the beginning of the new order.

Float No. 8—The First House in St. Louis—An old-fashioned French stockade, made of logs split in half and set on end, with the roof of split logs, two deep. Hunters and trappers coming towards the house, before which sits Jean Baptiste playing on his historic fiddle.

Float No. 9—Execution of the Staff of the French Governor of Louisiana in 1768—When the new Spanish governor arrived he ordered the execution. This float shows a stockade, before which stands a squad of Spanish soldiers. Kneeling before them are two of the French staff, their graves at their knees. As the squad fires the prisoners [illegible] to fall into their graves.

Float No. 13—France Ceding Louisiana—An allegorical group of Jefferson, Napoleon, Marbois, Monroe and Livingston under the American and Frech flags about to affix their sigatures to the document.

Float No. 14—Raising the American Flag in the Louisiana Territory—On Dec. 20, 1802, in New Orleans, a handful of American soldiers and a small number representing France, faced each other. The French soldiers presented arms, their standard fluttered to the ground and the stars and stripes went up.

PLANTATION SCENES.

Float No. 15—Plantation Life in Louisiana—An old-fashioned negro cabin occupies the center. In the rear a monstrous alligator is swallowing a fat pickaninny. Fishermen are coming from the stream with an enormous catfish, and their companions are dancing a buck dance.

Float No. 16—Transfer of Upper Louisiana at St. Louis—The formal transfer of Upper Louisiana in 1804 is symbolically represented on the float. A French officer is about to deliver the documents of transfer to an American officer, while an American flag is being raised.

Float No. 17—The Dawn of Freedom—The last float symbolizes the Dawn of Freedom, and shows the gallant Col. Hunt on horseback, his standard-bearer carrying the American flag of that day, escorted by a drum and fife corps in the picturesque costume of that time.

The census reports that there are 621 musical instrument factories in this country, of which 263 are piano factories. The annual products are worth $45,000,000. The figures show a great decline in the number of organs made and an increase in the number of pianos.

The exodus of Scandinavian emigrants to the United States continues to be the greatest in 20 years. The hard times at home and the more stringent laws for the conscription of soldiers, together with the reported prosperity in America, are responsible for the universal movement.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few people realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of the lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients [illegible] from gas [illegible] stomach and bowels, [illegible] the complexion and purify the [illegible] throat; I also believe [illegible] benefited by the daily [illegible] a box [illegible]

AVED CHICAGO FROM THE REBELS

ROBERT ALEXANDER CLAIMS TO HAVE FOILED A PLOT.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Old and out of employment, Robert Alexander, who claims to have been a principal in one of the most dramatic of civil war time events, is now asking for $1100 he spent to save the city from fire and devastation.

The threatening foe, he says, was the 30,000 Confederate prisoners confined in Camp Douglas on the South Side. The plotters were the Sons of Liberty, who furnished the arms and made preparations for the outbreak. The informer who first laid bare the plot, after performing hazardous adventures to discover its details and hearing his own death warrant read, now, according to his story, Alexander himself.

"It was the plan of the Sons of Liberty to furnish arms for the prisoners," said Mr. Alexander, "to set a certain night on which they were to overwhelm the guards in a rush for liberty, and then after looting and burning Chicago, to set off for the South to join Mosby and Forrest.

"At the same time the prisoners on Kelley's Island were to be notified and the wires cut and a similar outbreak attempted there.

"From I. W. Ayer, who was a member of the same Masonic lodge as I, and who was also a member of the Sons of Liberty, I first learned of the plot. Ayer himself was afraid it meant great disaster to Chicago, and asked me to learn more of it and to secure information which would lead to its prevention. He feared that his life would pay the forfeit if he did so himself.

"This I undertook to do. I attended the meetings of the Sons of Liberty and became to all appearances an enthusiastic supporter of the plan. Yet they were suspicious of me, for one night a decree was solemnly read that if it were revealed both I and Ayer, who introduced me into the society, would suffer death as a penalty.

"I found that a quantity of arms was stored in the house of Charles Walsh on Cottage Grove avenue just across from the camp. This was a few days before the outbreak was to take place.

"Upon discovering this I notified Col. Sweet and the arms were confiscated, a strong guard was stationed at the prison, and the ringleaders were taken down to Cincinnati to face the penalty of death for their treason.

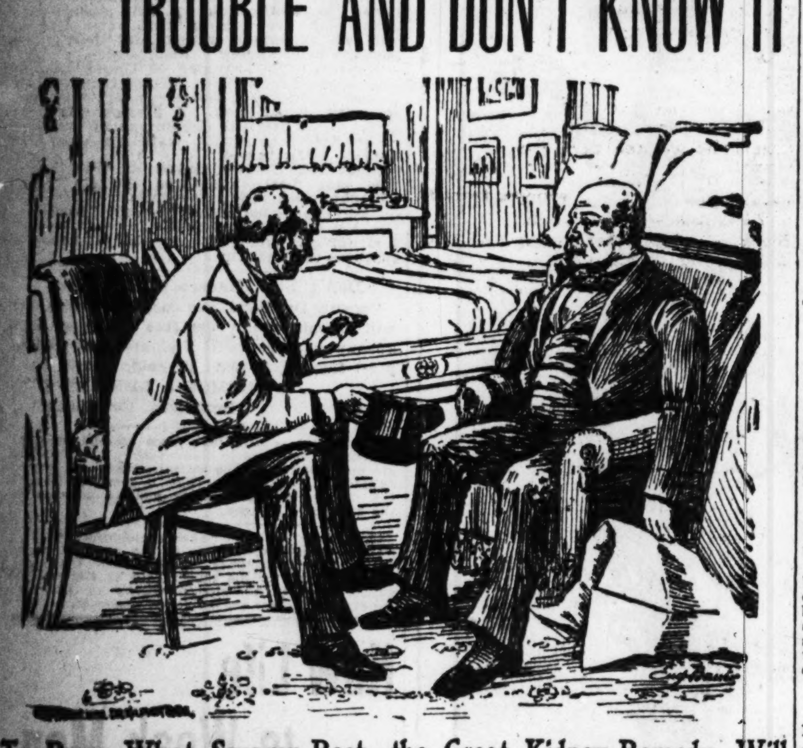
"To accomplish this I spent $1100 on the promise that I was to receive a commission in the army, but it was not forthcoming.

"Now I want the city to pay it back to me, for I saved the city from being devastated and burned and heaven knows what other misfortunes.

"All I ask is a position by which I can earn sufficient to support myself and my daughter."

Alexander is 70 years old.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT



To Prove What Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney Remedy, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of the Post-Dispatch May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease; therefore, when, through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and need attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

The mild and immediate effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root will set your whole system right, and the best proof of this is a trial.

14 West 117th St., New York City.
Oct. 15th, 1901.

Dear Sir: I had been suffering severely from kidney trouble. All symptoms were on hand; my former strength and power had left me; I could hardly drag myself along. Even my mental capacity was giving out, and often I wished to die. It was then I saw an advertisement of yours in a New York paper, but would not have paid any attention to it, had it not promised a sworn guarantee with every bottle of your medicine, asserting that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable, and does not contain any harmful drugs. I am seventy years and four months old, and with a good conscience I can recommend Swamp-Root to all sufferers from kidney troubles. Four members of my family have been using Swamp-Root for four different kidney diseases, with the same good results.

With many thanks to you, I remain,
Very truly yours,
ROBERT BERNER.

You may have a sample bottle of this famous kidney remedy, Swamp-Root, sent free by mail, postpaid, by which you may test its virtues for such disorders as kidney, bladder and uric acid diseases, poor digestion, when obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is the great discovery of Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist. Hospitals use it with wonderful success in both slight and severe cases. Doctors recommend it to their patients and use it in their own families, because they recognize in Swamp-Root the greatest and most effective remedy.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is for sale the world over at druggists' in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty cents and one dollar. Remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—If you have the slightest symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble, or if there is a trace of it in your fam and once to Dr. Kilmer & Co. adly mediately,

SUNSHINE THOUGHT.

"I shall pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that I can do for any human being, let me do it now Let me not deter it or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

STEPHEN GRELLET.

Special Notice.

Owing to the rapid growth of the junior sunshine work, Mrs. F. W. Baumhoff has severed her connection with the sewing school that was formerly held in the Industrial Mission rooms, at Seventh and Gratiot streets. Mrs. J. C. Woodson was the superintendent and Mrs. Baumhoff secretary and treasurer all last season. Many of the children and some of the teachers formed a branch, which has been discontinued because of the disbanding of the school during the summer. Various branches in different parts of the city are preparing to take up this work. Due notice will be given of the location of all schools under the auspices of the Mission Sunshine Society.

Branch Work.

Baden station sunbeams held their first meeting of the season on the third Thursday in September and took in nine new members. They recently held a birthday party and are now interested in the Christmas barrel and will do all they can to fill empty stockings. Miss Anna C. C. Tandy is the president.

At Home branch sent out 20 packages of good cheer and numerous letters to brighten many shut-ins' dreary lives. Numberless sick calls were made. Hours were spent in reading to the aged and sick; a new dress and hat was given a needy girl to make a neat appearance in a new position; delicacies were sent to an invalid and much sunshine was scattered.

Golden Rays of Kirkwood have not been idle and many flowers have been taken to the sick. A little crippled girl was sent to the country and through their contributions and gentle care enjoyed a pleasant outing. These young people are energetic workers and are now working on the scrapbooks for our Christmas barrels.

Golden Hour sewing class met on the 26th and report a pleasant meeting. They will meet regularly on Friday and are making up fancy articles, aprons, etc., for their bazar, which they will hold in December. They are also making a feature of dressed dolls. If you have bright pieces, scraps of lace or embroidery, bits of bright ribbon, they will be very thankful for them. Anything suitable for a doll's wardrobe will be gratefully received and acknowledged by their president, Mrs. G. C. Wheeler, 4527A Rutger street, St. Louis, Mo.

Ever Ready sunshiners, under the leadership of their worthy president, report that many sick and weary ones have been visited and cheered with flowers and reading matter. Birthday and other bright, cheerful letters have been sent out. A complete suit of clothes was given a poor afflicted girl. Books and bright pictures were sent an invalid boy. Food and rent money were given a poor colored woman. Old linen was sent to the Children's Hospital. Financial aid was given an aged woman and many other kind deeds were performed for others. Their next meeting will be held at the president's home, 2751 Lafayette avenue, at 3 o'clock, Tuesday, Oct. 8, 1902.

Valentine branch secured two positions for heads of families out of work. Some lace was sold for an invalid and much good cheer dispensed. One lady has offered her carriage for one afternoon a week to take any aged person for an airing. Flowers and dainties were sent to three invalids. The ladies are now planning a sunshine tea and hope to be able to buy a wheelchair to be loaned invalids; 42 letters were written.

Constant Workers are going to have a sunshine social in the near future; 196 cheerful letters were written and 78 packages of condensed sunshine were sent to as many homes. Paying work was found for three breadwinners. Next meeting will be on Wednesday, Oct. 9.

From the Exchanges.

The Sunshine Society met on Wednesday, Sept. 3, with Miss Mary Day, 140 Laurel avenue, Minneapolis.

Mrs. Charles Jewett, president of the World's Fair branch of St. Louis, addressed the meeting. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all present.—St. Paul, Minn., Globe.

"International Sunshine Society," conducted by Clara Estelle Baumhoff of St. Louis, will fill the space of "Men and Women of the Craft" until our "Caroline" is once more strong enought for the work; then we will find another space for "Sunshine," for the bright, sweet face of the writer of "Sunshine" fully bears out the title of her department.—Fort Worth, Tex., Bohemian.

Mrs. Clara Estelle Baumhoff is the wife of our postmaster and is the treasurer of Missouri Division. She is also in charge of the junior work for Missouri and the great Southwest.

The results here astonish others elsewhere, and our answer to the constant query "How is it done?" is "By the courtesy of the press, the generosity of the business men and the faithful service of the women." With these united into one great band even greater things can be accomplished.

All that people need is to know about it, and through the columns of the Post-Dispatch Mrs. Trowbridge expects to train them along sunshine lines, until there will be a sunburst worth seeing.—Memphis, Tenn., Scimitar.

Sunshine Library.

Through the instrumentality of the Post-Dispatch, a sunshine branch has been established in Checotah, I. T., called "Crown Jewels." This branch has started a sunshine library and we want bound books suitable for both adults and children, to send to them. Very many readers of this department can spare a few bound books from their crowded shelves. Those who can do so are urged to forward them this week to 3047 Clark avenue, St. Louis, Mo. In this way we hope to send the Checotah sunshine library a liberal donation of books. While the mail carries a lot of magazines and papers to Checotah, good books are scarce and with the approach of the long winter evenings, will be greatly appreciated. Look over your book shelves and pick out such volumes as you can spare for the booklovers of Indian Territory. Readers are urged not to forget or neglect this matter.

Where to Send Sunshine.

Hinton Gulick, Rucker, Boone County, Mo., is a 15-year-old lad who is very much of an invalid and would be truly grateful for reading matter.

Mrs. John Hamilton, Pardeeville, Wis., who is crippled with rheumatism, wants religious literature and magazines. Send Mrs. H. your church papers.

Mrs. Bridget Mulroy, 69 years old, living at 2705 Eugenia street, would be very thankful for any stray sunshine sent her way. She is old and feeble. Do not forget her.

Mrs. Blackledge, Modoc Camp, Indian Territory, wants pictures and reading matter.

Has anyone a rocking chair to pass on to an aged invalid? If so, let me know.

The Woodlawn Willing Workers will hold an apron, bag and towel sale on Oct. 31, and ask that each branch send them one of these articles. They stand ready and willing at any time to return the favor. There are many residents in St. Louis who would enjoy scattering a little sunshine in their "Old Kentucky Home," and here is the chance. Send a pretty apron, laundry or shoe bag, or a handsome towel. Address Miss Nellie H. German, Greenbrier, Nelson County, Kentucky.

MARLBOROUGH TOO FAST

Woodstock Policeman Stopped Him for Fast Wheeling, but Let Him Go When He Saw King's Nephew in Car.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.

WOODSTOCK, England, Oct. 4.—The Duke of Marlborough went to Oxford in his automobile Wednesday to meet Prince Arthur of Connaught, King Edward's nephew. On the way back the motor car was stopped by a vigilant policeman of Woodstock for exceeding the 12-miles-an-hour limit on a Woodstock road.

When the policeman found that a royal prince was a passenger he discreetly let the duke go with a caution. It would have gone hard with the duke if he had been taken to court, for recently he ran into and upset a market cart on the outskirts of Oxford, injuring its two occupants.

When the duke was in New York several years ago to arrange for wedding W. K. Vanderbilt's daughter, he wa in Central Park for coas the hills on a bicycle po lice station he vowed h ited States has

DUNKARD GIRL BREAKS OLD RULE

Went to Law in Spite of Church Precepts.

SUED FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

SHE GETS VERDICT AGAINST COLLEGE PRESIDENT.

Was Anxious for Vindication, but Cares Nothing for the Money—Case Is Unique One in Church History.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—One of the articles in the confession of faith of the peculiar sect known as the Dunkards is that no member of the church shall go to law. For 200 years this rule had been observed inviolate in Germantown, and the entire community was naturally aroused when a court of law was appealed to and the differences between two of its members settled by it.

This action, the first in the history of the church, was brought by Miss Cora Keim asking $25,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage, the defendant being I. Harvey Brumbaugh, acting president of Juniata College.

Harvey Brumbaugh, it seems, is not politic. Instead of going before the congregation, admitting his broken engagement, and asking Miss Keim's forgiveness publicly (a favor she would have been obliged to grant, acording to church law), he annulled, without her consent, the promise to marry, telling her simply that there was "another girl." As a consequence she had no form of redress in the church. There was nothing that would compensate unless justice could be had in a court of law. She consulted her six brothers, who all adored her as the "baby" of the family, and it was decided to bring suit, though well understanding that such a step would be regarded as revolutionary in their church. The next step was to persuade the mother, and though at first obdurate she was finally convinced.

Cora Keim was sent to Juniata College in the autumn of 1896. This college is a Brumbaugh school. Although there are some 15 professors, most of the stock is owned by the Brumbaughs, and the family practically controls it. It follows they are people of influence and prominence.

Cora Was Flattered.

Small wonder that when Cora Keim went to this institution and quickly found favor in the eyes of the acting president she was flattered. She was only 20, he was seven years her senior. Soon he became her mentor in matters social. He would send for his favorite pupil to come to him in the college office. Should students or professors know of her presence there it would be supposed the call concerned her studies. Their more frequent meting place, however, was the handsome study in his father's house. Cora Keim was received always as a daughter by Elder and Mrs. Brumbaugh. Soon her happiest hours were spent in their home. It was there young Brumbaugh asked her to be his wife.

In June of 1897 he asked her to marry him and in August followed her to her home in Salisbury to ask her mother for her daughter's hand. Mrs. Keim protested, but he was so much in earnest she relented and finally gave the two her blessing. In the autumn of 1898 I. Harvey Brumbaugh went to Harvard for a postgraduate course. In a Cambridge boarding house (as told in his letters to Cora Keim) he met the Miss Johnson who is now his wife.

This trial would be unique in any section. The stranger stepping into the courtroom might easily have supposed he was in a great country church. Men and women, from the white-haired octogenarian to the school girl and boy, assembled to hear the testimony. Women of wealth and position in the little town were side by side with day laborers. There were calm faces in the Dunkard bonnets and near them young folks sitting close and smiling happily at each other, and sad-faced elderly women who had not heard love's tale for many, many long years. Down in front preachers and college professors were as thick as lawyers. It was a staid, dignified assemblage.

Excitement Over Trial.

Business was practically suspended while awaiting the verdict. Many stayed in the courthouse eager for news at first hand. Late in the afternoon the jury filed into the courtroom, grave, serious, a full sense of the responsibility of their position written on their faces. A Pennsylvania railroad case was being tried. Somebody had been killed in an accident and someone else wanted damages. It was love's tragedy face to face with the tragedy of life itself. Judge Bailey, smiling contentedly, studied the paper handed him. "I can't read this part. Won't you tell me what the figures are?" he questioned, beaming on the jury. Then everybody knew the expected had happened.

"Nine thousand two hundred and fifty dollars," replied the foreman with pleased dignity.

And everybody laughed happily. The town went quite mad over the news. Everyone went to the telephone at once to spread the news. Inside of three minutes it was known everywhere that the little girl's simple, sad heart story had been believed by the jury. She had been vindicated. At every doorway laughing groups of men and women talked.

That she was not awarded the $25,000 asked was not the fault of a part of the jury. One wanted to give her $30,000, and when at last they could not agree on the amount—there was no question from the first that the verdict would be in her favor—each man set down the sum he thought she should have. They divided this by 12 and thus agreed on $9,250. Not one word of sympathy for the man who must pay or go to jail was uttered. After the trial was over Miss Keim showed her gentle, sympathetic nature in the following words: "I am so glad the jury believed me Their faith in my word means much more to me than the money.

"Had Prof. Harvey Brumbaugh told me why he broke the engagement I never would have entered suit, but he would not be honest with me."

VANDALS DESTROY PICTURES PAINTED BY SISTER OF GIRL WITH THE AUBURN HAIR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Three pictures which Miss Minnie Akass of Chicago exhibited at the Indiana state fair at Indianapolis were destroyed by vandals a week ago, but news of it was not made public until yesterday.

Jealousy is supposed to have been at the bottom of the deed.

Miss Akass exhibited three pictures at Indianapolis and each secured first prize in its class. The day following the day of award found the three pictures hopelessly defaced, scarred with a past with oil. Two of them we effaced, the third, perhaps, capable of restoration.

One of the three pictures was in oils, a portrait of the artist's sister, Mrs. J. J. Murdoch, "The Girl With the Auburn Hair." A second was entitled "A Mountain Stream," a pastel of California. These two are destroyed. The third, Miss Akass writes her family, may possibly be restored, although she has little heart for it.

Miss Minnie Akass lives with her father, E. T. Akass, at 10 Washington place, Kenwood.

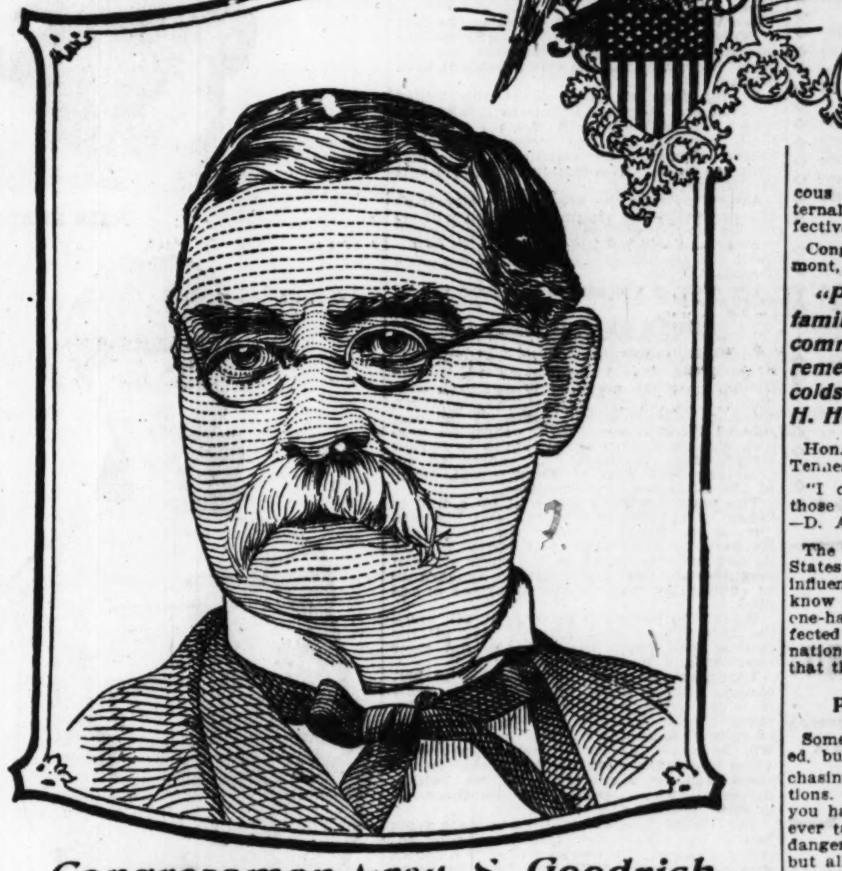
STRAIGHT-FORWARD EVIDENCE FROM MEN OF NATIONAL PROMINENCE

That Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located.

Congressmen, Governors, Generals, Consuls, Recommend Pe-ru-na.

No other remedy has received the unqualified endorsement of so many distinguished American citizens as Peruna. The pharmacopeia does not furnish a catarrh remedy so well known. It is acknowledged on all hands that Peruna and catarrh are so indelibly associated that to speak of one is to think of the other.

Congressman H. H. Powers.



Congressman Fred S. Goodrich.

Fred S. Goodrich, ex-member of Congress from Florida (51st session) writes the following letter from Shawnee, Okla.:

"I am assured and am satisfied that your Peruna is not only a cure for catarrh, but also a most vigorous tonic, and as so many of my friends have been benefited by its use, I have no hesitation in recommending it to the public." —Fred S. Goodrich.

Peruna has cured more cases of catarrh than all the other remedies combined. It is exactly as Congressman Goodrich of Oklahoma says: "Peruna is not only a cure for catarrh, but also a most vigorous tonic."

These two facts are beyond controversy. Any remedy that operates to tone up the whole nervous system will also operate beneficially upon catarrh.

Catarrh is simply a flabby condition of the mucous membrane. This flabbiness has been brought about by exposure to cold which finally depresses the nerves supplying the mucous membrane.

Peruna operates immediately to strengthen these nerves and give tone to the mucous membrane. There is no other internal catarrh remedy that has proven effective in all cases.

Congressman H. Henry Powers of Vermont, writes from Morrisville, Vermont:

"Peruna I have used in my family with success. I can recommend it as an excellent family remedy and very good for coughs, colds and catarrhal affections."—H. Henry Powers.

Hon. D. A. Nunn, ex-Congressman from Tennessee, writes:

"I cheerfully recommend Peruna to all those suffering from catarrhal troubles." —D. A. Nunn.

The most distinguished men of the United States have no hesitation in lending their influence to assist in letting the people know of the virtues of Peruna. Nearly one-half the people are in some degree affected by catarrh. Therefore it is almost a national curse and it is of national import that the people should know of Peruna.

Pe-ru-na Cannot be Imitated.

Some things may be successfully imitated, but Peruna cannot be. Every one purchasing Peruna should look out for imitations. Examine each package carefully. If you have ever used Peruna or if you have ever tasted it, you are not in the slightest danger of being misled by these imitations, but all those beginning the use of Peruna should beware.

Beware of imitations. Believe no one who tells you that he has a remedy that is making the same cures that Peruna is making.

If you have any doubt as to the genuineness of the bottle of Peruna you are using, write to Dr. Hartman and the fraud, if there be any, will soon be detected.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

AGED V ERAN LOST AT MARRIAGE GAME

BRIDE OF 20 DIVORCED HER HUSBAND OF 75.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Oct. 4.—Cupid has played brave old Capt. Tansey, a Mexican and civil war veteran, a mean trick. At three score and fifteen, he fell in love with and married the Widow Harvey, aged 20 years. That was two months ago.

Capt. Tansey marched back to Guthrie from his honeymoon this week divorced by his bride, forced to pay a monthly alimony and court costs and enjoined from going to the home which he had furnished for his wife and his mother-in-law. The captain says:

"That will be about all for me, matrimonially."

He is one of the wealthiest and most highly respected citizens of Guthrie. He had been a widower for 40 years when he met Alta Harvey. They were married in Oklahoma City and went to Indianapolis on their honeymooon.

There his mother-in-law received him as a son. She was prevailed upon by the bride to accompany them to Kansas City, where Capt. Tansey bought a house and installed her and her daughter. In less than two weeks Mrs. Tansey apparently lost interest in her veteran husband and obtained a divorce.

The court order put Capt. Tansey in a tight place. He had only the clothes on his back and couldn't get home to get others. After pleading with the judge he was allowed to return to the house with a policeman and get his trunk and some books.

Despite his advanced years, Capt. Tansey tried to enlist at the breaking out of the war with Spain. He is agile and hearty and does not look over 50. He says he nearly escaped the scrutiny of the recruiting officer. He has held several political positions in Oklahoma, and was at one time a member of the Kansas Legislature. As a stump speaker he is considered a power by the Republicans.

MONEY SHORT ON DOWIE'S ZION CITY

THREE PAY DAYS PASS WITHOUT APPEARANCE OF PAY.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Zion City, where John Alexander Dowie reigns supreme, is reported to be suffering for lack of funds.

The passing of three pay days without envelopes forthcoming has shattered the faith of a large number of workmen, and they have left the city.

Few of the skilled workmen brought to build Zion City now remain there, and it is said that some of the faithful who have been working on the public buildings are growing discontented at the absence of the pay days.

The county mortgage records show that more than $340,000 worth of trust deeds have been filed against Zion City property since January, 1900.

Alarm has been caused among some of the faithful who hold sub-leases by a report that these loans affect their property, which is held on long term leases. It is pointed out that should Dowie fail to meet his obligations a foreclosure would follow.

This would mean, however, that the leaseholders would be deprived of their possession which include the homes erected for themselves and families. A real estate agent has this to say about the mortgages on Zion City property:

"When Dowie took options on the property where he planned to found his city, they provided for a three years' period. The property, which he cleared up and sub-divided and which was leased to members of the church, has so far been cleared of all debt, I understand. The outlying property, that not settled up or subdivided, is probably under mortgage or held under the option first secured."

WANT THEIR NAMES PRINTED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 4.—A city directory, twice the size of the present edition, is a possibility of next spring, provided the publishers accede to the plan of Cincinnati women to observe recognition of their citizenship.

They say that an unjust discrimination is made by the publishers of the directory in printing only the names and addresses of men, widows and women in business.

A general movement among the women to petition the directory publishers to print their names has been started. This step has been deemed advisable by the majority of suffrage women, owing to the difficulty of finding women in the city in the school campaign work.

WIFE SEEKS MONEY LOST AT GAMBLING

MUNCIE, IND., WOMAN HAS CAUSED AN UNEASY FLURRY.

RICH MEN AS WITNESSES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MUNCIE, Ind., Oct. 4.—A stir has been caused by Mrs. Anna Hassler, the young wife of John C. Hassler, who is general passenger agent of the Fort Wayne division of the Lake Erie railroad. She has filed suit against Charles Guinnup, keeper of a well-known gambling house and saloon, to recover $1210 alleged to have been lost by Hassler in Guinnup's resort. She aso asks for $300 damages. The Hasslers are prominent socially, both being about 25 years old, and married only about three years.

A greater stir will be caused when the case comes to trial, as many prominent men of Muncie will be called as witnesses. Among them is a weathy manufacturer, and another whose wealth is in six figures. It is set forth that these men were present when Hassler lost most of his money.

Charles Guinnup operates one of the best known gambling resorts in the city, and makes no pretense of concealing his business. Below Guinnup's place is a fine saloon, also owned by him. Both the saloon and the gambling rooms are popular, and Mrs. Hasser claims that her husband was easily led into them.

Mrs. Hassler specifies the dates on which certain sums of the total amoune were lost, as follows:

June 5 to July 17, 1901	$450 00
July 17 to Oct. 22, 1901	400 00
Sept. 16, 1901	60 00
Various dates, July 5 to Sept. 16	300 00
Total	$1,210 00

Mrs. Hassler says the sums mentioned were lost by her husband in playing roulette, poker, faro and other games. Mr. and Mrs. Hassler are living happily together here, Mr. Hassler going about his business as usual, but it is said that the suit was brought against his original wish.

Strong efforts were made by Guinnup to compromise the suit, he paying several visits to the Hassler home in an effort to reach an agreement. Among the sporting fraterniey Guinnup is highly regarded. Having grown comparatively wealthy, he gives liberally to all worthy causes. Whenever a man who can ill afford to lose comes into his gambling rooms, and he is aware that the man's family needs his money, it is said that he tunrs him away and refuses to allow him to play.

TIPPING ON THE PULLMAN CARS

SIXTY PORTERS UNITE TO FIGHT THE SYSTEM.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Oct. 4.—An association of 60 Pullman porters has been organized here with the avowed purpose of abolishing the tipping system. The porters say they don't want tips, they want living wages. "We porters must organize," said William H. Green, the porter who took care of Leader Devery's party on the trip from New York. We don't want tips. We want the Pullman Company to pay us wages that we can live on.

"We are paid $1.23 for a trip between New York and Chicago. The company makes, perhaps, $200 out of that same run.

"You all know what sort of service some porters give. If a man gives one of us a dollar tip he is very likely to get particular attention paid to him. And the rest of the passengers are neglected. The public gets the worst of it and our profession suffers from these individual cases."

The speech was cheered. Other porters talked in the same way. The New York lodge was organized with a hurrah.

GREAT ST. LOUIS FAIR OF 1902.

(FORTY-SECOND ANNUAL [illegible]

Sunday the historic old Fair Grounds will be open for public inspection of the exhibits which are in shape for the greatest of all fairs.

ADMISSION SUNDAY, 25c; CHILDREN, 15c.

AMPHITHEATER ATTRACTIONS.

Capt. Woodward's educated seals and sea lions. Prof. Baldwin, daring balloonist and parachute leaper. Great Ancolette trio and their sensational casting aerial act. Prof. Edward Rix in a marvelous high wire act. F. H. Conley, the one-legged trick cyclist, acrobat and comedian.

Exciting Automobile and Motor Cycle Races.

The Forty-second annual Fair will surpass all predecessors in its magnificent magnitude, illimitable scope, educational features and general attractiveness, more than sustaining its well and meritoriously earned reputation as the greatest annual Fair in the world.

It is a most powerful factor, reflective of the advanced ideas of civi[illegible]tion, of human progress in the development and propagation of the wor[illegible]'s practical work in all industrial interests and represents th[illegible] genius of m[illegible]kind, exemplified in all walks of life, w[illegible]e br[illegible]n, braw[illegible]ultured inte[illegible]gence and enlightening, refined influ[illegible]

Exemplary of Greater St. Louis, the Queen City of the West, the great St. Louis Fair represents the solidity, substantiality and commercial supremacy of St. Louis and the prolific resources of the Mississippi Valley, and it stands before the world emblazoned with a record second to none in triumphs and achievements in fostering and advancing the vast interests of agriculture and its allied forces of manufacture, machinery, the arts, sciences and an aggregation of enterprises that benefit mankind. It is the most popular Fair on earth because it more than fills its grandeur of mission and affords most eminent satisfaction to its millions of patrons.

The exhibits in the live stock, farm machinery, poultry, fruits and vegetables, textile, dairy, carriage and, in fact, all departments will be in variety, quantity and quality of greater attractiveness than ever before. Magnificent horse show. Great exhibit of cattle, sheep and swine.

GUNS AND CHEERS GREET GEN. BOOTH

Noisy Welcome for Salvation Army Leader.

"GOD BLESS THE GENERAL"

ELEVEN TUGBOATS AND TWO STEAMERS MEET HIM.

Circle About the Ship on Which He Was a Passenger With Cannon Booming, Bands Playing and Whistles Tooting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Gen. William Booth, the founder and active head of the Salvation Army, arrived today in New York from Liverpool on the Philadelphia.

Eleven tugboats and two sidewheel steamers crowed by Salvationists and decorated with flags, bunting and streamers met the ship off Quarantine, and for two hours the boats circled about the big liner with bands playing, whistles tooting, crowds cheering and the salvationitsts singing hymns.

A salute of 73 guns, one for each year of Gen. Booth's age, was fired from the tugs as he appeared on deck.

Cheer on cheer, and loud shouts of "Welcome, Welcome, God Bless the General," greeted him as he stood bowing to the crowds on the surrounding boats.

The men shouted themselves hoarse, the lassies, bonneted and clad in the picturesque garb of the army, clapped their hands.

As the Philadelphia proceeded slowly up the bay toward the pier, the tugs circled about her, and the revenue cutter Hudson, with Commander Booth-Tucker on board, came alongside, and Commander Tucker, with several newspaper men, boarded.

Commander Tucker hurried up the companionway, and, for a moment, the old general clasped him in his arms and kissed him on the forehead.

"How are you, general?' was the commander's first question for the age of the leader led his followers to fear that his hard work was telling on him.

Well, but a Little Weary.

"Well in body and soul, but a little weary from the trip," returned Gen. Booth. He then asked about his daughter, Mrs. Booth Tucker, and further conversation was interrupted by greetings and handshakes.

At the pier Mrs. Booth-Tucker was the first to go aboard the ship to meet her father. The tugs returned to pier A, and the Salvationists disembarked for the parade.

Gen. Booth, with Commander Booth-Tucker, entered a carriage and drove to the Salvation Army headquarters in Fourteenth street, near Sixth avenue.

At headquarters, Gen. Booth met the newspaper men and outlined his plans for the enlarging of the work of his army, his attitude toward his son, Herbert Booth, who, with Mrs. Clibborn Booth, recently became a convert to Dowieism in Chicago, and told of the work of the army.

Gen. Booth said: "This is one of the most remarkable welcomes I ever received, and though I have received many in all parts of the world none ever surpassed this one for enthusiasm, and, as a demonstration of real affection it has made me feel quite good.

Traveled Over 100,000 Miles.

Since my visit here four years ago I have traveled over 100,000 miles, delivered 1500 addresses, averaging an hour in length to audiences aggregating 2,000,000 persons.

"I have at these meetings seen 20,000 publicly seek salvation. By pubuicly, I mean coming out of the front, before heaven, earth and hell and the reports."

Here the general's face kindled with a smile, and he looked at the newspaper men. Continuing, he said:

"I have in these four years written 800 to 1000 articles, and have carried the responsibility and care of the Salvation Army.

"I am now in decent fighting condition, and, though I am somewhat older than you gentlemen, I dare say I work quite as hard. From here I go to Europe, thence to India and Japan, which place, God willing, I will reach at the end of next year.

"The purpose of my visit to the United States is several fold. First, in the interest of human brotherhood, and in this I might include the cementing of the friendship between America and England. I personally belong to every nation."

One of the Regrets of My Life.

Referring to the action of Herbert Booth and Mrs. Clibborn Booth in joining the Dowieites in Chicago, Gen. Booth said:

"The recent separation of two of my family is a great sorrow to me, as must be the separation of any officer's in the Salvation Army. It is one of the regrets of one's life to mourn one who has been a leader and on whom one has relied. I have that regret. I cannot say more, for this is a delicate matter."

Here Gen. Booth straightened to his full height, and his feautres became firmly set.

"I will go on with my work. I have served God for 60 years, and I will go on as long as he gives me strength," he said, firmly. In speaking of his son he displayed the same Spartan spirit that characterized his parting with another son, Ballington Booth, when the latter left the army and founded the American Volunteers.

After the review of the 2000 Salvationists, Gen. Booth lunched informally at headquarters with Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews; the Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, the Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong, Melville E. Stone of the Associated Press and Commander Booth-Tucker.

Gen. Booth preached in the Academy of Music three times today. Tomorrow night he will lecture in the Carnegie Music Hall. Mayor Low will preside.

Gen. Booth's itinerary in his tour of the United States, in part, is as follows:

Sioux City, Io., Jan. 7; St. Joseph, Jan. 8; St. Louis, Jan. 10 and 11; Birmingham, Jan. 13; Cincinnati, Jan. 15.

A NEW SONGSTER.

He Hails From New York and Ex-Chief Devery Inspires Him.

From the New York Sun.

We have been more than generous in praising the sons of song who have not the happiness to live in New York. Our bill for bay wreaths, silver chaplets and gold laurels is enormous. Have we been neglecting the native crop of poets, the indigenous Manhattan bards? We fear so, and hereby crave the pardon of that prince of poets, the laureate of the Hon. Big Tom Foley of the Second district. The song written by the Hon. Jere Whooley for Mr. Foley's annual Foleyfest puts its author miles ahead of all competitors. Hear the resounding chorus:

"It's Tom Foley, Big Tom Foley,
He's the man we follow and obey;
He's diplomatic—he's democratic—
Is Foley—oley—oley—oley—ay."

We cannot and we would not take an inch or an ounce from the highness and the greatness of Big Tom Foley, but his matchless minstrel is greater and bigger still. It's Jere Whooley, Sweet Jere Whooley, he's the man we holler for all day; he's poematic—he's choice and Attic—is Whooley—ooley—ooley—ooley—ay.

AMERICAN WOMEN WORRY DIPLOMATS

THOSE AT WASHINGTON ANXIOUS ABOUT THEIR PRESTIGE.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Diplomats and the officials of the state department do not regard with complacency the fact that two of the most important European embassies and the Belgian legation will have American women for chattellaines this winter.

The recently appointed British and French ambassadors, Sir Michael Herbert and M. Jean Jules Jusseraud, hase American wives, who were respectively Miss Leila Wilson of New York, and Miss Elsa Richards of Boston. The Belgian minister, Baron Ludovic Monchuer, married last winter Miss Charlotte Clayton, daughter of Gen. Powell Clayton of Arkansas.

Relations between the diplomats and American society have always been rendered difficult by the absence of set rules, such as prevail abroad and the state department has been called upon to arbitrate many feuds which arose in consequence. The diplomats, who are exceedingly jealous of their rights, fear that so many Americans in the corps will militate against their prestige.

The state department, which has to bear the brunt of all unpleasantness, anticipates quite a stormy winter, when the rival factions begin to dispute their claims.

Some of the high officials express admiration of the German government which will not allow a member of the diplomatic corps to be accredited to the country of which his wife is a native.

The status of the wives of ambassadors has never been clearly defined and their claims to precedence have been disputed by the wives of the chief justice, the speaker and the cabinet officers. This winter the ranking woman in the diplomatic corps will be Madam Mayor des Planches, wife of the Italian ambassador, a lady who has been here but one season and who does not speak English fluently. The dean of the corps is the German ambassador, but he is a bachelor.

MASCAGUI IN NEW YORK.

Distinguished Composer Will First Appear at Washington.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Mascagui, the Italian composer, was one of the several distinguished arrivals from Europe today. He will go to Washington, where on Monday night he will conduct the orchestra at the opening performance of "The Eternal City,' which Viola Allen is to present.

Mascagui's orchestra will not be permitted to play at the Metropolitan Opera House, where Mascagui will conduct certain evenings this winter, as the contract labor law will be invoked. However, his orchestra can give concerts throughout the land, and to this end St. Louis will receive a visit from the celebrated composer of Cavallera Rusticana.

MR. SPRAGUE SAYS

It is well known that very fine coffee is served at Delicatessen Lunch rooms.

Keep Off the Fence.

From Chat.

Probably you know that Pittsburg has had all kinds of political parties within the past few years—Democratic, Republican, Ring, Anti-Ring, Citizen, and so forth. Considering all this, there is a very appropriate sign at the corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street, "Keep Off the Fence." I do not know which party is responsible for the sign. I suppose the intent is that you should be either for or "forninst;" either ring or anti-ring; no shifting; no juggling; no carrying of water on both shoulders. "Keep off the fence." That's all right. Reminds me of part of a funny letter which was read in the late "Billy" Barry's Irish play, "The Rising Generation"—"If you are for me, be for me; if you're not for me, don't keep those that are for me from me."

PORTO RICO IN GREAT TURMOIL

POLITICS STIRS LITTLE ISLAND AS NEVER BEFORE.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 4.—When Gov. Hunt returns this month to Porto Rico he will find the island in a serious political turmoil. The Republicans, who are now in power, and the Federals, who want to get in, are at it, tooth and nail. Warring sides started at riot a short time ago at Humacao in which three men were killed and seven wounded. Acting Governor Hartsell is now seeking to apprehend the guilty ones. Conflicts in which blood is shed are of almost daily occurrence throughout Porto Rico. The political orators punctuate their speeches with ugly personal references and vicious remarks. At a Republican meeting a week ago in San Juan one of the speakers declared the party would win if it had to walk over 500 bodies to victory. A battalion of United States troops had to be called out at Cayey to control a riot.

Nearly all the candidates are now in the field. The Republicans have renominated Frederic Degettau for resident commissioner from Porto Rico at Washington. Two years ago Mr. Degettau was elected practically without opposition, the Federals refusing to vote, claiming intimidation.

This year they are battling hard, with fair prospects of controlling the next House of Delegates, now solidly Republican, and they may elect their candidate for commissioner at Washington, Felipe Cuebas of Mayaguez.

GAINS LIBERTY BY KILLING MEN

EVERYBODY LOATHES THIS PORTO RICO HEADSMAN.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 4.—A free man is Vincente Rivera, murderer. Killing men had no terrors for him and when the State sought an executioner Vincente Rivera stepped to the front. "A year of freedom for each life," they told him. So every time he gave the garrote wheel a turn with his arms one year was taken off his term of 15 years.

He was sentenced in 1898 for murder committed in 1888. He managed to keep in hiding for ten years before the authorities captured him. When in 1900 five men were sentenced to be garroted at Ponce the authorities found it almost impossible to secure an executioner. The people of Ponce loathe an executioner as they would a leper. It was finally decided to secure a long term prisoner and hire him at the rate of a year's remission of sentence for each life legally taken. Rivera had had two years of dungeon existence and jumped at the chance. He killed the five condemned men and all Ponce knew him for the executioner. Four other men were sentenced to death last June and again Rivera offered his services. This regained for him his liberty. Rivera returned to his home a free man. He has not lived a happy moment. Every door has been shut on him. None will hold communication with him. Even the occasional words of his former dungeon keeper come back to him now as cheerful sounds in contrast to the silence which is maintained by people who cannot avoid meeting him. The governor of Porto Rico has received a letter from Rivera declaring that it is impossible for him to lead an honest life, as none will hold intercourse with him or give him work. He begs that work be given to him.

American and Japanese Commerce.

From the New York Commercial.

As evidence of the healthy growth of our commercial relations with Japan, a steamship is now loading in this city with a cargo of electrical appliances and machinery for that country, which is only the first installment of what is believed will be a wonderfully large consignment to the Oriental empire. The vessel will carry to Japan a complete line of lamps, fan motors, trolleys, controllers and dynamos for 100 street cars that are to be put in operation at once. The cargo is being supplied by factories at Lynn and Schenectady, which are so closely pressed that they are said to be 20,000 behind in the motors that have been ordered. The United States leads in the production of electrical appliances for the world, and its foreign trade in these implements is unexcelled by that of any other nation.

There is no occupier, and the London County Council, which wants to buy the property, can't find anybody to treat with, though it has stuck a notice on the house front. Now the London County Council has got a surveyor appointed, who will tell the owner (when he finds him) how much he must sell his house for.

The motor-car terror is said to have struck Scotland severely on account of the number of rich tourists who visit that country. In one case a heavy racing automobile, running very rapidly at night, plunged into a flock of sheep being driven to market, and killed and mangled quite a number of them.

PILLSBURY WINS BLINDFOLD CHESS

PLAYED SIXTEEN GAMES AT ONCE AT VIENNA.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)

VIENNA, Oct. 4.—H. N. Pillsbury, the American chess champion, who has been in this city on his wedding trip, played, blindfolded, 16 games at the Vienna Chess Club.

A large company of high military officers, clergymen and ladies were present. Chess players followed every play with great interest till after midnight.

Mr. Pillsbury's adversaries, many of them strong players, sat at two long tables. He sat with his back to them in an armchair. The spectators moved around in groups from one table to another, and often loud applause was heard for Mr. Pillsbury's wonderful memory as well as for his masterly play.

Mr. Pillsbury began by defeating his strongest adversary, Mr. Weiss. At 8 o'clock he had won the first two games. At 9 o'clock, four were won and two drawn. At 1:30 a. m. the battle was over. Pillsbury won 12 games out of 16 and drew 4.

During the play Pillsbury smoked six cigars and took from time to time a swallow of water.

CAN YOU SOLVE THIS PUZZLE?

Each one of the three lines of figures IN THE CENTRE OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT spells the name of a great city in the United States. This is a brand new puzzle and can be solved with a little study as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet, and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, B number 2, C number 3, etc., throughout the entire alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIES YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF $1,000.00 WHICH WE ARE GIVING AWAY for getting subscriptions for us. This you can do by giving up a little of your spare time. This and other most liberal offers are made to introduce one of the very best New York magazines into every home in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. When you have made out the names of these three cities, write them plainly on a postal card and send it to us, and you will hear from us promptly BY RETURN MAIL. It may take an entire evening to solve the three names, but STICK TO IT AND GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $1,000. A copy of our fascinating MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to every one answering this advertisement. Do not delay. Send in your answer immediately. WE INTEND TO GIVE AWAY VAST SUMS OF MONEY in the future, just as we have done in the past, to advertise our CHARMING MAGAZINE. We find it is the very best advertising we can get to give away LARGE SUMS OF GOLD FREE. Here are the names and addresses of a few people we have recently awarded FREE GOLD PRIZES: Mrs. J. M. Lachlin, Twenty-third Street, Pittsburg, Pa., $130.00; Mr. O. F. Ackerman, Hill, N. H., $125.00; Mrs. Fred Peace, 146 Atkinson Street, Rochester, N. Y., $125.00; Mr. George Corbett, Five Islands, Nova Scotia, Canada, $80.00; H. C. Hare, 40 Wisconsin Avenue, Columbus, O., $1,750.00 (this includes the $350.00 Cabinet Grand Upright Piano); W. Kettle, 2705 Carson Street, Pittsburg, Pa., $190.00; Miss Martha Gregory, 3 Park Street, Norwalk, Conn., $105.00; Mrs. John Just, Box 7, Enfield, N. H., $110.00. We could go on and point to hundreds of names of people who have gained large sums of money from our contests, but only give a few names, as we desire the space to tell you all about THIS SPECIAL $1,000.00 IN GOLD FREE OFFER. The above solution can be worked out by an alert and clever person, and the reward is so handsome that it will amply pay you to TRY AND SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIES. Brains and energy nowadays are winning many golden prizes. Study it very carefully and let us see if you are clever and smart enough to spell out the Three Cities. WE HAVE THE $1,000.00 IN GOLD. Have you the brains and energy? If you can make out the names of the three cities, send them to us without one cent of money. Remember that this is our $1,000.00 in Gold Free Distribution, and we don't want you to send any money. When we say FREE, we mean PERFECTLY FREE. We would rather take this way of advertising our excellent magazine than spending many thousands of dollars in other foolish ways. We freely and cheerfully give the money away. YOU MAY WIN. We do not care who gets the money. TO PLEASE OUR READERS IS OUR DELIGHT. The question is, can you solve the above unique proposition? If you can do so, write the names of the three cities and your full address plainly in a letter and mail it to us, and you will hear from us promptly by return mail. Money is a nice thing to have, because there are so many useful uses we can put it to. By a little extra effort someone will get the money we give away. Some lazy and foolish people often neglect these grand golden free offers we make and then wonder and complain about their bad luck. There are always plenty of good opportunities for clever, brainy people who are always alert and ready to grasp a real good thing. We have built up our enormous business by being alert and liberal in our GRAND GOLD FREE DISTRIBUTIONS.

We are continually offering our readers RARE AND UNUSUAL prizes. This special contest we consider one of the greatest offers ever made. Do not delay in giving this matter your immediate attention, and if you can spell out the three cities send your answer at once. $1,000.00 REWARD will be paid to any one who can prove that in the many Free Cash Contests we have conducted in the past years we did not do exactly as we agreed. We have a big capital, and anyone can easily ascertain about our financial condition. To pay out these big gold cash prizes is a pleasure to us. We intend to have the largest circulation of our high-class one-dollar magazine in the world. In this progressive age publishers find that they must be liberal in giving away prizes of great sums of money. It is the only successful way to get your magazine talked about. For instance, if you should solve the peculiar way we have of spelling the names of the three cities, and we should send you a sum of money as a free prize, you would never stop talking about our magazine, now, would you? We POSITIVELY CLAIM that these three lines of figures, by our plan, do actually spell the names of three cities, and that a clever, brainy person, who can think and will patiently endeavor to solve how it is done, will be amply rewarded by sharing in our $1,000.00 in Gold Free Offer. Of course, if you are easily discouraged and are not patient and are not willing to spend any time in trying to work out the solution, you certainly cannot expect to win. This advertisement was not written for drones or idlers, who are not willing to give a liberal use of their time. We expect the reader to do some work and give it the time and attention it deserves. USE YOUR BRAINS. If you are successful in solving it, well and good. Write the names of the three cities and send them to us, and we will be just as much pleased as you are. We really desire some one to be successful, and as it does not cost you one cent to solve and answer this splendid Free Money Offer, it will be very foolish for you to pass it by. In all fairness give it some of your leisure time. SUCCESS IS FOR ENERGETIC AND THOUGHTFUL PEOPLE, and the cause of FAILURE IS LACK OF INTEREST AND LAZINESS. So, dear reader, do not pass this advertisement without trying hard to make a SOLUTION OF THE THREE LINES OF FIGURES PRINTED IN THE CENTRE OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT. We suggest that you carefully read this offer several times before giving up the idea of solving the puzzle. The harder it seems the more patience and determination you should have. Courage and determination win many of the PRIZES OF LIFE. Your share in OUR FREE MONEY DISTRIBUTION depends entirely upon your own energy and brains. Don't delay a moment in TRYING TO SOLVE THIS PERPLEXING PUZZLE. Many of the people we have recently sent large sums of money to in our Free Money Distribution write us kind and grateful letters, profusely thanking us for our prompt and honest dealings, and saying that if we had not so strongly urged them to try to win they would not have been successful and would not have been the happy recipients of a large sum of money for only a few hours' effort. It always pays to give attention to our grand and liberal offers. OUR BIG CASH PRIZES have gladdened the hearts of many persons who needed the money. If you need money you will give attention to this special offer this very minute. If you solve it, write us immediately. DON'T DELAY.

THIS IS THE GREAT PUZZLE.

A DARK PRINCE HAS DISAPPEARED

SCION OF ROYALTY FROM AFRICA MISSING.

CAME TO LEARN ART

Attended the University of Pennsylvania and Suddenly Drops Out of Sight.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—All the way from Yowah, Zolofland, in West Central Africa, came a scion of dark-skinned royalty to get an education at the University of Pennsylvania, and now he is dropped completely out of sight.

It is possible that he has returned to his native jungle because the cirriculum of the university proved too severe for him and he "flunked" at the end of his first term.

It was last fall that Prince Yuca was entered at Pennsylvania for a course in art and science. He was 25 years old and fluently spoke languages, including English, as he had already been in Amercian institutions.

Ten years ago the Rev. David A. Hay of the Muhlenberg Lutheran Mission to Africa, found out the Yowah tribe, who are Mahommedans. They are all intelligent, and some of them remarkably well educated.

Dr. Hay converted all the members of the royal family to Lutheranism. The King then was Yuca's grandfather, a man of wealth, and when the young prince had been baptized in the Lutheran Church the monarch decided to send him abroad for an education.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Another concerted effort is about to be made by the London municipalities to lessen the scandal of flaunting immorality in London streets. Under the old vagrancy act the police are empowered to arrest any woman obviously immodest in the public thoroughfares, while saloon keepers who allow such women to remain on their premises longer than necessary to consume refreshment may be prosecuted.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Robert Henry Eddy of Boston has placed a beautiful painted window and mural tablet in Cranbrook Church, Kent, to commemorate the work of his ancestor, the Rev. W. Toots Ay!

From the Scottish American.

Tourist (to hotelkeeper in the Highlands): Is this a good place, landlord, do you think, for a person affected with a weak chest?

"Nane better, sir; nane better," was the encouraging reply.

"I have been recommended, you know, by the doctor to settle in a place where the South wind blows. Does it blow much here?"

"Toots ay!" was the reply "it's aye the South wind that blaws here."

"Then how do you account for it blowing from the North at the present time?" said the tourist.

"O, that's easily accounted for, sir," was the reply. "It's the South wind a' the same, sir, jist on its road back again."

SHAW SENDS NOTICE TO BANKS

CORRECTS REPORTS CONCERNING THE COMPTROLLER.

RESERVE RULE EXPLAINED

It Will Not Be Enforced, He Says, So Far as It Relates to Government Deposits.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Secretary of the Treasury Shaw this afternoon issued the following circular to the national banks:

Treasury Department, office of the Secretaary, Washington, D. C., Oct. 4, 1902.—A wholly unauthorized and unfounded report appears to have been sent from Washington yesterday calculated to mislead, with reference to the action taken by the secretary of the treasury relative to the maintenance of reserve against government deposits secured by government bonds. That there may be no misunderstanding, either as to the law or the action taken by the department, you are advised:

The national banking act, as you are well aware, lays down the rule that all associations shall maintain certain reservo against all deposits, failing to do which the "comptroller of the currency may notify any association to make good such reserve." Failing to do which within 30 days, "the comptroler may with the concurrence of the secretary, appoint a receiver." etc.

The law, therefore, lays down the rule that the reserve shall be maintained, but lodges a discretion with the comptroller and with the secretary of the treasury as to the enforcement of the rule. You are therefore notified that the rule will not be enforced so far as it relates to government deposits secured by government bonds.

This does not apply to government deposits where other securities have or may be substituted.

It must be borne in mind in this connection that it is not the intention of the department to encourage increased credit. On the contrary, very great conservatism should be exercised.

But it is the desire of the department that no worthy business interest shall suffer simply because a bank has invested its money in government bonds to secure a government deposit, and to that extent has relieved the treasury from a growing surplus, and has thus restricted its capacity to extend accommodation.

FOR FEMININE "IMMORTALS"

Names Suggested for the Honor If France Had an Academy for Distinguished Women.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Femina, a French woman's review, lately asked its readers to give the names of the 40 French women who would be "immortals" if there were such a thing as a French academy for women. Among the names sent in were many well known to Americans, among them those of Sarah Bernhardt, Augusta Holmes, Rejane, "Gyp," Calve, Chaminade, Breval and Lucie Felix-Faure. There were also the names of the wives of writers well known in the United States, like Alphonse Daudet, Edmond Rostand and Octave Feuillet.

Infant Market in Hungary.

The orphanage at Temesvar in Hungary holds an "infant market" once a month, at which all the children of the orphanage will be on view, and at which persons desirous of adopting one or more of them can inspect them and take their choice. The first of these markets passed off very successfully. Thirty children were on view—boys and girls between the ages of 1 and 10 years. Nineteen of them were adopted, five boys and fourteen girls. Most of them were adopted by fairly well-to-do people, and one foster mother went straight to a lawyer's office and made her newly adopted child heiress to her fortune of $100,000.

Cures Goitre

Great Medical Discovery that Cures this Dangerous and Disfiguring Disease at Home Without Pain or Inconvenience.

TRIAL PACKAGE SENT FREE

A well known Cincinnati physician has had marvelous success with a remedy that always cures Goitre or Thick Neck quickly at home; and owing to the fact that most sufferers believe Goitre is incurable he sends a free trial package of his discovery so that patients may try it and know positively that their Goitre can be cured at home without pain, dangerous surgical operation or any inconvenience.

HORRORS! WHAT A NECK!

Doctor Haig can cure any Goitre quickly and safely in your own home. It makes no difference how serious your case may be, just write him today telling your age, size of your Goitre, what part of the neck it is on and how long you have had it and he will send you by return mail the free trial package, postpaid, of the remedy that will surely cure you.

In Bombay, India, 60,000 patients in that infected district were cured with this same remedy, and wherever used its success has been marvelous.

KAISER NOW POSES AS A KING OF HEARTS

CARDS MANUFACTURED AFTER HIS OWN PLANS.

DESIGNS ARE INTERESTING

Face Cards Are Those of Sovereigns and the Four Prettiest Actresses of Europe.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Emperor William of Germany has just had a pack of playing cards manufactured after his own designs, which are interesting from a personal as well as artistic viewpoint.

The collection not only passes in review the makers of contemporary history, but display no little ingenuity in the allotment of roles to world-wide celebrities. The queen of hearts represents Queen Victoria, the queen of diamonds the Dowager Queen of Italy, the queen of clubs the deceased Empress Elizabeth of Austria-Hungary, and the queen of spades the Czarina. But the selection of kings is more piquant. The Pope is happy enough to be the king of spades, King Humbert is king of clubs, Leopold II king of diamonds, and the Emperor himself, who has not the habit of being unmindful of his charms, figures as king of hearts.

He has given the four knaves the faces of Bismarck, Gladstone, Crispi and Waldeck-Rousseau. The four prettiest actresses in Europe are resplendent on the aces—unfortunately the secret of their names has as yet been suppressed, a pity, for the Emperor's taste in beauty would then be an open question.

ANOTHER DANGEROUS ARM.

New Quick-Firing Gun Being Tested in England.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The British war office is experimenting with a new quick-firing gun.

It was invented by W. S. Simpson, who asserts that he has found a way to get rid of 85 per cent of the recoil by chemical means and increase the velocity when the charge is fired. The invention takes the pressure off the breech, where it now is exerted, and utilizes it as a propellant.

It is said to effect a great saving in money, weight and space.

A CRUEL FATHER.

Too Shiftless to Do Anything for Good of the Family.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

The devoted mother, whose daughter was sufficiently advanced to have taken up the law for a career, looked at her husband reproachfully.

"Jennie and I have been talking the matter over," she said, "and we have reached the conclusion that you are not as devoted to her interests as you should be. She was admitted to the bar six months ago and you haven't given her a single case."

"But I have none," he protested. "I am not involved in legal complications of any kind."

"Then why don't you get involved in them?" was the retort. "Haven't you any sympathy for your only daughter? Don't you want to see her succeed? Why don't you put up a spite fence or refuse to pay a bill so that you'll be sued for it? I declare! you're the most shiftless and easy-going man I ever knew. If I were a man I guess I wouldn't let my daughter suffer for want of a little legal business!"

Tell Me a Friend Who is Sick.

No Money is Wanted. Simply Let Me Send Him My Book.

You have a friend who is sick.

Write me his name. That is all—just a postal card. Send it as an act of humanity.

Tell me which book he needs.

I will either cure that friend or pay all the cost of his treatment.

I will at least do the utmost that medicine can do. I will give the best advice in my power. I may fail; but there will not be a penny of cost if I do.

I will do this at the start:

I will send the sick one an order on his or her druggist for six bottles Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I will tell that druggist to let him test it for a month at my risk. If it succeeds the cost is $5.50. If it fails I will pay the druggist myself.

I will leave the decision to you.

Don't say that this is impossible, for I do just as I say. I have done it for years—done it with hundreds of thousands.

I will do it in any case, no matter how difficult. I only ask the sick one to be fair with himself and me.

I cannot always succeed. There are conditions, like cancer, for which I know no cure. But I alone am the loser when I fail.

My records for five years show that 39 out of each 40 who accepted my offer, paid for the medicine taken. That means that 39 in each 40 are cured. That fact alone makes this offer possible.

There are 39 chances in 40 that I can cure your friend.

My success is due to a lifetime of effort, in learning how to strengthen the inside nerves. It is this nerve power alone that operates the vital organs. No organ is weak when it has sufficient power. I bring back the nerve power—that is all. It is just like giving more steam to an engine that is weak.

My book will explain it all.

Every soul who reads this knows some sick friend. You know somebody who will never find another way to get well.

Let me tell that friend my way.

I must be successful. My remedy must do what I claim.

If it did not, such an offer as this would bankrupt me in a month.

The sick one is your friend—a stranger to me. If I am willing to do so much, won't you write a postal, that he or she may get well?

Simply state which book you want, and address Dr. Shoop, Box [illegible], Racine, Wis.

BLOOD POISON CAN BE CURED

Not by mercurial rubbings at Hot Springs, not by taking mercury or potash in the stomach, but only by the subcutaneous treatment administered by the INTERNATIONAL SERUM TOXIN CO.

F. H. COOPER, President. F. A. SIEBER, Medical Director.

TO relieve the suffering; comfort the afflicted; give hope to the despairing; to restore a diseased body and mind to health and happiness; to absolutely ERADICATE BLOOD POISON FROM THE SYSTEM—that is the greatest blessing which can be conferred upon suffering humanity; and for this wonderful discovery Dr. Sieber is entitled to receive the fervid thanks of men and women. Thousands of patients travel annually to Hot Springs, Ark., and other health resorts for relief from this most deadly of all ills that human flesh and blood is heir to. Others seek relief through their own physicians or consult some well-advertised concerns who claim to effect a cure; others, again, resort to various nostrums diligently and persistently advertised—all with the same result. The disease is temporarily allayed; it is what you might call whitewashed, only to break out in one, two or five years with increased blackness and malignity. MERCURY and POTASH do NOT cure. No. There is but one treatment that ERADICATES the poison from the system. To eradicate the disease, that's the thing; to make a person as well as one who never contracted it; to remove from the blood all taint of heredity, that is, as far as is known today, only accomplished by the treatment discovered by Dr. Sieber, the ingredients of which contain neither MERCURY nor POTASH nor any other deleterious poisons. And that his treatment does eradicate the poison from the blood is attested to by hundreds, yea thousands, of men and women who during the past twenty-five years have been cured. And NEVER a failure, not one; never a relapse, NOT one. Forty injections will eradicate every particle of taint from the blood, will make one a new man with renewed energy, provided the patient will, during treatment and for six months after, abstain from the use of intoxicants. In the tertiary stage of this terrible disease a person may be attacked by locomotor ataxia, paralysis, paresis, loss of eyesight, the lungs, kidneys or liver may be affected. Remove the cause and the effect is a well man. And not alone does this wonderful remedy remove all blood poison from the system, but it drives out at the same time the mercury with which the body is impregnated.

From the many desperate cases cured by Dr. Sieber's treatment we will only mention two—one the miraculous cure of Mr. M. F. Shiel, whose case was published in one of the Chicago papers a few weeks ago; the other that of Mr. Carmichael, whose case is reported in The Inter Ocean of this date. From these reports we extract the following:

"Grateful for the benefits I have received from the Sieber Serum Toxin cure for paralysis—caused by blood poison—I can do no less than make known its wonderful efficiency. Two years ago I received a paralytic stroke, was taken to the county hospital, where, after two months' treatment, I was discharged as incurable. I was in a desperate condition. My left leg and left arm were entirely useless, the right side of my face fearfully distorted, and my speech incoherent. A friend who saw my deplorable condition induced me to consult Dr. Sieber. I did so, though I had no hope that any treatment would relieve me, but, as events have proved, the Serum Toxin treatment accomplished all that was claimed for it; it saved my life and restored me to perfect health, and so I feel that ordinary thankfulness requires that I make the cure known to others who may be seriously affected. M. F. SHIEL."

*"About two and one-half years ago I became troubled with frequent and excruciating shooting pains in my legs, with involuntary twitchings. My eyesight became affected and my memory impaired. I went to a doctor, who at once said I must go to Hot Springs, Ark. 'Your trouble,' he said, 'is caused by the same malady that people go to Hot Springs to be cured of.' So down to Hot Springs I went, and took the baths and had myself dosed with mercury until I would have made a first-class barometer. Not a bit of improvement resulted. In fact, I got worse. * * * Becoming discouraged, I shook the dust of Hot Springs from me and came back to Chicago. Then I got another physician. * * * He proposed to cure me through the use of electricity and flagellation of my limbs, in order to restore the impaired circulation. * * * The tortures that I endured from this mode of treatment was something indescribable. Yet I could not see any benefit resulting. At last I went to the International Serum Company, 48 Van Buren street, as my only hope. I met Dr. Sieber, and he examined me thoroughly. He told me that my case was a pretty bad one, but that he was confident he could cure me. It was the latter part of May, 1901, when I took the first injection. The treatment consists entirely of subcutaneous injections, and these are administered once a day. By the first of June I could feel that I was improving. At the end of a month I was so much better that I could get about without an attendant. In November I threw away my cane and have had no occasion to use it since. * * * Today I am as bright mentally as I ever was, and as strong physically as any man of my age—42—that I know of. I have been 'restored to life.' CHARLES CARMICHAEL, 335 E. Indiana St."*

These cures border on the miraculous; they are marvelous surely, and the only reason why these men gave their testimony thus publicly and gratuitously was because they wished to aid those who might be similarly afflicted.

F. H. COOPER, Founder of The Big Store of Siegel, Cooper & Co., Indorses the Sieber Treatment.

About five or six years ago a friend called my attention to Dr. Sieber's treatment, with the object of enlisting my interest in the matter, for the purpose of giving to the discovery the publicity which, in his opinion, it deserved. His enthusiasm was such that I consented to look into the matter, with the result that, during all these years, I have watched carefully the worst cases which came to the doctor for treatment, and I am now pleased to testify that I am absolutely convinced that the treatment eradicates every taint from the blood. For the purpose of giving this boon to humanity world-wide publicity, I have organized and accepted the presidency of the International Serum Toxin Co. I named the company the "International" because the disease is international and because the company intends to open offices not only in the large centers of America, but in foreign countries as well. Dr. Sieber's discovery is of too vital interest to the human race to allow it to remain unknown. Indeed, it would seem almost criminal to allow people to die in despair and not tell them of this wonderful cure.

As to the Doctor, who has devoted his life to the discovery of this cure, he is entitled to the thanks of suffering humanity, and I predict that before long his name will be heralded as the greatest benefactor of the human race.

Chicago, May 1st, 1902.

Note: Since the above was published, shortly after the organization of the company, we have cured hundreds of chronic diseases, such as Locomotor Ataxia, Paralysis, Paresis, Loss of Eyesight, Aneurism of the Aorta (never before cured, Epilepsy, etc., all results of blood poison. During these five months we have cured any number of cases which were pronounced incurable by the attending physician. As President of the company I take pleasure in stating that my experience so far convinces me that there is absolutely no case of Blood Poison which the treatment will not cure, no matter of how long standing. Being the founder of The Big Store of Siegel, Cooper & Co. in Chicago, and at present Vice-President of The Big Store in New York, many of my friends expressed surprise that I should have entered into this field; but I will say right here I have never done so much good to humanity in all my life as I have during these few short months by giving publicity to this boon to humanity, and I know that by opening offices all over the country the benefits to mankind will be incalculable. For this reason I am proud of being at the head of this company—more proud than I ever was for managing The Big Store.

PEORIA WILL HAVE A RELIGIOUS THEATRE

Rev. George H. Simmons Has Rented the Coliseum and Will Begin With a Stereopticon and Brass Band.

He has in Contemplation a Religious Drama to Present the Gospel in Such a Way as Shall Win the People.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 4.—Will a religious Sunday theater prove popular with the people. This question has evidently been answered in the affirmative by Rev. George H. Simmons, the brilliant young pastor of the First Baptist Church in this city. Mr. Simmons has engaged the Coliseum, an immense brick structure with a seating capacity of 6000, and will give a series of Sunday services there with many theatrical adjuncts and effects. That his idea is a popular one is evidenced by every mail. Already he has received several handsome donations from business men in the city and has letters concerning the plan from all parts of the state.

Mr. Simmons says that he may in the future put on a religious drama. Mr. Simmons says the most dramatic book in the world is Job and cites that James Bailey's "Festus' and Goethe's "Faust" are based entirely on the book of Job and that for imagery there are no books like those of Isiah and Ezekiel.

Mr. Simmons has in his church an organization known as the Baptist Boys' Brigade and from this organization has been picked a band of 27 pieces, which will be used in his Sunday services. A stereopticon will also enter into the program and there will be other similar features.

He is entirely out of sympathy with the prevailing idea concerning modern church buildings. His church has recently bought a lot for a church at Olive and Center streets, and will soon erect thereon a building embodying his ideas. This will have baths at a nominal charge, free reading rooms, free rooms for educational purposes and perhaps a free gymnasium. Instead of building a series of independent churches in this city he proposes in time to have a number of divisions, as they are to be called, and the government of the same will be centralized.

Mr. Simmons was educated in Kentucky. He was born in Bullitt County, and attended Georgetown College. He received the degree of doctor of law at the Southwestern Baptist University at Jackson, Tenn. He was afterward called to the First Baptist Church at Terre Haute, and achieved a distinguished success there. Three years ago he came to Peoria. At that time the First Baptist Church here was in a sadly disorganized state, and the attendance at the services barely averaged more than a hundred people. Now standing room only is the invariable rule.

The question of Sunday theaters was brought up by the attempt of the city authorities to close the Main Street Theater, a vaudeville house, on Sunday evenings, at the same time allowing others to run. This raised such a storm of indignation that subsequently the order was rescinded.

Mr. Simmons then took up the idea of a religious Sunday theater. Concerning his plans he says:

By REV. GEORGE H. SIMMONS.

OUR reason for going to the Coliseum is that we may have more room. The general theme of sermons immediately before us will be 'From the Crade to the Throne,' being a connected study in the life of Christ. I shall use the stereopticon in order to show the actual scenes under contemplation. The newness of our service consists in its oldness. The hymns we sing are the old hymns, the Scriptures we read are the old Scriptures, and our services are so flexible as to be void of established method or set plan. We have ever eschewed clap-trap means and make no sensational announcements. In fact, this is the first time I have ever used the stereopticon or any other such aid to portray a lesson

I have been accused of dramatizing my sermons. I was totally unconscious of this until my attention was called to the matter. I have no excuse to offer. How can any one with such a theme as a preacher has, and with such a responsibility as is resting upon him, be other than dramatic! That is, if by dramatic you mean vivid word pictures, heroic characters, thrilling interest and inspirational enthusiasm.

As to music. Sometimes we have a quartet or other special music, but at no time do we have anything of this order unless it is the best. Our rule is either have the best or nothing at all. People are too busy and the hour is too valuable to give place and practice to neophytes in music. We always have good congregational singing. Everything from start, to finish, is to lead to just one end—worship. This, as you know, is the final word of all religion, this is the sublimity beyound which there is no other expression.

History proves that all mankind wants something or somebody to worship, the fault of the day is that he has not opportunity. I refuse to believe that there lives a human being who does not crave for someone, be he God or man, that can and will lead him from the humdrum of everyday life up the mount of transfiguration.

Men do not go to church to be scolded or trifled with. They come, bringing hurt hearts to be healed, and broken bodies and troubled minds to be comforted, and blackened souls to be cleansed by the white light of truth. As to our purpose, it is simply to find the point of contact with the people and to begin at that point and present the Gospel of Jesus as the power to meet all counter attractions.

If the theater or any other agency can take history or fiction and make it more attractive than the church's presentation of the greatest story of the most dramatic event in all life, then the theater and not the church is the inspiration of the people, then Shakspeare and not Christ is king of men, then the actor and not the preacher is the public teacher. The gage has been cast and accepted. I have no more time to write, the noiseless battle is on, the scepter is in the trembling balance, even now I hear a noise of victory, but I can destroy neither the banner nor the bearer. I will go to see, and return with the shield, or on it."

REV. GEORGE H. SIMMONS.

TOO GREAT EXPENSE

Not the Reason.

It is not because Pyramid Pile Cure is so expensive that many people decline to give it a trial, but because they find it too great a tax on their credulity to believe that the published letters bearing testimony to the merit of this remedy are genuine and bona fide; especially to those who have realized the suffering incident to piles is it incredible that anyone who has been afflicted 25 and 30 years with the worst forms of protruding and bleeding piles should be cured by the application of a simple remedy, when their physician has assured them that the only relief is in a surgical operation. This is rightfully viewed with dread by all those afflicted, as it means at the least a great shock to the nervous system, with more than a possibility of utter collapse and death; in the majority of cases, too, there is a return of the complaint, owing to the fact that the cause is not removed.

The proprietors of Pyramid Pile Cure agree to forfeit one thousand dollars to anyone who will show a single published testimonial to be not genuine and unsolicited; this latter feature is most gratifying, inasmuch as these letters are written solely out of gratitude, and with the hope that those who are afflicted as the writers have been may learn that relief is at hand, at a comparatively trifling expense. Pyramid Pile Cure is for sale by druggists at fifty cents a package, or will be mailed by the makers to any address upon receipt of price.

Mr. Wm. Lichtenwalter, head of the largest printing house in Canton, Ohio, says: "It is with the utmost pleasure and satisfaction that I can say I believe I am cured of protruding and bleeding piles, after suffering more than twenty-five years. I have been in bed for two weeks at a time. I have not suffered in the least for over a year, and I used only three fifty-cent boxes of Pyramid Pile Cure. I advise every person suffering with this distressing and painful complaint to give the remedy a trial. I have every confidence [illegible]

COUNTRY CHECKS CLEARING HOUSE

CREDIT MEN'S ASSOCIATION WILL ADOPT BOSTON PLAN.

LOCAL BANKERS CO-OPERATE

James C. Hallock of the New York Clearing House Will Present the Project.

A. H. Foote, secretary of the St. Louis Credit Men's Association, yesterday announced that the association has inaugurated a movement for the clearance of country checks through the St. Louis clearing house on a plan similar to that in successful operation in Boston since 1899.

"This, of course, involves the active co-operation of the St. Louis banks and those banks within a reasonable distance," he says. "If a sufficient number of country banks would enter into the reciprocal agreement just as the Boston banks did.

"The clearing house management of Boston has stated to Secretary Foote that the plan not only works admirably, but that there has been an immense saving to the Boston banks in the handling of country checks since the "clearing" was adopted. So long as 20 years ago it cost the Boston banks $400,000 per annum to handle checks of 277 country banks in New England on the old plan, while the clearance plan last year enabled the associated banks of Boston to handle a much greater volume of business (nearly $560,000,000) drawn on about 600 New England banks at a total cost of but $40,000, or about 7½c per $1000.

"It is evident to the officers of the St. Louic Credit Men's Association," Mr. Foote, says, that the concentration of the business effects a saving of the money their members and other depositors pay for handling checks, and much of which, under the present plan, is cast to the four winds. The reciprocal agreement provides that the country banker will eliminate his charge to the city banker, provided the city banker accepts from his depositors checks drawn on the country banks. Here is the first step in this economic problem—then comes the question of postage, stationery and clerical labor. It is said that the aggregate charges made against three of our large dry goods jobbers alone by their bankers is about $40,000 per annum, and it is probable that the banks of St. Louis receive from their depositors approximately three-quarters of a million annually in collection charges on checks.

"The St. Louis Credit Men's Association has invited a gentleman to address them at their meeting on Oct. 23 who is an experienced banker—a student of economic banking problems and formerly an officer of the New York Clearing House Association—James C. Hallock, who was instrumental in bringing the bankers of New England and those of Boston together, and thereby saving the Boston merchants and bankers much money. Mr. Hallock is endeavoring to establish a "free zone" around New York City, and has secured signatures of about three hundred bankers thus far. Before addresing the St. Louis association and a considerable number of of guests who are to be invited to hear him, Mr. Hallock will have a conference with prominent bankers in the states of Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois and the officers of our St. Louis financial institutions, and some large mercantile concerns, so as to fully grasp the situation which holds here.

"This present movement to abolish the check nuisance had its origin among some Washington avenue jobbers, who appealed to the Credit Men's Association, of which they are members."

SKELETON KEPT FOR YEARS.

Gruesome Find in an Old Trunk Left in a Warehouse.

RAPPAHANNOCK, Va., Oct. 4.—Bayard Wright, local agent for the Weems Steamboat Co., discovered a skeleton in a trunk which had been stored in the company's warehouse here for about eight years. The skeleton was apparently that of a child 12 years old. Some tattered clothing hung around the remains.

The trunk was rather more than medium size, and the body was considerably bent in order to get it inside. The trunk and contents were thrown into the river and were carried down stream by the tide. There was no name or address of any kind on the trunk. Mr. Wright thinks it was brought here on one of the Weeems steamers.

FIRST CUBAN FLAG RAISED BY GEN. LOPEZ NOW IN UNITED STATES

NOW IN POSSESSION OF A NEW ORLEANS MAN.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 4.—Carefully in one of the historic chests of the Sanford home, corner of South Derbigny and Palmyra streets, is the original Cuban flag of the Lopez expedition, which went down in defeat in 1852. The expedition failed and Lopez was killed, but the idea of liberty then instilled in the Cuban breast has never died. It now controls the island, and the presence of the Lopez flag in this city since the inauguration of President Palma and the formation of the Cuban Congress has caused even a higher historic value and appreciation to be placed upon it.

"That flag was in our home for many years before I ever knew its history," said Mr. Frank Sanford, son of the deceased Capt. George A. Sanford. "When the Virginius affair came up, Mr. Bidwell, a friend of my father, asked him for the loan of the emblem that he might place it across his cafe, the old Phoenix, on St. Charles street. While there a Spaniard came into the place to take a drink. He had poured out his liquor, when, glancing up, he saw the beautiful folds and the one star nagging across the room. He was so enraged at seeing the flag that he threw the contents of the glass at the silken bars.

"You can see the spots now. Wherever the liquor touched the silk the moths have begun to cut it. In no other place has the silk cut a bit, showing the rare material of which it was made.

"When this incident came up my father told me the story of the flag and how he had come into possession of it. In Quackenbos' History of the United States you can read an account of the Lopez expedition to Cuba in 1852. Lopez was a New Orleans man—a Spaniard by birth—but he was adventurous, and being disgusted with the Spanish rule in Cuba, he determined to lead an expedition from this port to the island and overthrow the Spanish regime. It had been arranged that as soon as Lopez landed with his forces that the Cubans should be under arms and ready to march to the front with him. But the Cubans failed him and his expedition was slaughtered. He himself was killed in this second attempt at Cuban liberty. The history says all Lopez's men were killed save a few that were rescued by the schooner Horent.

SHERIFF GEORGE EDWARDS TALKS INTERESTINGLY.

MUNFORDVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—Hon. George Al. Edwards, sheriff of Green County, was in this city, and stated that the report of his Green County feud, which appeared Sept. 16, was not correct in several particulars, and asked that certain corrections be made.

Mr. Edwards said: "I never killed eight men in that feud. In self-defense I may have killed and wounded some, but to say I killed eight men is an exaggeration." He further said: "It was a mistake to say there is a possibility of the old feud breaking out again. Of the men whom I fought, all the survivors have sheltered under my roof, and we are now friends.

"Mr. Edwards, is it true that during your feud you were once brought to bay in your barn and surrounded by your enemies and kept there several days, until you and your son, who was with you, shot your way out?" was asked him.

"Yes, sir; that's true."

At another time, in the night, he shot one of the enemy in the leg while the latter was acting as a decoy by carrying a cowbell in Mr. Edwards' cornfield, hoping he would come out into the field to drive the cows out of the corn and they could then shoot him.

"How did you dodge that trap?" was asked.

"In the simplest way in the world. I started to drive the cows out, as I at first thought they were, but before I got to them I noticed the bell was moving steadily along and tinkling with great regularity. This caused me to halt, and, after thinking for a moment, I knew that if it was a cow carrying a bell she would stop every now and then to nip a roasting ear, and there would be a short interval while the head was up that the bell would be silent. I crept up a little closer and waited four or five minutes, and the bell tinkled steadily on and seemed to be moving in a small circle, and whatever was carrying it never stopped to pull an ear of corn. This convinced me what it really was and I raised my gun and fired at the sound of the bell. Quick as a flash the bell dropped and I could hear a man running. The next day I found the bell where he had dropped it.

And thus the interesting Mr. Edwards, who is now a good citizen and a high officeholder, talked on, telling incident after incident of the stirring times of his youth. He closed by insisting again that there was no possibility of the old feud ever breaking out again.

BOY WAS CREMATED IN REFUSE BURNER

CAUGHT IN MACHINERY AND DRAWN INTO IT.

BODY CONSUMED AT ONCE

His Horrified Fellow Workmen Were Unable to Help Him in Time to Save His Life.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 4.—Terrified, and with screams that could be heard above the roar of the ponderous machinery, Joseph Belloni, a young Italian, aged 15 years, met one of the most horrible deaths on record at the mill of the Louisiana Cypress Lumber Co.

Belloni was employed to watch the conveyor that carries the refuse wood bark and other scrapings to the top of an immense refuse burner, where they are reduced to ashes. The furnace is a huge affair, with open top, the conveyor running up an incline to its top, where it dumps the refuse, falling into the redhot blaze that is burning at the bottom.

Through some unknown means Belloni's foot got caught in the chain of the conveyor and he was thrown on his back, directly across the ascending contrivance. Although he struggled with all his might to release himself, his prostrate position rendered his efforts futile, and when he realized that he was being borne to a terrible death in the seething flames below he uttered pitiful cries for help. But no one could help him.

His fellow workmen could see him slowly ascending the death-trap, but they were powerless.

Foreman Louis Soria and John Harrison, the negro fireman, saw the unfortunate youth and were frenzied with his cries, but the boy was 10 feet above their heads and they could not stop the machinery in time. The moment he reached the opening he disappeared and no more was heard.

Word of the awful calamity spread through the mill and the machinery was stopped and the fire in the refuse furnace extinguished, but only bits of charred bones could be found, the body having been consumed so quickly.

COMPLETE HOME OUTFITS.

News of Great Interest to All Who Are Starting Housekeeping.

The matter of expense need no longer prevent folks from establishing a comfortable home of their own. The People's House Furnishing Co., 1121-1123-1125 Olive street has made the task easy and within the reach of every man and woman in St. Louis. Modern merchandising has wrought many changes and brought the public many conveniences—but none so great as the People's offerings of complete home outfits, which are fully explained in their large advertisement on another page in this issue of the Post-Dispatch.

A small outlay of $7 furnishes two rooms complete with all the necessary furniture, carpets, curtains and stoves; $10 furnishes three rooms and $15 puts you in possession of four rooms completely furnished—the balance on terms of payment to suit the convenience and circumstances of the purchaser.

The success of these offerings has been truly phenomenal and have stamped the People's as the great home outfitters of St. Louis. Day after day the People's is filled with happy young men and women who are about to embark on the sea of matrimony as well as older married folks who have tired of the monotony of boarding and long for the delights and comforts of a cozy home of their own.

Indications point to a tremendous rush of business all this month at the People's, and preparations have been made to wait on every one promptly and deliver the goods in the quickest and most careful manner.

The Laddie Knew.

From the Scottish American.

At a recent school examination by the school board an officious member intimated that he would give a certain class a lesson on "wool." After lecturing to the children for a considerable time without any appearance of attention from the class he stopped short and began questioning one dull-looking boy. "Well, my boy," said he, taking hold of the boy's jacket, "what is this jacket made of?" The boy, hanging down his head, remained quite silent. "Come, come, my boy," the member coaxingly said; "don't you know what your jacket is made of?" With eyes still on the floor the boy answered, "It was made oot o' ma faither's auld breeks."

FASTED FOR ONE WEEK.

Drank an Average of a Gallon of Water Daily and Feels Better Now.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—Louis Kieffer, 20 years old, a clerk and an athlete, has just completed a seven-days' fast.

"I fasted purely as an experiment," said Kieffer. "The second day I felt very hungry, but I would not go near the table and kept away from places where I could see anything to eat.

"After the third day the gnawing in my stomach was entirely gone, and, barring the fact that I felt dizzy once or twice, the fast did not affect me thereafter. I continued at work every day and worked one night until 10:30 o'clock. At the conclusion of my day's work I would exercise for an hour and a half, and found that the exercise did me lots of good. Prior to beginning my fast I could barely muscle a 60-pound dumbbell with my left hand, and at the end of the fast I could still muscle it, so I figure that I lost nothing in muscular strength, though I lost about thirteen pounds of flesh.

"I broke my fast yesterday morning at 9 o'clock and ate a little fruit. I took nothing solid all day, eating a cereal at night, and also this morning, with some soft-boiled eggs and cocoa.

"Each day I would drink an average of a gallon of water, hot water when I could get it, at other times plain hydrant water. I believe I could have fasted another week with ease.

"Anybody who has stomach trouble would do well to try fasting for a week. You feel like you have a new stomach at the end of that time. Fasting purifies the blood and does one a great deal of good."

KILLED BY A BROKEN BELT.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Oct. 4.—A fatal accident occurred at Elmer Hubbard's sawmill, resulting in the death of Samuel Crecilius, who was employed at the mill. A belt broke and one end of it struck Crecilius in the stomach and caused instant death.

The men at the mill saw him when he fell, but did not believe he was seriously hurt. They thought his falling was a joke. Soon they called to him, but, getting no answer, they investigated and found that he was dead.

PRESIDENT PARDONS A DESERTER FOR THE SAKE OF HIS FAITHFUL WIFE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—It was with a smile of tenderness on his features that President Roosevelt dictated and signed a pardon for a deserter from the United States army.

On his desk in his library were spread a dozen or more blue sheets of paper and envelopes. The paper was small, the envelopes square. They exhaled a delicate odor of mignonette. And the handwriting was a woman's.

With the smile still on his face President Roosevelt reached forth his hand and tapped a little bell. His stenographer came. The President spoke rapidly. The stenographer went out, returned in a few minutes with a typewritten paper and beneath it there soon appeared in bold, black letters, "Theodore Roosevelt."

The paper was a pardon for Rhinehold Lammert, deserter from the United States army, sentenced to three years' imprisonment in Castle Williams, Governors Island.

It meant very great happiness for the writer of the letters on the blue migonette scented paper. When Lammert enlisted and was sent to Porto Rico, all because of an outburst of fiery patriotism, he found down there in the tropics that he used to lie awake nights staring at the big silver moon, utterly miserable because he couldn't forget a very pretty girl of the name of Anna Kimball, of Greenville, N. J. So one day he secured the discharge papers of another soldier. And back to Greenville came Lammert, and there was a wedding. Greenville's local newspaper printed a very pretty notice about the returned soldier and his bride.

Somewhere near Greenville the paper fell into the hands of a bronze-faced Porto Rican campaigner, who wore epaulettes and who remembered Lammert as a deserter. Not many mornings afterward, as the pretty bride was pouring Lammert his breakfast coffee, a corporal came into the house and put a heavy hand on the deserter.

The bride, left alone, wept and was miserable. Lammert was sentenced. She went to Washington and tried to see President Roosevelt and the secretary of war. Then she wrote to the President. She got polite replies from secretaries, but she kept on writing to the President. Finally the secretary told the President about it and Mr. Roosevelt read the letters. He forgot the affairs of state, reading the heart story of a pretty baker's daughter.

Then it was that his face softened and he gently smiled. He smiled all the while he dictated the pardon to his secretary. He was smiling when he signed it.

Sociable.

From the Philadelphia Press.

"Well, well," remarked Farmer Korntop at the zoo, "this here lion 'pears to be real good natured."

TOOK THE DOG'S HEAD.

YORKVILLE, S. C., Oct. 4.—George W. Williams left for Baltimore yesterday to undergo the Pasteur treatment against hydrophobia. He was bitten on the hand by his pet collie last Friday afternoon, and the subsequent conduct of the dog gave rise to the suspicion that it had gone mad.

Physicians examined its stomach for poison yesterday, and being unable to find any such symptoms advised Mr. Williams to take the dog's head to Baltimore, and if the experts should discover hydrophobia germs to take the treatment.

Why Gnats Dance.

From Pearson's Weekly.

A correspondent noting what is fairly well known among entomologists, that many species of flies congregate together to dance, says it is well known that this is for a very utilitarian purpose—the selection of a mate. At the present moment there are thousands of so-called "winter midge" (trichocera hiemalis) dancing at the end of his garden, and every now and again paired couples can be seen to separate themselves from the crowd. On the previous day, when it was very windy, there were but a few about, but three or four found the shelter of a doorway, and after a lengthy dance, seen from a darkened room against a twilight sky, a paired couple found a resting place on his coat sleeve.

POST-DISPATCH BUREAU,
1345 Pennsylvania Avenue.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Gov. William A. Stone of Pennsylvania will soon become the man of the hour.

The preponderance of sentiment is turning in his direction as the only man who can apply an effective remedy in the strike situation.

The President proposes to take three or four days in which to consider the coal shortage in all its phases.

Tonight he has it in mind to request Gov. Stone to come here for a conference. An invitation has not yet been extended but it is strongly indicated that this will be the next move in the plan to settle the strike.

All of the cabinet members do not agree on this, however. When asked today if the President would probably send for Gov. Stone the cabinet officer closest to the President suggested that the governor is the head of a distinct governmental organization, with official duties clearly defined by law, and it might be questioned if the President could, with propriety, advise him in the performance of his duties.

While it was not said in so many words the inference was that the governor could rightfully resent any dictation on the part of the head of the national government. But it was not said that there might be ways by which it could be impressed upon Gov. Stone that the government looked to him to adopt some vigorous measures.

PRESIDENT STIL LHOPEFUL.

This cabinet member did not see any warrant for the use of troops through the operations of the interstate commerce law, but was not willing to venture an opinion upon the extent to which the Sherman act could be applied and employed as against the Mine Workers' Association.

It was made manifest that the President still hopes to find some way by which he can bring about a settlement of the coal strike, and that he will not cease constant consideration of the subject until he either does find a way or sees that he must abandon all attempt in that direction.

He is convinced that the coal operators will not yield from their position.

He thinks they will allow their property to go to ruin, at a loss of untold millions, before they will either arbitrate with the mine workers or give John Mitchell any recognition.

The President has considered the question of an extra session of Congress, and is still considering it, but at present he is averse to such a course.

He cannot send federal troops into the coal field until Gov. Stone has exhausted all his resources and has called on the President for aid.

NO CALL FOR TROOPS.

The governor of Pennsylvania has not put more than one-quarter of the available militia of Pennsylvania into the field. He has given no intimation that he cannot preserve order. Consequently, the President is powerless in this direction, as matters now stand.

The President has been informed by his legal advisers that there is no recourse in the courts of the United States. Therefore, he has eliminated the operators from the situation.

Some of his advisers are asking that he say to John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, that he believes there is no hope from the operators. He has been asked to tell Mitchell that the strike must stop

The plans of some of the cabinet is to ask the strikers to sacrifice themselves for the public need. The President will be urged to tell Mitchell that the only solution of the difficulty, the only way to relieve the distress and suffering that must ensue, is for the strikers to go back and trust in the good faith of Congress and the President to relieve their necessities and settle their disputes at some later date.

President Roosevelt will be urged to say to Mitchell that he knows this is an extreme remedy—it is like asking a human being to do a superhuman thing, but to assure the leader of the strikers that the sympathies of the entire public will be with him and the miners if they will make this sacrifice, and that there is no doubt that Congress will pass a compulsory arbitration law if such a law can be passed under the constitution or devise some other legislation that will bring the operators to terms.

WILL MITCHELL DO IT?

The President's advisers know it will take a very big man to adopt this method of getting coal for the people. They realize that he will make a suggestion to Mitchell that involves a virtual surrender of all Mitchell has been fighting for for years. Still, the President's advisers think the resultant good would be so great and the public sympathy and applause for the strikers so abundant that Mitchell should not hesitate. They are confident, too, that a remedy can be found, if not in Congress, at least in the legislature of Pen[illegible]ania. The plan may appear quixotic [illegible] hell. There is no telling about that. [illegible]

Sixty Thousand Persons Will Form a Great Funeral Cortege to Honor Author's Memory.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—The interview between Madame Zola and Capt. Dreyfus was profoundly touching, as described to the Post-Dispatch by Dr. Larat, who was present.

Mme. Dreyfus explained that it would add to her sorrow if any unseemly disturbance took place at the cemetery, and told the captain that the prefect of police feared a scene.

"Madame Zola," said he, "I am possessed of feelings of the most profound respect and sympathy for you, but it will be a bitter sorrow and disappointment to me if I cannot follow Zola's body to the grave.

It is an imperious duty I must perform at all hazards and at whatever cost to myself. Zola, who believed in duty before anything, would approve of my decision."

The captain then expressed a determination to attend the funeral.

Mme. Dreyfus, however, insisted that he should not. With great emotion and tears, she influenced him to give way.

The captain was apparently in a state of suppressed excitement; his frame trembled violently as he almost shouted:

"They will say I am a coward. You know I am no coward."

Eventually, after further pressing, he agreed to give way.

The subscriptions to the fund for a monument to Zola have reached the sum of $3400, including $60 from Dreyfus and $60 each from his two brothers and his father-in-law.

It is estimated that sixty thousand members of various societies will take part in tomorrow's funeral procession. Zola's body, on the arrival of the cortege at the cemetery, will be placed on a catafalque, around which the members of the family and intimate friends of the dead novelist will group themselves. After the orations have been delivered the delegations attending will be allowed to file past, followed by the general public. The body will then be replaced in the hearse and conveyed to a temporary vault.

An elephant broke away from his moorings in Hashagen's Park, Grand avenue and Meramec street, at 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon and ran to Osceola street, two blocks south, before being recaptured.

The capture was affected by a squad of policemen, headed by Mounted Sergeant Boland, assisted by Anton Gaston, the elephant's keeper.

The pursuing policemen were followed in the chase by a large crowd, and pedestrians and vehicle drivers in the path of the fugitive elephant busied themselves getting out of his ponderous way.

The elephant is known as "Lillian." While being led from its paddock out to the "Streets of Cairo" to give the exhibition it has been giving every afternoon of the carnival it was seized with a desire to leave the park.

It broke away from Gaston, the keeper, and trotted out into Grand avenue. Its flight and its capture occasioned much excitement in the neighborhod of the park.

SNYDER GUILTY

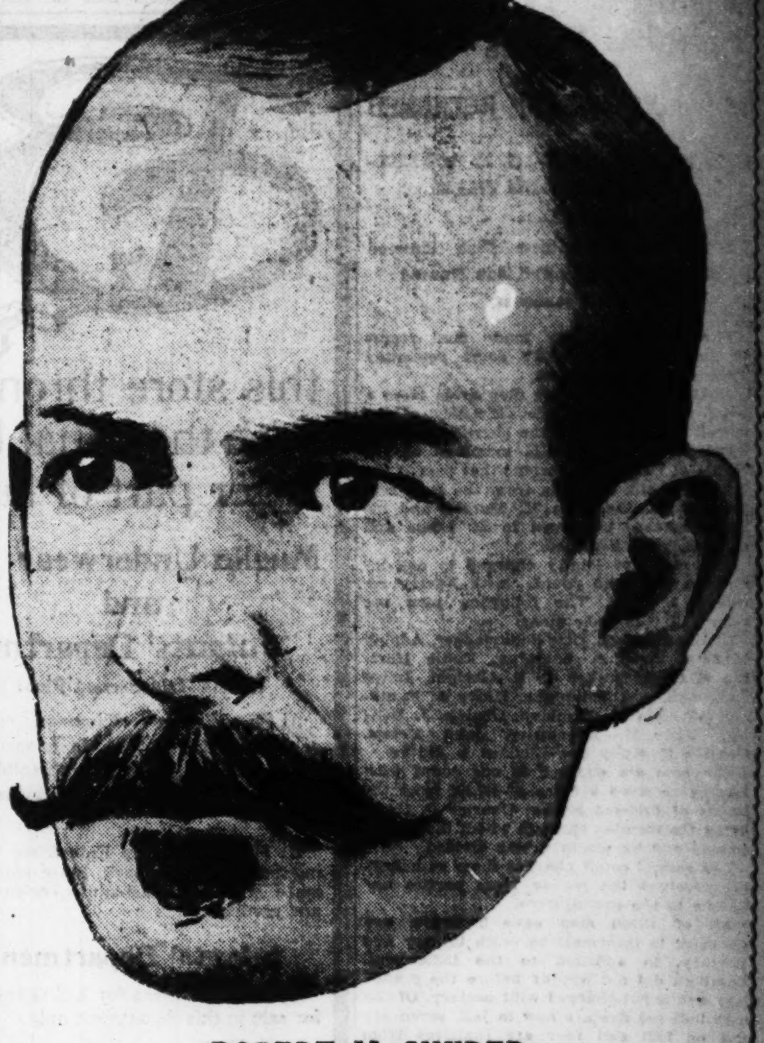
OF BRIBERY

SENTENCE 5 YEARS

Jury Was Out Fifty-Nine Minutes.

DEFENDANT THANKS THE POST-DISPATCH FOR FAIRNESS.

Appeal Taken When Trial Was Concluded at 10:45 Last Night and Snyder Was Released on $25,000 Bond.



ROBERT M. SNYDER.

"AT THE MOST BRIBERY IS A CONVENTIONAL OFFENSE"—JUDGE PRIEST.

Judge H. S. Priest in his address to the jury in the Snyder trial last night made this startling declaration:

"There are worse crimes than bribery.

"At most bribery is a conventional offense. In most civilisations it is a trifling offense.

"Until recently it was directed more against the bribe taker than the bribe giver."

He then drew a picture to maintain this contention. "The public servant," he said, "is trusted to carry on your business and mine. You and I are sponsor for him and he is to represent our interests. When he betrays us for a bribe it is he who becomes the real culprit.

"Bribery, I say, is trifling, compared to other things."

At 10:45 last night the jury in the famous Snyder bribery case returned a verdict in Judge Ryan's court finding Robert McClure Snyder guilty and fixing his punishment at five years in the penitentiary.

Snyder's crime was bribing Councilman Fred G. Uthoff, with $50,000 to vote for the Central Traction bill which passed the Council in April, 1898.

A slight knock on the door leading to the room whither the jury had retired was the signal that a decision had been reached.

The sign was a great relief to the immense crowd which thronged the courtroom and waited its coming with suspense.

Deputy Sheriff Goodwin stepped forward and, opening the door, met Charles Wall, foreman of the jury, who stated that the verdict was ready.

The deputy closed the door and hurried to Judge Ryan's private office.

"It is coming now,' said Attorney Jourdan, turning to his client. The defendant said nothing. His face was in deep repose and absolutely expressionless.

He moved slightly in his chair as if to get into a more comfortable position.

His head was leaning partly on his right arm, which rested on the table at his side.

There was not an audible sound in the courtroom as Judge Ryan stepped onto the bench. Twenty feet away the clock could be heard ticking.

"Mr. Sheriff," asked Judge Ryan of Deputy Goodwin," is the jury ready to report?"

Mr. Goodwin replied affirmatively, and was then ordered to bring the jurors in.

John R. Williams was the first of the jurymen to appear. The others followed in single file.

As they sat down Judge Ryan again asked:

"Gentlemen, are you ready to report?" And again receiving an assent, he instructed the foreman to hand the verdict to the clerk

RENDERING THE VERDICT.

Mr. Wall took the paper to Clerk Chamberlain who adjusted his glasses, and, looking it over carefully, straightened up for the reading.

The clerk stood facing the jury. He crumpled the document slightly, and then in a low, distinct tone of voice, with just a quiver in his tones, read:

"We, the jury find the defendant, Robert M. Snyder, guilty of bribery as charged in the indictment, and fix his punishment at five years in the penitentiary."

"Gentlemen," said the court, as the clerk finished, "is that your verdict?"

On behalf of the jury Mr. Wall affirmed the verdict.

"I move, your honor," said Mr. Jourdan, rising, "that the jury be polled."

Each juryman answered "yes, sir; [illegible] is our verdict," in firm voice.

"So saith the jurors, and so say they all," said the clerk, turning to the judge.

Snyder watched the proceedings intently. His usual calmness never left him and he smiled as one of his attorneys whispered to him.

The verdict was greeted with an audible comment of approval on the part of many in the audience and the sheriffs called loudly for order.

Judge Ryan turned to the jury and informed them they would be released just as soon as they could get the vouchers for their service from the clerk. His honor then said:

"I thank you, gentlemen, one and all for the close attenion you have given to this case. Considering that we have been in session so long I shall merely reprimand Mr. Davis for coming late the other morning. Gentlemen, you are now excused from further service."

At this juncture, 11 o'clock, Judge Priest, senior counsel for the defendant, walked into the courtroom. His face was just a trifle flushed and his collar was wilted. He was placid and suave as usual.

After whispering to Mr. Jourdan, he sat down, just in front of Snyder.

"I suppose," said Judge Ryan, addressing Mr. Jourdan, who was close to the judge's desk, "that you desire to file a motion for a new trial.'

"We do, your honor," replied Mr. Jourdan. "I have the papers ready now, but desire to make a few alterations."

The formal allegations accompanying the motion were set forth in three or four typewritten pages.

Judge Priest, Mr. Lehmann, Maj. Warner and Mr. Jourdan then glanced over the document, and after making a few corrections, handed it to the court.

Judge Ryan took the paper and announced that the motion would be passed on at the next term of court, which opens tomorrow. He fixed the appeal bond at $25,000, which was immediately signed by Judge Priest and Mr. Jourdan.

"That is all, gentlemen, I suppose," said the judge, looking towards counsel for the defendant.

Following the reply Judge Ryan said;

"The court will now adjourn."

"O, yez; yez," cried out the sheriff.

They left the Four Courts building at the Clark avenue entrance and walked east on Clark avenue, proceeding to the Southern Hotel, where Snyder is staying.

During [illegible] absence, the crowd gr[illegible] [illegible]ols were formed [illegible] Courts [illegible] diction hung ju[illegible] had show[illegible] jury that Snyder is and has been a resident of Kansas City.

In the whirl of the current of intense interest which revolved around him, Snyder sat apparently immobile, with the unpleased, slightly cynical expression which his nervous features have worn since the trial commenced.

He sat with Attorney Morton Jourdan and a few friends who had gathered to converse with him.

C To the Post-Dispatch he said:

"The trial has, of course, been an ordeal to me, but at no time have I been worried. I have, however, been annoyed.

"My attorneys have handled the case well, and I am pleased with their efforts."

"We haven't shown the white flag at any stage of the proceedings," interrupted Mr. Jourdan.

"No, you bet you have not," said Snyder, earnestly.

Continuing, Mr. Snyder said; "The Post-Dispatch has printed the testimony as it was given and I thank the paper for its fairness. I have no criticism to make. While the trial was in progress I did not desire to make any statement, and for that reason remained quiet."

The speeches of the counsel, two hours for each side, covered the case in every phase, although the lawyers for the defense gave little time to the actual charge of bribery. Judge Priest declared, regarding bribery, that it was, at worst, "only a conventional crime," an assertion which furnished Mr. Folk, following him, with some telling periods.

As had been anticipated, Judge Priest and Attorney Lehmann placed the banner boodler, Uthoff, high on the roll of shameless criminals. Mr. Folk and his colleagues, however, made no defense of Uthoff, and no explanation for his acts. They merely stood on the ground that bribery must be proven by the accomplices to the crime.

The most telling reference of the argument was made by Circuit Attorney Folk, when he declared that truer words were never written than those when Snyder paid Uthoff $500 for signing: "You are as far above offering a bribe as I am above accepting one."

BISHOP'S SPEECH.

C. Orrick Bishop, opening for the state, emphasized the appalling condition of things when legislators meet to determine what price they shall charge for their votes and when they accept salaries for favoring or opposing private interests. "Such," he said, "was the condition when this defendant arrived in St. Louis and introduced himself to the man who may perhaps be termed the biggest scoundrel of the whole transaction."

Mr. Bishop said that street railway matters had come to such a pass that the mayor, whatever his motives, was vetoing every bill that came along, and the promoters had to get votes enough to pass the bill over the mayor's veto.

He made a point by calling attention to the fact that in seeking to establish Snyder's residence in Missouri the defense had summoned as witnesses the butcher, the iceman and the postman, instead of those who had with him close daily business relations.

MAJ. WARNER'S ADDRESS.

aj. William Warner of Kansas City, who spoke first for the defense, spoke with fervor and the ringing periods of the veteran political campaigner.

Whatever [illegible]

who says that he sold himself in the same matter once, twice, three times, is and must remain the state's star witness.

"Mr. Johns and Mr. Aubere depended on their memories. The records of incorporation of the Central Traction Co. speak in the certain tone of sworn evidence. The defendant's marriage license shows that he regarded Kansas City as his home.

"If I were going to prove my residence in Kansas City I would bring just such evidence as has been brought in this case."

LEHMANN'S SPEECH.

Fred W. Lehmann's speech, the second for the defense, was delivered in intense and yet ponderous manner. He spoke for 30 minutes.

"If the state," Mr. Lehmann said, had produced the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, the doctor, the lawyer, the minister, the neighbor to show that Mr. Snyder resided in New York could the defense have combatted such testimony? Would you not have considered it absolutely convincing?

You must weigh this evidence just as strongly in favor of the defendant as you would against him, or it must be acknowledged that you are allowing other motives to govern your action.

"No one has denied that Mr. Snyder originally resided in Kansas City. It has never been shown that he left Kansas City. When did he leave the state? Did he change it when he removed to a costly home in a fashionable section of Kansas City from a less valuable house? If he had meant to sell out and leave the city, would this have been to his advantage?"

Mr. Lehmann cited the marriage license and other documentary evidence. He then described the organization by Snyder of the City National Bank. "You can't organize a bank in a day," he declared.

Mr. Lehmann concluded by a repetition of his appeal to the jury to consider what their verdict would be if the state had presented the same evidence of residence which the defense gave.

"There cannot be two truths in respect to one issue," declared Mr. Lehmann.

JUDGE PRIEST'S ADDRESS.

Judge Priest of counsel for the defendant began his address a few minutes after 8 o'clock.

As he stepped forward the audience, which at that moment occupied every available space in the courtroom, was silent.

Assuming a calm tone of voice Judge Priest opened by reminding the jurors of the solemnity of the oath they had taken; of the duty to which this oath consecrated them, and said:

"Your deliberations must be measured by exact justice—just in accordance with the law and the evidence."

In thundering voice he went on to say that the state's representatives had appealed not to the facts of the case, but the sentiment surrounding them.

"Are you going to permit," said the speaker, "a defenseless man to be thus sacrificed? Will you because of a desire to give the state the victim it seeks tear him from his home, his family, his business and his wife?"

"WORSE CRIMES THAN BRIBERY"

The most interesting feature of his address came when he declared that "There are worse crimes than bribery.

"At most bribery is a conventional offense. In most civilizations it is a trifling offense.

He then drew a picture to maintain this contention. "The public servant," he said, "is trusted to carry on your business and mine. You and I are sponsor for him and he is to represent our interests. When he betrays us for a bribe it is he who becomes the real culprit.

"Bribery, I say, is trifling, compared to other things.

"The public official reverences the name of God when he takes his oath of office. He swears before the highest tribunal of man that he will faithfully keep and not violate the sacred duty intrusted to him.

"And when he betrays that solemn obligation—when he resorts to perjury—he stamps himself as black as ink—he stamps on his character a blot which can be [illegible]

BRIBE GIVERS

IN LIGHTING BILL

NOT INDICTED

June Grandjury's Final Report Has Nothing New.

16 INDICTMENTS RETURNED

E. E. MURRELL AND G. F. ROBERTSON NOT AMONG THEM.

These House Combine Men Turned State's Evidence and Are Named as Witnesses.

The June grandjury made final report in Judge O'Neill Ryan's court yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

No formal report was filed aside from a brief testimonial to the efficiency of the circuit attorney's and the sheriff's office.

Indictments against 16 members of the House of Delegates combine that passed the Suburban bill, resulting from the Post-Dispatch's locating John K. Murrell and his being induced to return to St. Louis and confess, were returned.

The men are jointly charged in one indictment, of two counts, with having received a bribe. The following men are named in the indictment:

Edmund Bersch, Otto Schumacher, Adolph Madera, John A. Sheridan, Emile Hartmann, Louis Decker, T. E. Albright, Julius Lehmann, J. J. Hannigan, Harry A. Faulkner, William M. Tamblyn, Charles J. Denny, John H. Schnettler, John Helms, Charles F. Kelly and Charles A. Gutke.

The men are charged in one count with having received a bribe of $47,500 from the hands of Edward Butler, Charles F. Kelly being the member through whom the money passed and by whom it was divided.

The second count charges them with having received the money from parties unknown to the grandjurors.

All of these men save Tamblyn are charged, in informations, with bribery and perjury, in addition to the indictment. Tamblyn did not appear before the grandjury and is not charged wiht perjury. Of the men indicted five are now in jail, seven are out on bail and four are fugitives from justice, with rewards offered for their apprehension.

Edward E. Murrell and George F. Robertson, the remaining members of the 18 whose names were mentioned by John K. Murrell as members of the House combine that received bribes, are endorsed on the back of the indictments as witnesses. They turned state's evidence and the grandjury did not indict them.

John K. Murrell was indicted last spring for his part in the Suburban bill affair. It is generally understood, in view of his service to the state in confessing and giving evidence against the other members of the combine, that he will receive clemency.

The following resolution was returned by the grandjury:

"Resolved, That the thanks of this body be extended to the circuit attorney's office for the uniform courtesy and assistance which we have had during all our sittings, and to the sheriff's office for its excellent service for the prompt attentin to the many requests for the special work which it has been necessary for us to make. JAMES BANNERMAN, "Foreman."

It will be observed that the June grandjury has not indicted the bribe-givers, doubtless owing to the impossibility of procuring sufficient evidence with the means at hand. The chief object of the grandjury, after the indictments resulting directly from Murrell's return, was the ferreting out of the wealthy men who gave the bribes in these cases.

It is an undisputed fact that some of the guilty bribers were indicated to the jury, to the satisfaction of the members of that body so far as moral conviction goes, but the lack of the testimony of Charles F. Kelly prevented the completion of the chain of evidence.

The October grandjury will take up this work. Unless the bribers are indicted by the 28th of November their prosecution will be barred forever by the statute of limitations.

WAS TOO LITERAL

And the Feud Between Writer and Artist Still Exists.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

The writer was describing a crowd gathered on a gala occasion.

"The stands," he wrote, "are draped with people."

He paused to reflect.

"Rather a neat way of putting it," he said, by way of tossing himself a bouquet.

Then the story went to the artist, who read it with care.

"I am told," said the artist, "that my pictures do not always fit the text. "Clearly it is up to me to show that I can 'follow copy' in this matter."

So he draped the stands with people. They hung in gay festoons from pillars and posts, some by the hands and some by the feet, and some hung hammock-like by both hands and feet. Never was a story so realistically pictured. And yet—and yet—

Fell From Pontiac Building.

Suit for $20,000 damages was filed in the Circuit Court Saturday afternoon by Edward Slater against the Ketcham Iron Works, an Indiana firm, with offices in the Pontiac building, Seventh and Market streets. The plaintiff alleges he was an iron worker on the building July 29 last and slipped and fell from the ninth to the sixth story because the girders were freshly painted. His skull was fractured, ankle sprained and he sustained internal injuries of the head and body.

COFFFE CULTURE IN ISLANDS.

Believed It May Become Product of New Territory.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Officials of the agricultural department believe sufficient coffee can be raised in the new island territory of the United States to supply the home demand and prevent the necessity of importations from Brazil, Honduras and other coffee-producing countries.

Experiments are being conducted by the department in the Philippines, Hawaii and Porto Rico, the results thus far having proved satisfactory. Frank D. Gardner, who has been in charge of the experiment station at Mayaguez, Porto Rico, has just returned, and is preparing his report. He has been prosecuting inquiries as to the culture and growth of the orange, lemon, citron, guava and other fruits, as well as coffee.

MAY BE A "DRY" CONGRESS.

Courts to Decide If Liquor Can Be Sold in the Capitol.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The next session of Congress may be a "dry" one. The national legislators may be unable to get a drink of either strong or mild liquor in the capitol. The district court of appeals must determine this important question.

The proprietors of the Senate and House restaurants were arrested for selling liquor without a license. They pleaded that the district laws did not apply to the capitol, but a lower court held otherwise. An appeal was taken. The final decision is awaited with interest by the proprietors, lawyers, liquor dealers and possibly by some of the lawmakers.

Seek Release of One Arrested in Alabama for Old Offense.

CAMERON, Tex., Oct. 4.—News was received here about the arrest in Montgomery, Ala., of M. L. Provers, colored, of Cameron, while en route home from the Birmingham convention. He is held on a charge of escaping while under sentence for four years in the penitentiary in 1876. He is one of the best negro citizens in Milam County and has accumulated a nice farm. The white men of Cameron held a mass meeting at the courthouse and a committee was appointed to procure the facts of Provers' detention and use every lawful means to secure his release. A telegram was sent to the sheriff of Montgomery for facts, but no answer has been received.

COAL [illegible]RIKE NOW UP

PRESIDENT THINKS

TO GOVERNOR STONE

solution that has appealed to intimate advisers of the President.

It is at once apparent in talking with any of his advisers that the President's disappointment yesterday was extremely bitter. He is still angry.

When the President was explaining to Attorney-General Knox how it felt to have his wound lanced he said that, when the doctors got down to the bone, he desired another talk with the Pittsfield motorman.

One of his friends said that the President last night was much in need of a similar interview.

Literally, hundreds of telegrams and letters are coming in commending his attitude. He is satisfied he is on the right track and the temporary setback of yesterday will not deter him from making every effort to end the strike.

DECEPTION, SAYS MITCHELL

Miners' President So Considers Operators' Suggestion to Refer Grievances to the Courts.

POST-DISPATCH BUREAU,
1345 Pennsylvania Avenue.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—John Mitchell, in talking of President Baer's proposition, said today:

"The coal operators proposed to the President that the miners as individuals present their grievances to the common pleas judges in their respective districts, is the variest sham. It is nonsense for the operators to suggest that the miners appeal to the courts. There are 147,000 miners in the anthracite field. Can each miner submit his grievance to a court? It is a subterfuge to divert public attention from the fact and to convey the idea that they wish to do justice.

"The operators submitted this proposition to the President with the idea of confusing the people. They would crush the miners by getting them to return to work and offering them a false hope of securing justice from the courts. It is an impossible proposition and merely made for the sake of deceiving the public as to their true purpose."

OPERATORS PLAN A SHOWING

To Make Greater Efforts to Work Mines, Hoping to Get Out Moore Troops.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 4.—The operators are plannig to make greater efforts than ever to increase the working force at the mines and to start more collieries.

Unless they get the necessary protection of troops in this movement they will ask that the entire state division of 10,000 men be ordered out.

In furtherance of their plan for protecting the workers, two conferences were held today with Gen. Gobin.

The operators declare that most of the strikers, now that they know that there is no chance of the operators' changing their stand, will return to work and that the sole question of how long the strikers will last resolves itself into a question of how long it will take to give the men adequate protection.

The strikers view the situation differently. Although disappointed at the failure of the President's conference to effect a settlement, they are more firmly determined than ever tonight to remain out until they win.

They believe that the entire weight of public sentiment is so strongly arrayed against the coal trust that the miners' victory will come sooner than if the President's conference had not occurred.

SUGGESTIONS TO END STRIKE

Receivership, Use of Troops to Protect Non-Union Men and Arbitration Proposed as Methods.

In answer to a request of the Post-Dispatch for a concise statement of what they think should be done in the coal strike, the following dispatches were received:

BY SENATOR MASON.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 4.—I prepared a bill two weeks ago today, which I believe can be passed within two days and would open the mines two days thereafter, if the President will call a special session of Congress. It provides, in substance, that whenever differences between employer and employes operating coal mines shall arise and continue until the rights and interests of the people are being prejudiced by the failure to operate said mines, then, upon application of the attroney-general or the United States attorney, it shall be the duty of a United States court, upon being satisfied that the rights of the people are being impaired and prejudiced, to appoint a receiver, and to continue such receivership so long as the rights and interests of the people shall, in the opinion of said court require. It shall be the duty of the receiver to make settlements to, and with, the owners of the said mines from time to time, as the court may direct, etc. This will open the mines.

WILLIAM E. MASON,
United States Senator.

BY GOV. SAVAGE.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 4.—The point involved in the anthracite coal strike, as I see it, is the right of owners of property to manage and control the same. This point is not arbitrable, being so well settled as to admit of no dispute.

The thing to be done now is what should have been done at the start and that is protect those that are willing to go ino the mines and work if it takes all the military power of the state to do it.

Goverment by arbitration is a companion piece to socialism and is a few degrees above anarchy. Compared with it government by injunction is a divine heritage.

EZRA P. SAVAGE,
Governor.

BY SENATOR KEARNS.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Oct. 4.—In view of the importance of a speedy settlement of this serious and unfortunate situation I think it wise that all parties in interest should submit their differences to a board of arbitration, selected by President Roosevelt and abide by the decision of the arbitration board.

THOMAS KEARNS,
United States Senator.

BY BISHOP SPAULDING.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 4.—Let the newspapers and all the organs by which the sense of justice may utter itself continue to proclaim the eternal principle of humanity outraged in the person of the anthracite miners.

J. L. SPAULDING.
Roman Catholic Archbishop.

"NOTHING TO SAY"—GOV. STONE

Pennsylvania's Executive, From Whom Much Is Expected, Keeps His Opinions to Himself.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 4.—Gov. Stone will not discuss his plans in regard to strike matters. Persistent requests for an expression of opinion have come to him from all parts of the country, but he firmly replies:

"I have nothing to say."

A close friend of the executive said tonight that in many respects the governor has been grossly misrepresented. His friend says that on every occasion that the local authorities have said they were unable to preserve order he has promptly requested a dozen or more responsible citizens in the community to investigate.

A report that state aid was necessary was immediately followed by an order hastily dispatching troops to the scene of the trouble. This policy will likely be pursued, if necessary, until the entire strength of the national guard shall have been exhausted.

The national guard force now in the coal fields consists of fifty-two companies of infantry and three troops of cavalry, numbering about three thousand. The number of soldiers available for call is about six thousand. The entire force can be mobilized within twenty-four hours at any point in the state.

PUBLIC FEELING INTENSE

Appeal for "Crucifixion of Trusts on a Cross of Patriotism" Elicits Cheers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Public feeling against the trusts is running high here. An impassioned appeal for the "crucifixion of the trusts on a cross of patriotism" was made by Dr. Emil G. Hirsch at the golden jubilee celebration of the Chicago Turngemeinde. Dr. Hirsch scored the coal operators mercilessly for what he characterized as their cruel and inhuman policy of greed. Three thousand German-Americans rose like one man and cheered Dr. Hirsch's arraignment of the trusts.

PETITION FOR EXTRA SESSION.

Six Thousand Chicagoans Ask Congress for Relief From Strike.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Six thousand Illinois citizens during the last 24 hours have signed a petition asking President Roosevelt to call an extra session of Congress to enact some measure for the prevention of a coal famine. One method suggested in the petition is provision for the appointment of a temporary receiver to operate the Pennsylvania mines which are closed on account of the strike. The petition is being circulated all over the city of Chicago and throughout the state of Illinois under the direction of United States Senator William E. Mason.

TEN DAYS' TRIAL TREATMENT FOR MEN.

Great Parisian Method That Cures Diseases of Men Without Taking Medicine Into the Stomach, and in Their Own Home—Let Every Man Send for It.

By a wonderful method successfully used for years in France, and now for the first time introduced in America, it is possible for any man, no matter how bad off, to instantly regain the vigor of young manhood without taking any medicine into the stomach, and to prove that it will do this you can have a full Ten Days' Trial Treatment by sending name and address to Dr. Stevens & Co., Box 212, Columbus, Ohio, the American importers, who offer Ten Days' Trial Treatment to every man. You apply it locally, and it quickly enlarges the muscles, increasing the nerve force, and giving vim and energy. The world of science and medicine thoroughly indorses it.

It cures in wonderfully quick time, in your own home, lost vitality, varicocele, stricture, unnatural irritation and enlargement of the prostate gland, and all bladder and urinary disorders of men. It is the only method known to science that will electrify the body, rout wasting diseases, create vigor, warmth and force, and all this without medicine taken into the stomach. If others tell you nothing can be done for you this will surely cure you.

Write to Dr. Stevens & Co., Columbus, Ohio, Box No. 212. They offer Ten Days' Trial Treatment to every man. It is no "prescription," "deposit," or "C. O. D." scheme, as this firm is too large to resort to such petty ways. Besides the Ten Days' Trial they send the most complete book ever written on the Diseases of Men, telling all, and fully illustrated with 40 engravings from life. Everything is confidential, and sent perfectly plain, and, since they merely ask you to inquire what they have got that will cure you, we trust every gentleman reader of this paper will write them at once as above, and thus get the Ten Days' Trial Treatment and book.

BILL TO SEIZE THE MINES

Measure Prepared by an Eminent Authority on Constitutional Law.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 4.—Fred A. Baker, the famous authority on constitutional law, has drafted a bill whereby President Roosevelt may, by calling a special cession of Congress, seize the coal mines, buy them outright by condemnation proceedings, and appoint a commission to sell the coal to the general public at cost. Mr. Baker's bill to provide for the governmental ownership of coal mines has been forwarded to the President for his consideration. It is as follows:

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives for the United States of America in Congress assembled.

The President of the United States, whenever, in his judgment, public necessity requires it, shall have authority to acquire by purchase or condemnation the title and ownership of any coal mine or mines in the United States, and to hold and operate the same for the public use and benefit under the provisions of this act.

The United States circuit or district courts of the district wherein any coal mine or real estate acquired under this act is located, shall have jurisdiction of proceedings for the condemnation of the same, and it shall be the duty of the attorney-general of the United States, or of any district attorney of the United States, to cause proceedings in the name of the United States to be commenced for condemning, within 30 days from the receipt of the directions of the President.

Section 2 relates to the legal method.

Section 3 is as follows:

The President shall have power to appoint five commissioners to have charge of the coal mines so acquired and authority to maintain and operate the same for the public use and benefit.

For the purpose of carrying this act into full operation and effect, it shall be the duty of the secretary of the treasury whenever directed so to do by the President of the United States, to issue the bonds of the United States payable in not less than 50 years nor more than 100 years, with interest not to exceed 3 per cent, payable semi-annually, in the gold coin of the United States.

Section 4 provides for the sale of coal at cost by the commissioners.

Mr. Baker says:

"My authority for this bill is contained in the case of Chappell vs. the United States in the One Hundred and Sixty-sixth United States Supreme Court reports, where the court says:

"'It is now well settled that whenever, in the execution of the powers granted to the United States by the constitution, lands in any state are needed by the United States, for a fort, magazine, dock yard, lighthouse, custom house, postoffice or any other public purpose, and cannot be acquired by agreement with the owners, the Congress of the United States, exercising the right of eminent domain and making just compensation to the owners, may authorize such lands to be taken either by procedings in the court of the state with its consent or by proceedings in the court of the United States, as Congress may direct or permit.'"

STEALING COAL NO CRIME

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 4.—A poor woman was brought before Police Court Judge Thomas F. Murphy a few days ago, charged with having stolen 50 cents worth of coal from one of the great railroad corporations.

"Discharged," said Judge Murphy. "In my estimation is will be positively necessary for the poor to get their coal by stealth during the coming winter. It's the railroads that are responsible for the present scarcity of coal and the existing high prices. These same railroads can well afford to let an occosional poor woman help herself to a basket of their coal."

The coal carriage roads entering Buffalo now have several watchmen aboard their coal trains to prevent its removal from the cars by stealth. Hundreds of men, women and children are about the great railroad yards in East Buffalo every day, armed with bags and baskets, eagerly snatching up every stray bit of coal that they can come across.

HORSE SHOW OPENS NOV. 3

The directors of the St. Louis Horse Show Association have decided upon the date of the annual horse show.

It will be held at the Coliseum, opening Monday, Nov. 3, and closing Saturday night, Nov. 8. Matinees are to be given Wednesday and Saturday.

At a meeting of the directors held yesterday the following officers were elected:

The following directors were elected: Max Orthwein, chairman; G. Lacy Crawford, James H. Bright, Ralph H. Orthwein, A. A. Busch, John S. Bratton, J. Sidney Walker, Julius S. Walsh, John R. Gentry. The executive committee consists of Max Orthwein, G. Lacy Crawford, Julius S. Walsh, Ralph H. Orthwein, John S. Bratton, J. Sidney Walker, James C. Ghio.

Aparticular feature of the horse show this fall will be a series of cavalry drills by two or more troops from Jefferson Barracks. The mounted police will also give exhibitions.

The prize list is to be a large one, and as the show follows the one in Chicago many high class horses will be entered. Entries close Oct. 23.

The following horsemen have been invited to act as judges in the several classes:

Harness horses—Charles Baker, Boston; Orson Moulton, Batavia, N. Y.

Ponies—Mortimer Levering, Indianapolis.

The new board of directors has decided upon the color scheme, and the official hues are to be white and green, which met with such favor in Boston at this year's show.

In order to promote a widening appreciation for the Horse Show, the directors have organized a club to be known as the Bit and Bridle. The club rooms are to be decorated in the official colors, white and green, at the Coliseum. Dr. C. Gray, an expert, who introduced this feature, will endeavor to interest the merchants of St. Louis in decorating their business houses in the prevailing colors during Horse Show week.

B. Nugent & Br[illegible] Dry Goods Co., Br[illegible] W[illegible]ington Av. and St. Charles Street

WHOSE DAUGHTER IS MRS. G. KELLS?

Stepfather's Affidavit Says She Was a Waif.

HAS HER BAPTISMAL CARD

RECALLS HER FATHER, A DENTIST IN MEXICO.

Has a Letter From Dr. Tinker to Her Mother, Then Mrs. Tinker, Talking of Father's Appointment as United States Minister.

In an affidavit filed in the Probate Court yesterday morning, Henry Bernhart of 104 East Thirteenth street, New York City, declares that Mrs. George Kells of 802 Hickory street, St. Louis, is neither the daughter nor the adopted daughter of either himself or his deceased wife, Minnie Bernhart.

The affidavit was filed in conjunction with a claim for $400 absolute dower, as provided for a widower under the laws of New York State, out of the residue of the estate of Mrs. Barnhart.

As the residue amounts to a little over $400, Bernhart's claim and affidavit are, in effect, a request to the court to turn the estate over to him and allow nothing to Mrs. Kells.

Though final settlement had been made on the estate on September 16 and an order of distribution might have been issued at once, Judge Henderson did not act finally in the premises.

He ordered attorneys for Bernhart and for Mrs. Kells to file briefs, and said he would announce his decision later.

SHE WILL FIGHT CASE.

Mrs. Kells told the Post-Dispatch she would fight bitterly Bernhart's attempt to secure the small estate left by his late wife. She declares Bernhart's action was a complete surprise to her.

The story leading up to yesterday morning's scene in the Probate Court is one of the oddest in the litigation of St. Louis courts.

According to Mrs. Kells, her father was a distinguished dentist of the City of Mexico, Dr. Guillermo Tinker. Her mother's maiden name, she says, was Minnie Marks; her girlhood home, Brooklyn.

On a visit to the United States in the interest of patent dental appliances that he had invented, Mrs. Kells says, her father met her mother and brought her back to the land of the Montezumas as his bride. This was in the 70s.

Mrs. Kells was born in the City of Mexico in February, 1877. One of her most cherished possessions is a small Mexican baptismal card.

In fancy type of brilliant lettering it announces the baptism in the Cathedral of the City of Mexico on Feb. 25, 1877, of Maria Enriqueta Florencia Elvira, daughter of Dr. Guilliermo Tinker and Minnie M. Martel. (Mrs. Kells explains that her grandfather changed his name from Marks to Martel because he didn't like his real name.)

CARD TELLS OF WITNESSES.

The card tells that Col. D. Jose Ramon de Olaneta and Dona Florence T. Olaneta were her godparents and Gen. D. Pedro Barranda and Dona Frieda V. Dillenberg the witnesses to the baptismal ceremony.

Mrs. Kells says she does not remember the exact date of her father's death, but it was while she was not more than a year old.

Her parents had been married about four years, she says. She still has in her possession a letter written by Dr. Tinker to her mother in 1874. In this letter he tells her proudly that he understands that he may be appointed United States minister to Mexico "to succeed Foster."

When the doctor died Mrs. Tinker and her baby returned to her old home, Brooklyn. There the young widow met Henry Bernhart. He was then, she says, a buyer for a large department store.

He had a good position then, she says, and made trips to Europe for his employers, but later neglected his duties and his wife so that they separated.

"My mother was a very fine-looking-woman then," said Mrs. Kells last night. She was noted for being the best-dressed woman at the Arion and the Liederkranz balls."

MOTHER CAME TO ST. LOUIS.

When the separation occurred, Mrs. Bernhart removed to St. Louis, bringing the child, Florence (now Mrs. Kells) with her. That was 14 years ago.

One of the possessions she also brought with her was a marriage license. This is now in Mrs. Kells' possession. It shows that Henry Bernhart and Mrs. Minnie Marks Tinker were married by the Rev. Dr. Scudder in Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 6, 1879.

In St. Louis Mrs. Bernhart also became known as Mrs. Henkle. Though separated, she and her husband were never divorced. Mrs. Bernhart reared her daughter well. She grew to be a fine-looking girl, with dark hair and eyes like her mother.

In June, 1900, Mrs. Bernhart died. She left no will. Dr. W. C. Richardson, then public administrator, on July 3, 1900, was granted letters testamentary and took charge of the estate.

Dr. Richardson has since removed to Florida and Attorney J. A. Henderson, father of Probate Judge Henderson, is now looking after his guardianship of this estate among others.

At first the administrator thought that the daughter, Florence, was the only heir. But he learned subsequently that the husband of Mrs. Bernhart was still living in New York, and not in affluent circumstances.

A correspondence was begun between the administrator and Bernhart and he was kept advised of the progress of the administration in the probate court. In the course of the correspondence he referred to Florence as "his daughter," and frequently spoke of her in endearing terms.

The young woman also heard from him and she says that she received a letter from him only Sept. 24 last, in which he called her "dearest little daughter."

When Attorney Henderson made his final settlement, knowing of the existence of the husband, as well as Florence, he decided to place the case on the motion docket and ask the court to distribute the residue of the estate, amounting to about $400.

AFFIDAVIT A SURPRISE.

He went to the probate court yesterday morning expecting to have the estate divided between Mrs. Kells (she had been married a few weeks previous to the final settlement) and the father when to his surprise, a representative of the legal firm of Abbott & Edwards filed the following startling document dated at New York two days previous and sworn to before Notary Charles F. Gentzlinger:

"Henry Bernhardt, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he resides at 104 East Thirteenth street, city of New York, borough of Manhattan, that he is the widower of Minnie Bernhardt, also known as Minnie Henkle, and the claimant herein; that he signed the annexed petition; that he was married to the deceased on Jan. 6, 1879, and that there is no issue of said marriage; that at the time of his marriage to deceased the latter had never been married; that after their marriage the deponent not having any children, they took in a little waif and cared for her and provided for her to the best of deponent's ability; that this waif is the claimant, Florence Bernhart, in this proceeding; that said Florence Bernhart is not the deponent's nor the daughter of the deceased nor ha ever been adopted by the deponent George Kells. Wherefore he prays that his petition be granted."

His petition is the annexed document asking for $400 absolute dower under the laws of New York state.

MRS. KELLS' EYES FLASH.

Mrs. Kells was in court when the document was read. She said last night that she was astounded on learning its contents.

"It was contemptible for him to do that," she said bitterly. "Even the attorneys in the courtroom were disgusted. One of them who did not know me said to me after it was read: 'Madam, you have my sincere sympathy.'"

Mrs. Kells' dark eyes flashed fire last night as she spoke contemptuously of Bernhart. She snatched her mother's marriage license and her Mexican baptismal card from their recesses and shook them before her visitor's face.

"They show how false his affidavit is," she exclaimed.

"I'll not rest under his charge, either," she added. "I'll wait to see what Judge Henderson does, but if his decision fails to clear away any stigma that man tries to place on me, I will appeal to the Circuit Court.

"Then I will bring his letters and other evidence I have into play. Just to think that only last week he wrote me as his 'dearest little daughter,' and now he charges that I am a waif just to try to get some of that little estate from me."

LOYALTY TO DEAD MOTHER.

Mrs. Kells gave evidence of considerable feeling; also of loyalty to her deceased mother.

"Why would she have been so good to me if she wasn't my mother?" she asked. "She educated me and gave me everything I needed and was always so careful about me."

The young husband of Mrs. Kells—he appears a mere boy—displayed a desire to see his wife's rights protected.

The prospective decision of Judge Henderson, however, will not be on sentimental grounds. It is simply a question with him whether the laws of New York or Missouri shall govern the distribution of the estate of a New York citizen's wife who dies in Missouri. If the New York law is held to govern the distribution, it seems that Bernhart may get what he prays for.

Mrs. Kells is 25 years old.

WHO IS MOTHER OF ROBIN COTTON?

Knatty Question Before a Tennessee Court.

SOLOMON HAD SIMILAR CASE

BIBLE RELATES HOW THE WISE MAN DECIDED.

Mrs. Phiscilla Howell Claims the Boy, Believing He Was Given to Mrs. Albert Cotton to Replace Latter's Own Child.

Special Correspondence Sunday Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 4.—Judge J. P. Young of the Circuit Court of this county is the Solomon who must pass upon the question of the ownership of a small boy, known as Robin Cotton. The case is being heard today.

Suit for possession of the child was brought by Priscilla Catherine Howell, an unmarried woman, who claims that the child is hers, and that it was born in Memphis, Aug. 12, 1897.

This calim is being contested by Mr. and Mrs. S Albert Cotton, who assert that the child in question was born to Mrs. Cotton as West Plains, Mo., in September, 1896.

HOW SOLOMON DECIDED A SIMILAR CASE.

In the third chapter of I Kings it is recorded that two women brought a baby to King Solomon, both claiming it, the child of one having died. Solomon heard their contention, and, according to the Bible:

Then said the king, bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king.

And the king said, Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one and half to the other.

Then spake the woman whose the living child was, unto the king, for her bowels yearned upon her son, and she said O, my Lord, give her the living child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it.

Then the king answered and said, Give her the living child, and in no wise slay it; she is the mother thereof.

And all Israel heard of the judgment which the king had judged, and they feared the king: for they saw that the wisdom of God was in him, to do judgment.

This fact they expect to be able to establish by the testimony of Dr. A. J. Stephens of West Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. Cotton now reside on a plantation, ten miles south of Memphis.

Miss Howell is a resident of Galveston, Tex., having moved to that place in the fall of 1896.

Her statement to the court, through her attorney, W. V. Sullivan, for nine years United States Senator from Mississippi, sets forth her belief that her child, a boy, was taken by Dr. H. L. Williford of Memphis, who, she says, was summoned at the time of its birth, and was given to his sister, Mrs. Cotton, when it was a few weeks old, to take the place of Mrs. Cotton's child, which had died.

Miss Howell asserts that Mrs. Cotton's child was born in August, 1896, about the same time as her own. Mrs. Cotton asserts that her child was born in September, 1897, and that it is still alive; that its name is Robin Cotton, and that it is the child whose parentage is now in question because of this suit.

Miss Howell says: "I was sheltered for a time by Mrs. Lillie Engstrom, and it was at her house that my child was born. Dr. Henry L. Williford had attended me the day before and promised to call again. He did so, but the baby was born a few minutes before he arrived. He came again the next morning and told me that he wanted it for his wife. I told him I would not give it to anybody in the world.

"My sister, Mrs. Leslie, came to Memphis in September and insisted that I go to Galveston with her. This I decided to do, leaving the baby in the care of Mrs. Engstrom.

"I started to Galveston Sept. 11, and two days later I was informed the child was taken from Mrs. Engstrom by its father and placed in the Leath Orphan Asylum. Later it was given to a Mrs. William Clark according to the records of that institution.

"I returned from Galveston and went to see Dr. Williford. He gave me a letter to the superintendent of the orphan asylum to the effect that I was the mother of the child in question, but at the asylum they told me that the child had a good home and that I could not get it.

"This was in October, 1896.

"I told Dr. Williford what the asylum superintendent had said, and Dr. Williford then told me that the baby was in the possession of a Mrs. William Clark of Little Rock, Ark. He gave me $10 for expenses, and I went to Little Rock to hunt the baby, but failed to find it.

"Before this time Dr. Williford had told me that one of his relatives in Arkansas had the baby and I then commenced a search on that line. Later he said that this relative was B. F. Williford, and that he lived in Arkansas. A year later, however, I found that B. F. Williford lived five miles from Bartlett, Tenn.

"I went there and had a talk with Mrs. Williford. She said she had no children, and that the child of Mrs. Cotton, Dr. Williford's sister, was a girl.

"I went to Chief Richards with facts I had which led me to believe that Mrs. Cotton had my child, and he put a man named Childs on the case. He told me that Mrs. Cotton did have it.

"Then I went to West Plains, Mo., where the Cottons lived, and swore out a writ of habeas corpus. Mrs. Cotton asked me: 'Did Dr. Williford send you?' My lawyer told her no. There was no testimony except Mr. Cotton's. The suit was dismissed, as I had no witnesses there.

"About eight months later I went to Imboden, Ark., where the Cottons were then living, accompanied by Mrs. Engstrom and Judge Du Bose, a celebrated Tennessee jurist. We were not able to do anything, and I came away at Judge Du Bose's suggestion.

"Dr. Williford told me that he had given my child away, and I hope to be able to prove it. I believe that it is my child which Mrs. Cotton now has."

But Miss Howell has not yet accounted for the connection of Mrs. William Clark with the case. That the child was given to a Mrs. William Clark is established by the Leath Orphan Asylum records and by the word of its well-known superintendent, Dr D. T. Porter, now deceased.

Ex-Senator Sullivan and Miss Howell visited West Plains, Mo., recently, and there took the depositions of the family physician of the Cottons and of other persons who knew them when they resided there. The nature of this testimony has not been disclosed.

Mr. and Mrs. Cotton and the little boy, Robin Cotton, are now visiting Mrs. Owen, Mrs. Cotton's sister, at 159 Iowa avenue. They deny in toto the claim that Robin Cotton is the child of Miss Howell, and expect to be able to prove, once for all, before this trial is over, that the child is their rightful son.

For a State Flower.

The Massachusetts Floral Emblem Society recently held a meeting and discussed the claims of favored flower candidates for the honor of being the state floral emblem. The mountain laurel, Kalmia latifolia, is said to be likely to win, but it is to be hoped a better selection can be made. A state flower should be, if possible, one rather peculiar to that state, and not so widely distributed in other territory. Mrs. George Brooks Bigelow of Boston is the secretary of the society.

She gave him a look of alarm, and then whispered softly in his ear: "Take care my father does not put you out!"—New York Herald.

PRESIDENT MU E REST

Strain of Strike Conference Caused Him Such Suffering He Will Attend Only to Imperative Business.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Secretary Cortelyou this evening, upon being asked as to the condition of the President, said the conference held yesterday was a severe strain upon him.

While in the judgment of his physicians, his progress toward recovery has been satisfactory and continues so, they feel that, to avoid the risk of a setback, he should be relieved of any undue tax upon his strength.

Therefore, for the next week or ten days, only such matters will be brought to his attention as it may be imperatively necessary for him to consider.

BOY RUN OVER AND KILLED.

Robert Lincoln Was Crossing Street When Accident Occurred.

Robert Lincoln, a schoolboy of 1907 North Grand avenue, was crushed and instantly killed beneath the wheels of a delivery wagon at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Peter Robertson, 14 years old, driver of the team, was arrested and will be held pending an investigation.

Lincoln, who was 12 years old, was trying to cross the Grand avenue streetcar tracks, on a bicycle when his wheel slipped and he fell. A wagon coming directly behind him ran him down before he could rise, and both wheels of the vehicle passed over his head.

Dr. Klein of 1921 North Grand avenue was called, but the boy was dead when he arrived. The body was sent to Lincoln's house.

CHILDR GIVE A FLOWER SHOW

Post-Dispatch Gardeners Join Englemann Club.

ALLEN MOHR LION OF DAY

BOY WITH THE ROSES WAS AN EXHIBITOR.

Willie Doering Had the Largest Individual Collection of Flowers, Showing Twenty-Four Different Varieties in Large Bouquets.

The flower show, given under the auspices of the Englemann Botanical Club, Saturday at the High School was a flowery success. The little gardeners of the Englemann Botanical Club and the Sunday Post-Dispatch garden contests exhibited their flowers to over 6000 visitors.

The walls were decorated with beautiful trailing vines, and the tables were covered with flowers of every hue and odor.

The exhibit lasted from noon until 8 o'clock in the evening. Hunderds gathered to see what the little workers had done towards making the new St. Louis beautiful. From 2 o'clock until the closing hour standing room was at par. That the people of St. Louis are interested in the work of the children in beautifying was very evident from the large attendance and the interest shown.

The winners of the Sunday Post-Dispatch garden prizes were large exhibitors. Allen Mohr, 8646 Drury Lane, winner of the first prize, was the "lion" of the day. Every visitor was anxious to see "the boy of the roses." Allen exhibited some fine specimens of his favorite flowers.

Carrie Hetledge, 903 La Salle street, had a fine collection of seeds which she exhibited with her flowers.

Willie Doering Had Largest Collection.

Willie Doering, 2012 Withnell avenue, had the largest individual collection of flowers. He exhibited 24 different varieties, large bouquets of each. Willie had the finest seed collection. He has been one of the most enthusiastic gardeners of this summer.

Ethel Davies, 5868 Julia place, exhibited 15 different varieties, and had the second best collection of seeds. Ethel, also, had a display of peanuts, which she raised in her garden, which attracted considerable attention.

Katy Kuppel, 3820 Pennsylvania avenue, exhibited some fine specimens of vegetables as well as flowers.

The Ashland School, organized and sent their flowers in a wagon. Mr. Rolla Rose, janitor of the school, devoted the entire day to the interest of the school and the Engelmann Club.

Ashland School Had a Grand Display.

The east wall was decorated with gourds raised by the kindergarten of the Ashland school. Mr. Rose took pride in showing this display to the visitors.

Dr. Gladfelter exhibited forty specimens of local mushrooms plainly labeled.

Mr. G. W. Letterman, Allenton, and Miss K. O'Halleron brought in the wild flowers, of which there was a fine collection. Mr. Lettermann also exhibited some of the wild fruits which may be found in the forests at this season.

Mr. James Gurney contributed a fine collection of water lilies and roses from Tower Grove Park.

The success of the flower show was far beyond the expectations of the club. As a proof that the Engiemann Botanical Club and the Sunday Post-Dispatch gardening movement is gaining ground, 50 new members were added to the club's membership.

After the exhibit all the flowers were sent to the hospitals.

POLICEMAN WAS A ROBBER

Somerville, Mass., Had a Man on the Force Who Took Everything He Came Across.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Oct. 4.—Since the discovery was made a week ago that Somerville had a policeman on the night shift who patrolled his beat with an express wagon and had succeeded in accumulating a rather remarkable collection of furniture and other articles usually found in the stores along his route, the city has been undergoing more excitement than it has experienced since the curfew law was adopted and the Board of Aldermen changed the night of meeting so as not to interfere with the weekday church services.

Since the discovery and arrest of the offender, extra policemen have been appointed, the force being increased very considerably, but whether the new men have been appointed for the purpose of watching some of the older ones has not been explained in a manner definite enough to give the citizens the assurance of safety the people seem to demand.

Since the arrest of Patrolman John G. Knight other members of the department have been under suspicion, but nothing has developed to implicate any of them in Knight's stealings.

One policeman living in the same house with him has been obliged to give up two fine rugs which he says Knight gave him for a Christmas present, and persons in different parts of Somerville and Cambridge who claimed to have been the recipients of rather expensive gifts from Knight have felt called upon to return the presents.

Knight had been a member of the Somerville police force for about 13 years, and was one of the most popular men in the department. When he was discovered in the public library—to which, being "the officer of the beat," he had keys—appropriating the contents of the cash drawer of 25 cents, his brother officers thought he must be insane. They have since changed their opinions.

The fact that he had been able to do all this, carrying thousands of dollars' worth of bulky articles through the streets without being seen or without police on adjoining beats knowing anything about it is something that is not readily explained, so that no complaint is being made about the additional expense that an enlargement of the police department makes necessary.

CORNER-STONE LAYING.

Washington University Dormitory Building Begun Impressively.

The corner stone of Washington University's new dormitory building, which is on the Wold's Fair grounds and is to be used during the exposition for exposition purposes, was laid yesterday. The invocation was offered and the benediction pronounced by Rev. Dr. Rhodes of St. Louis, and an address was delivered by Mr. Frederick J. V. Skiff, director of exhibits of the exposition. The invitations to the exercises were issued jointly by the Washington University and the exposition company.

The contents of the box placed in the corner stone included catalogues of the different departments of Washington University, history of the university and other documents concerning the institution, also a number of books, pamphlets, leaflets, stickers, stamps, circulars and other matter pertaining to the World's Fair.

REAKS OF THE LIGHTNING.

Texas House Struck Twice in One Storm, With Singular Results.

ORANGE, Tex., Oct. 4.—In a recent thunderstorm here the house of George Curtis was struck in two places, once on the comb of the roof, which went down a support to the ceiling, charred the paper overhead on a streak a foot wide and twelve feet long, zigzagged its way down to the wainscoting, followed the top molding around three sides to a window, went down to the baseboard, ripped it loose and melted the nails that held it on until it reached the corner where it went out, tore off the corner facing and went to the ground. The other bolt came into the house over the telephone wire, burned off the connecting wires, which were insulated, four feet from the house, and then again at the porcelain knobs used to fasten it to the outside of the building the two pieces of wire were shorn. This current passed through two rooms, scorching the paper on the wall, passed into the hall and out through the side of the house, splitting off weather boards where it went through. At one place in the parlor was a portrait on easel, and on the edge of the frame around the painting quite a number of photographs had been stuck. The lightning threw every one of them to the floor, some of them eight feet from the easel, yet neither gilt picture frame nor the easel were the least injured, but photographs were badly disfigured.

WHITE PIRATES RUN DOWN

Sailors Steal a Schooner From American Consular Officer, and They May Hang for It.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 4.—Advices from Shanghai relate how three sailors stole a schooner belonging to a member of the United States consulate staff and started to sea with a view to becoming buccaneers.

Two British subjects, named Brown and Smith, and an American named Plant, all seamen of the beachcomber class, gave orders to various compradores of Shanghai for a quantity of provisions aggregating in value $200, to be delivered aboard the schooner Agnes, the property of George A. Derby of the United States consulate, which had been in service as a pilot schooner. The provisions, sufficient for a month, were duly placed on the Agnes and at nightfall the three men boarded her, one seizing the Chinese watchman by the throat and choking him into submission, while the others raised the anchor and set sail for the sea.

They got past Woo Sung, when, for some cause at present unexplained—perhaps through the agency of the Chinaman—the schooner went aground and some one passing by who knew the craft conveyed the information to Mr. Derby. The later chartered a steam launch, engaged the assistance of several friends, and, armed with a rifle, went in pursuit. Arriving at the place he found the two British subjects aboard, and, at the muzzle of the rifle, arrested them. Taking the schooner in tow, he took his prisoners to Shanghai, where they were handed over to the police.

Plant, the American, escaped when the schooner went ashore, but was arrested afterward and all three will be charged with piracy before their respective consuls. Piracy is punishable by death.

It is surmised that the men had booty of some kind with which they wished to get clear of the port and perhaps intended to capture native junks, some of which carry considerable treasure.

The government has withdrawn from public entry a tract of 3,400,000 acres of land in the Blue mountains, in Oregon, as a forest reserve.

NEWSBOYS TO SEE MATINEE.

East Side Paper Merchants Will Witness Jolly Tramp Performance.

All the Post-Dispatch newsboys of East St. Louis will go free to the Sunday matinee in that city this afternoon. W. B. Newell, manager of the Jolly American Tramp Company, has invited them, and his invitation is backed up by another invitation from McCausland's Opera House so the newsies are going, prepared to enjoy the play to the limit.

They form in parade at Collinsville avenue and Broadway at 2 p. m., marching direct to the opera house.

The Jolly American Tramp is a clean comedy, full of rollicking fun.

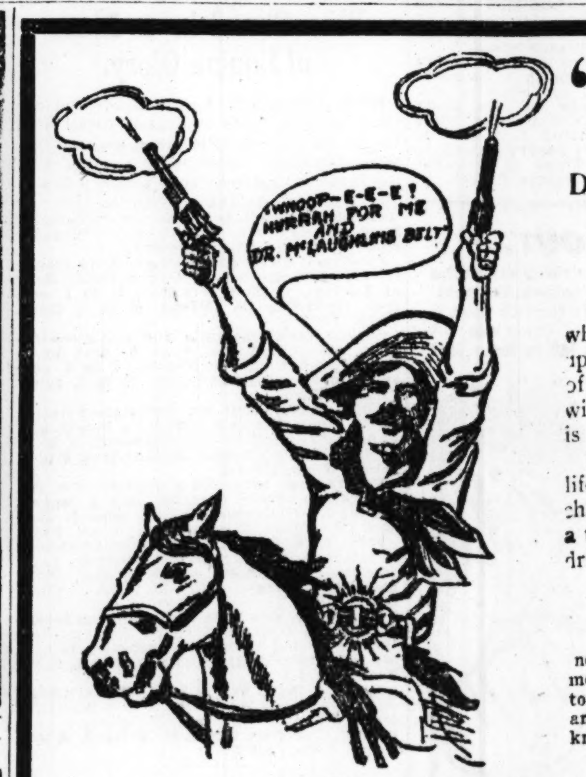
SCOURING YOUR SCALP.

Will Remove the Loose Dandruff Scales But It Won't Cure Dandruff.

If your hair is brittle and thinning, you have daundruff. The mere scouring of the scalp of the loose scales, won't cure dandruff; because dandruff is nothing but scales of scalp being thrown up by a pestiferous little germ in burrowing its way to the root of the hair where it saps the vitality, causing falling hair and, in time, baldness. Now you can't stop dandruff, nor falling hair, nor prevent baldness unless you destroy that germ; and the only preparation that can do it is the new scientific discovery, Newbro's Herpicide. In fact no other hair preparation claims to kill the dandruff germ—all of them will clean the scalp; soap and water will do that, but only Newbro's Herpicide gets at the root of the trouble and kills the dandruff germ. Send 10c in stamps for sample. The Herpicide Co., 41 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Mich. Sold by Raboteau & Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Co.



WHOOP-E-E-E! HURRAH FOR ME AND DR. McLAUGHLIN'S BELT

"GINGER!"

Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt, With Free Electric Suspensory for Weak Men, Has Restored His Vitality.

This is the way they feel, men who had given up hope, who thought there was no cure for them, until they came upon Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt. Now they are full of life overflowing with joyous spirits, and "care to the winds." Pains are gone, weakness is gone, and full vigor is in every action.

Do you want to feel like that? Then wear this grand life-giving appliance for two months at night. It will charge every nerve with electric life, and you will feel like a two-year-old. It puts steam in your run-down body, drives away pain and renews youth.

Here's a Happy Man.

St. Louis, Mo.

I will say that your Electric Belt is grand. I cannot say too much for the wonderful good your Belt has done me and it is just as good now as it was the day I got it. I spoke to all my friends about it, and they think it is a wonderful thing, and if they are in need of treatment will write you and let you know. Write HENRY FREE.

BASEBALL SEASON ENDS WITH TODAY'S LOCAL GAMES

Outlook for 1902 Not Promising for St. Louis National League Team Unless New Infielders Can Be Secured.

Baseball dies for the year today.

It has been moribund for some time, but its weakening pulse will cease to throb by sundown today. A few ghosts may walk during the winter months, frenzied managers may do a few megaphonic stunts in the press, a tale or two of jumping players may circulate and magnates will harangue and masticate the rag over probabilities; but for the fan the season will be dead, and not old Marley or the nail in his coffin could be less animate. Until the ground hog says that the weather is all right and people can go abroad planning on flower beds, the diamond artist will have a rest.

The only games scheduled to be played today are those at St. Louis between the Cardinals and the Chicago team. These might as well be omitted as far as any bearing they will have on the standing of the clubs is concerned. Chicago appears to have small chance to work back into the first division, while St. Louis never had a chance to be there.

The Cardinals were the speed marvels of the year in the National League. They could gain and lose form faster than any other team in the league and just to show their accomplishment, they repeatedly did it. Startling reversals of form at times led to the wild rumor that Donovan's men were on the road to second place. For brief spaces of two or three games at a time, there were periods at which it seemed they were capable of it. Collapse followed.

The aggregation points with pride to its unequaled feat of beating the Pirate champions in a five-game series. The wine of delight over this achievement probably intoxicated them so that their future playing was very groggy.

At that Donovan developed the team as much as the material at hand permitted. The aggregation was picked to make a hot run for last place and maintain it with a strong tenacity due to inability to get out of its own way. Every critic in the country agreed as to the utter weakness of the aggregation. That it could even play brilliantly in streaks was apparently out of the question, while the prospect of its beating Pittsburg in a long series appeared about as remote as the possibility of a magnate telling anything he knows.

Had Donovan not been handicapped by a weak infield, the club might have done something more than play well in streaks. Kruger, Hartman and Brashear played weakly throughout the year. Nichols showed an improvement at first when he replaced Brashear. Farrell was hopelessly handicapped by the company he was with and did not show his real form through the season.

The first class department of the team was its outfield. Barclay, Smoot and Donovan can hold their own almost anywhere, and proved it by their work during the year. The pitching department was erratic, even Mike O'Neil, who was the find of the year locally, having his bad moments.

Donovan is already figuring on his team for next season. Judging from the unhappy expression of the Cardinals' captain at moments when he unbosoms himself on the subject, the prospect of beating out Pittsburg is not strong enough to cause his immaculate shirt front to flutter with hope.

Donovan practically admitted that the present infield would do duty next year unless some crack could be found to cover short for the wages of a minor leaguer. Good men demand fortunes for their services. Infielders of ability are particularly scarce and competition for their services great.

Where a few years ago a minor league player of first-class caliber could have been signed for a song and a $500 payment to the club owner to whom he was under contract, now the major leagues have to pay $3000 for the player's release and give the latter a ponderous chunk of advance money in anticipation of a big salary he asks for his signature.

Kling, the man from the Three I league, who has been playing short for the Cardinals, evidently is no phenomenon, for he will be let go, according to the management.

With this year's infield, patrons of League Park may look for a repetition next year of this season's round of erring. Unless the pitching staff lives up to the promise it once gave of being the real thing, the club can hardly be a first division team.

Of the raft of material in the pitching department, it would appear that five reliable twirlers could be secured. If—the word should be capitalized—Murphy and Wicker come round. If Joyce O'Neil is in form. If little Currie can pitch steadily the good games he has shown are in him, and if Hackett or Brown or any other of the newcomers shows form, a fair showing may be made. Yerkes is too erratic to be a winner.

The forlorn hope is in waiting, like Mr. Micawber, for "something to turn up." Mr. Micawber's finish in this connection need not be mentioned. It might cause the Cardinals to feel bad.

The weakness of the league in general will probably not, however, be so apparent as last season. New York, Boston, Cincinnati and Brooklyn may be strengthened considerably, while Pittsburg will probably lose some of her real good ones. Equalizing the teams should make a vast difference in the interest of the race which was this season so one-sided.

Mr. John McGraw at last uncovered the names of several American Leaguers, who, he says, will lineup with him next year. They are Fultz, Elberfeld and Mertes. Mathewson, he says, will also be with the club. This is gratifying news. If he gets Mathewson, he will be getting an American League player, too, as that individual signed with the Hodges management two months ago, and received advance money on the strength of it.

It is something to have secured any players of the American League—so many have gone the other route. Doubtless McGraw has paid dearly for his whistle. As the American League will have a team of stars there next season, it was necessary to be well represented and probably the coffers of Brush will not balk at anything his agent has done.

The ideal team of National League players for 1902 is very easy to select. The plan is simple—take the Pittsburg team and that will nearly be it. Pittsburg might have better catchers, and Keeler in the outfield might strengthen the aggregation. It is certain that the Pirate crew could stand against any team that might be picked from the remaining clubs of the league. Following is an approximately ideal team:

AN ALL-NATIONAL TEAM.

Pitcher—Chesbro, Pittsburg.
Catcher—Peitz, Cincinnati.
First base—Bransfield, Pittsburg.
Second base—Ritchey, Pittsburg.
Third base—Leach, Pittsburg.
Shortstop—Wagner, Pittsburg.
Outfielders—Keeler, Brooklyn; Beaumont, Pittsburg; Sheckard, Brooklyn.

The entire infield of the club might do. Donovan, while discussing the subject at the park Thursday, said that there is no need to go farther than Pittsburg for an infield. He suggested Tinker at short to replace Conroy or Wagner, however. Tinker's later work was nothing marvelous, however, while Wagner's batting, his tremendous "whip," his speed and his ability to cover half the outfield beside his own position, make him the choice for the short field.

Pittsburg's outfield as it stands is perhaps good enough. Clarke and Beaumont are batting well and are otherwise competent at the game. Wagner's removal to short would necessitate a third fielder. Keeler is unequaled and should get the job. Donovan himself is a good hitter, a certain fielder and a handy man at the game.

Sheckard is another possibility in the outfield and might have a good call for the place. The catching department is a conundrum. Heine Peitz, though scouted by most players and critics, has a record to be proud of and is an old fox at the game. He would do, to say the least.

Of nine men chosen, leaving out Clarke, Pittsburg would have six. That is a record which does not often occur, even in eight-club leagues.

Catcher Bill Maloney, who made such a stir locally and who was the cause of much criticism of no very complimentary character being heaped on the blameless head of Manager McAleer of the Browns, has panned out poorly. He has failed to make good in every particular and has lost several games through wild throwing. William is a fast man, but not fast enough for the Kelley company. Unless he shows something of a startling nature next season he will be floating around loose.

The judgment of baseball managers, like McAleer, is after all better than that of outsiders. McAleer was supposed to have done Maloney a great injustice in letting him go, but events have proven the wisdom of his course. Who would rather see Maloney in the Browns' right field than Charley Hemphill? Very few.

POST-DISPATCH LESSONS IN FOOTBALL

By HUGH WHITE, Coach of Washington University.

HOW TO MAKE AN OPEN FIELD TACKLE.

LESSON IV.

POSITION PLAY—QUARTERBACK.

By Hugh White.

The quarterback is the pivot of the team. He is the connecting link between the line and the backs, and is the genius who inspires the various evolutions of the eleven. Of him are required:

1. ENDURANCE.
2. SPEED.
3. ACCURACY.
4. BRAINS.

The quarterback is the logical captain of the eleven. He gives the signals, and must have right of way in giving them, or the speed of the team will be seriously hampered.

When another player than he is captaining a team, the quarterback must be a man of clear and rapid thinking capacity, on whom the captaain can entirely rely. Otherwise the progress of the game and quick play wil be hanmpered by necessary consultations as to the play coming.

The quarterback should first of all pay especial attention to development of wind and endurance. He is by the nature of his position, in every offensive play made with one exception.

This is when the center-rush snaps the ball directly to the man who is to kick it. It is a play which has been used only in recent years. Formerly the quarter had to have the ball pass through his hands.

STARTS THE BALL.

He is not merely the instrument in putting the ball in the hands of the backs or ground-gainers in the line, he is first in interference in all end plays, helps on the runner in line bucks and is an important factor in defensive play.

From the mere manual standpoint, the first thing in which the quarter should perfect himself is in receiving the snap-back from the center rush and in delivering the ball quickly and accurately to the man he has designated to carry it.

Physically, the quarterback is preferably a small man. The strain of constant stooping to receive the ball would undoubtedly tell on a tall player, and, in addition, the latter is seldom of that remarkable quickness of action found in smaller men.

The snap-back, or pass from the center rush to the quarterback, is simple enough for the quarter to handle. The ball is delivered by the center with the nose toward the quarterback, and properly sent should reach him above the stomach. With both hands outstretched he closes on it the moment it strikes his body. Often he makes a baseball catch of it, with hands only. The ball is then in both hands, the quarter standing directly facing the back of the center rush. He is thus in a position to turn to right or left, according as the signal he has given indicates the play is to be directed.

Avoid turning to either side while receiving the snap, as it may serve as a guide to the opposing team to tell which way the play is going.

It is important that the pass be made as rapidly as possible. The line can hold for but a brief time and a second saved may mean a clear field for the runner.

NEEDS CONSTANT PRACTICE.

It is therefore advisable to get practice in passing on all possible occasions, first learning the signals so they are a matter of second nature and come without thought.

Never let the runner come to you in making a pass. Be in the line of his course ready to hand or pass him the ball. Only in rare cases is it justifiable to break this rule.

The quarterback, from the nature of his position, is first into the interference and therefore ahead of the runner. Thus in a play around right end, the left half in making for his objective point must pass within three feet of the quarterback's position. Be there with the ball to hand it to him—don't make him swerve in to get it.

After giving the ball to the runner, precede him in the interference. Right here is where the necessity for both speed and endurance comes in. The quarter must never flag. As first in the interference he must maintain his speed in order to keep up. If he cannot do this he will either be thrown out of the interference, and break up its effectiveness or will compel it to slow down and wait for him, which is equally disastrous.

Practice in punting will not come amiss to the quarterback. Occasionally circumstances call for a quarterback punt and cultivation of the kicking game may come in nicely at the right time.

BLOCKING KICKS.

On defense the quarter is the extra man to bolster up weak places in the line if it demands it. If not, he usually plays back of the center trio. It is well to have a signal or sign indicating when the center men or one or two of them are to make a hole for you to get through to block a kick.

On end plays by an opposing eleven the quarter is the first reserve in tacking the men. If the enemy's interference is good the most the halfback in the line can do is to break up the interference. The quarterback must be there with the tackle or it will be up to the forlorn hope—the fullback—in most cases.

The quarter must therefore not be wanting in ability to bring a man to earth cleanly and sharply.

One of the most important parts of the quarterback's functions is not manual, however. Giving the signals, and especially the right one at the right time, requires, coolness, discretion and above all observation.

Knowing your back field and what it can do is also an important factor. First feel out the enemy's line with regulation plays. Note the weak point, and, having found it, hammer at it. A line is seldom any stronger than the weakest point in it, and that point will become still weaker from constant battering.

Tricks are to be resorted to only in emergency or when you have such a lead that the loss of the ball or other catastrophe will not seriously harm you. Send your men in for straight football as long as it is consistently possible.

No instruction can possibly tell a quarterback what plays to use beforehand. He can benefit himself much, however, if after each game, he will go through a sort of mental quiz on the subject and figure out where this and that play might have been used to better advantage than the one employed.

The last instruction I will give is to never fumble. If you are weak there practice until you have overcome the fault. If you cannot overcome it resign from the position. You will only retard the game, make your backs nervous and uncertain, and ruin the speed of the eleven. Probably you will cost it a victory or two.

MANY GOOD ELIGIBLES FOR THE FAIR STAKES

Racing Event of Next Week at Fair Grounds Will Carry a $2000 Purse--Inquiries About Turf Companies Which Pay Big Dividends.

By R. D. WALSH.

The second annual renewal of the St. Louis Fair stakes is scheduled for Thursday of Fair week, which is next week. As its name would indicate, the St. Louis Fair stakes is the racing feature of the annual Fair, and "Big Thursday" will be the big day of the Fair.

Mayor Rolla Wells has assured Secretary Hachmeister of his intention of declaring Thursday of Fair week a holiday, and the leading wholesale and retail merchants have agreed to close their establishments on that day. This means that an enormous crowd will turn out to witness the running of the St. Louis Fair stakes.

Running races were given in connection with the Fair last year for the second time in the history of the big agricultural and mechanical show. While Mayor Wells was at the head of the Fair Association, about 10 years ago, he gave a running meeting in connection with the Fair. The racing feature on that occasion was called the Veiled Prophet handicap, and was decided on big Thursday.

GREAT CROWD WAS THERE.

About 100,000 people were on the grounds that day, and nearly everybody adjourned to the racetrack to witness the big stake race. The grandstand, quarter stretch, infield and the fence surrounding the track were black with people when the bugle called the field to the post in the Veiled Prophet handicap.

Capt. R. R. Rice, the distinguished Arkansas turfman, furnished the winner of the stake in Chimes, who showed his heels to a large field. Chimes, by the way, is the sire of Little Chimes, a horse that raced at Delmar last summer. Chimes was the first race horse of any consequence that Capt. Rice had ever owned.

He will be represented in the St. Louis Fair stakes this year by his famous thoroughbred Wax Taper.

This stake has $1000 added, and closed with 128 nominations. The distance is one mile and seventy yards, and its aggregate value will be considerably over $2000.

HAYES HAS FOUR ELIGIBLES.

T. P. Hayes, who won the stake last year with Lady Strathmore, has four horses eligible to start this year. Besides Lady Strathmore Hayes has Jordan, Buccleuth and Sans Pareil II in the event. Lady Strathmore is easily the best horse of this quartet, but Jordan will be the most dangerous if the race is run over a heavy track. Buccleuth is also a good mudder.

Jordan defeated Wax Taper in the Delmar Inaugural. In addition to capturing the Inaugural Jordan also placed the Gasconade stakes to the credit of Mr. Hayes.

Helen Print finished first in the Gasconade, but was disqualified for fouling. Helen Print is also eligible, and is thought to be a certain starter. She belongs to Chris Schawacker, the Fifth ward Republican politician. Schawacker kicked long and loud when his filly was disqualified and the Gasconade stakes given to Jordan. Chris has always claimed that Helen Print can beat Jordan doing anything. Hayes and all his friends think differently, of course.

For that reason many people would like to see the two 2-year-olds meet in the St. Louis Fair stakes to settle the question of supremacy. I think that I know something about their relative merits from close observation of their performances, and I have no hesitation in saying that Jordan is much the better. He is incomparably better than Helen over a muddy track.

Peaceful and Maximus, from the Arnold stable, Schwalbe and Dewey from the Schreiber stable, Brulare and A. D. Gibson from the Darden stable, Gumberts & Powers' Lunar and Ciales, J. C. Cahn's Terra Firma and South Breeze, "Doc" Street's Sambo and W. M. Rogers' Fitzkanet are a few of the other good ones that are eligible to start.

Peaceful won the rich Inaugural handicap at the Fair Grounds last spring. He was a real good horse when he won that stake. He was also a good horse the last week of the Kinloch meeting. Trainer Kiley made him win the Labor Day handicap at Delmar off a Kinloch preparation, but he trained off as quickly after winning this stake as he did after landing the Inaugural at the Fair Grounds last spring.

He seems to be a horse that runs his best races in spots, or, in other words, a common, every-day in and outer. His last out at the Fair Grounds was a big disappointment to his backers. He ran next to last. The weight seemed to have stopped him on this occasion, but it did not bother him any in the Labor Day handicap.

MAXIMUS THE BETTER.

Maximus is the better horse of the two, but, unfortunately for the stable, Maximus has been on the shelf ever since he ran his famous record-breaking mile and 70 yards at the Fair Grounds last May. Trainer Tom Miles thought the crack 4-year-old would win the Club Members' handicap but he went wrong while being prepared for the stake and has been laid up ever since.

Charlie Cella, who used to own the pair, always considered Maximus the better horse. Charlie bought both horses from Sam Hildreth on his own judgment, and he still refers with pride to the fact, whenever his short but brilliant career as a horseowner is under discussion. Maximus and Peaceful are the only thoroughbreds Charles J. Cella ever owned.

Young Cella is a graduate of the University of Michigan. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in Chicago before he went on the turf. With his first winnings he bought Maximus and Peaceful. He likes a good racehorse as well as W. C. Whitney or August Belmont, but his fondness for horses nearly resulted in his undoing as a bookmaker.

While he owned Maximus and Peaceful he found the pair decidedly unprofitable investments from a betting standpoint. He invariably let his fancy for his horses sway him against his better judgment as a player and the result was a constant balance on the wrong side of his cash ledger. He finally resolved to give up the horses, but he insists that he will buy another racing stable whenever he can afford the luxury.

AS TO TURF CONCERNS.

The turf editor of the Post-Dispatch is continually receiving letters from all sections of the country inquiring as to the financial standing and responsibility of certain turf agencies who promise weekly dividends of 5 per cent on any sums intrusted to them for investment.

This proposition is so alluring that it entices the credulous to invest. While, of course, I cannot offer any opinion as to the financial standing of these concerns, I have no hesitation in expressing my conviction that such extravagant promises as they make can never be fulfilled and that they are baits with which to catch "suckers."

The New Louisville Jockey Club has been entirely reorganized, and the glories of old Churchill Downs will be revived on a grander scale than ever before.

The mayor of Louisville, Charles F. Grainger, has been elected president and Charles F. Price secretary and general manager.

Mr. Price is thoroughly well known in the turf world and no better man could be put in charge of racing matters at Louisville. A new clubhouse will be erected, the stakes and purses will be increased and several important improvements will be made in the racing plant. A new paddock and betting shed will also be constructed.

CORNELL WON ITS GAME WITH EASE

Beat the Union College Eleven Forty-Three to Nothing.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Union College was simply swamped by Cornell football eleven this afternoon, the visiting team going down to defeat to the tune of 43 to nothing.

From the outset Cornell's superiority was manifest, and after the first half, the 1000 spectators displayed little interest save to cheer a player when he was withdrawn, and a sub took his place.

Cornell played largely a kicking game, but Brewster was not alert in getting the punts off, and the Cornell line held poorly.

Cornell's attack, however, showed great improvement. Early in the second half the coaches began ordering in the subs and before the referee finally called time 24 men had participated on the Cornell side.

In the second half interest in the contest began to lag, but the clever running of James, Cornell's midget quarterback, when he received the ball from the kickoff and from bunts, kept up the good humor of the spectators.

ALADDIN WAS WEB-FOOTED

Won the Tecumseh Handicap and $2000 in Mud at Harlem.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Over a track deep in mud, Aladdin won the Tecumseh handicap at Harlem today easily, leading Flying Torpedo half a length at the finish with Little Elkin in third place, three lengths back.

The race, which was a mile and three furlongs, worth $2000 to the winner, so, although the track was deep in mud and the weather raw and rainy, only two of those originally carded to go were drawn. These were Lucien Appleby and Alaska.

Aladdin seemed much the best. After rating along in third place most of the way, he came to the front when called upon and was well in hand from Flying Torpedo, though the latter ran up to his best form. Summary:

First race, six furlongs—Chickadee 93 (W. Hicks), 2 to 1, first by three lengths; Sandflea 89 (Robbins), 4 to 1, second; Goldaga 97 (Helgerson), 4 to 1, third. Time, 1:24 2-5.

Second race, six furlongs—Fairbury 96 (C. Kelly), 8 to 5, first by a length; Pirate's Queen 94 (Robbins), 8 to 5, second; Gralious 94 (McIntyre), 5 to 1, third. Time, 1:24 3-5.

Third race, the Tecumseh handicap, mile and three-eighths—Aladdin 109 (Coburg), 6 to 5, first by a length; Flying Torpedo 115 (Seaton), 4 to 1, second; Little Elkin 100 (Robbins), 7 to 1, third. Time, 2:41 3-5.

Fourth race, handicap, five and a half furlongs—Gregor K. 103 (Buchanan), 2 to 1, first by three lengths; Jack Demund 115 (Donnelly), 3 to 1, second; Duelist 104 (Hoar), 5 to 2, third. Time, 1:15 3-5.

Fifth race, mile and one-quarter—Obstinate Simon 100 (C. Kelly), 8 to 1, first by a length; Barrack 101 (Nutt), 5 to 2, second; Alaska 102 (Donnelly), even, third. Time, 2:26 4-5.

Sixth race, six furlongs—Banish 101 (Buchanan), 5 to 1, first by a nose; Compass 101 (Donnelly), 5 to 1, second; Alee 94 (Robbins), 2 to 1, third. Time, 1:26.

RACING AT TORONTO.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 4.—Weather clear; track good.

First race, six furlongs—Kenilworth 115 (Minder), 3 to 1, first by a neck; Lady Kent 112 (Gormley), 2 to 1, second; Springwells 112 (Irwin), 2 to 1, third. Time, 1:15.

Second race, five and one-half furlongs—Harding 99 (J. Walsh), 4 to 1, first by a length; Pan Zagloba 99 (J. Daly), 5 to 2, second; June Collins 104 (Minder), 4 to 1, third. Time, 1:10.

Third race, handicap, the Jockey Club Cup, two miles—Orontas 110 (Blake), 5 to 2, first; Bell Court 99 (Castro), 6 to 1, second; Lourey 104 (Alley), 5 to 1, third. Time, 3:35.

Fourth race, six furlongs—Okla 111 (H. Booker), 2 to 1, first by a head; Basulo 112 (Spencer), 5 to 2, second; Insolence 104 (Al-[illegible]le), 10 to 1, third. Time, [illegible]

Fifth race, the Cha[illegible]echase, handicap, about [illegible] mile 150 [illegible]ther), [illegible] lengths; [illegible] Woolthird. [illegible]therer [illegible] longs—

Grand Marais 110 (Minder), 8 to 5, first by a length; Stratchcona Belle 103 (J. Daly), 2 to 1, second; Effrontery 103 (Thorpe), 2 to 1, third. Time, 1:11.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT SPORT.

Q. In betting, what is a French mutual?—J. N. M'K. A. The player does not know what odds he will receive until all the wagers have been laid and are counted. The money is given to the first, second and third horses, according to which the pool is made on, less the commission of the poolmaker, the odds being determined by the number of bets, in proportion to the whole, which were laid on each horse.

Q. Do any of the New Orleans papers give selections on the races while the meeting is on there, and do you know of any other sporting sheet such as the Daily Racing Form, sold in New Orleans while racing is in progress there?—J. A. L. A. All the New Orleans daily papers give selections for the races. There is no paper there such as the Daily Racing Form.

TIRED OUT.

There's many a farmer's wife sits on the porch in the growing shadows of a summer evening, knowing to the full what it is to feel tired out; as if there was not another ounce of effort left in her. But she knows how sound her slumber will be and how refreshed the morning will find her. That's the tiredness of a healthy woman. But it's another thing for the sick woman to feel tired out. Rest only seems to increase her suffering. Just as in profound silence a discord jars the ear more forcibly, so now that she has stopped moving about, this tired woman feels more acutely the aching back and throbbing nerves.

Sick women, hundreds of thousands of them, have been made well by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"Words cannot tell what I suffered for thirteen years with uterine trouble and dragging-down pains through my hips and back," writes Mrs. John Dickson, of Grenfell, Assiniboia Dist., N. W. Ter. "I can't describe the misery it was to be on my feet long at a time. I could not eat nor sleep. Often I wished to die. Then I saw Dr. Pierce's medicines advertised and thought I would try them. Had not taken one bottle till I was feeling well. After I had taken five bottles of 'Favorite Prescripti[illegible]' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I was like a new woman. COL. BILL WON THE HANDICAP

Gravesend Autum Meeting Was Closed in a Blaze of Equine Glory.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Gravesend autumn meeting came to a close today with the running of the mile and a quarter Oriental handicap, which went to Col. Bill, the favorite. Igniter, the outsider, was second, and Herbert third. Astarita at 6 to 1 won the Prospect handicap for 2-year-olds from the favorite, Hurstbourne. Weather cloudy; track fast. Summary:

First race, about six furlongs—King Raine, 127 (Martin), 30 to 1, first by a head; Belle of Lexington, 125 (Cochrane), 12 to 1, second; Ondurdis, 114 (Miles), 60 to 1, third. Time, 1:11 1-5.

Second race, one mile and a sixteenth—Elbe, 106 (Cochrane), 9 to 5, first by a neck; Brunswick, 110 (Odom), 7 to 2, second; Boaster, 100 (Michaels), 15 to 1, third. Time, 1:47 4-5.

Third race, about six furlongs—Astarita 107 (O'Connor), 6 to 1, first by a length and a half; Hurstbourne 116 (Martin), 4 to 1, second; Golden Maxim 122 (Landry), 6 to 1, third. Time, 1:10 3-5.

COLUMBIA DEFEATED RUTGERS

Capt. Weeks and "Buffalo" Smith Did Sensational Work—Score 43 to 0.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 4.—Columbia won from Rutgers today by a score of 43 to 0. Capt. Weeks and "Buffalo" Smith of Columbia did sensational work often, and throughout the game their plays were the feature. Weeks made two 50-yard runs and one 90-yard run for a touchdown. Most of the goal kicking was done by Smith, but it was poor.

The line-up:

Columbia.	Positions.	Rutgers.
Wood	Left end	R. Morris
Brown	Left tackle	A. Morris
Stifel	Left guard	Hitcher
Duden	Center	Greene
Dollin	Right guard	Brayer

I NEVER DISAPPOINT MY PATIENTS.

MY BEST REFERENCE IS, NOT A DOLLAR NEED BE PAID UNTIL CURED

(Signed) NATHANIEL K. KING, M.D.

I Fulfill Every Promise and Never Hold Out False Hopes.

The FEAR of FAILURE to cure your case may have deterred you from taking honest treatment or you may have been one of the unfortunates who have been treated in vain by inexperienced physicians. FREE TREATMENT, FREE-TRIAL SAMPLES, PATENT MEDICINES, ELECTRIC BELTS and similar devices? Such treatments cannot and will never cure you, nor will these maladies cure themselves. I cannot see how any man could stand idly by and see his manhood slipping away and his health wrecked by these insidious diseases. When I offer you a cure, and am willing to risk my professional reputation in curing you, and have such faith and confidence in my continued success in treating these diseases that I WILL NOT ACCEPT A DOLLAR UNTIL YOU ARE PERMANENTLY CURED, and satisfied of a lasting cure, what fairer business proposition can be offered to the sick and afflicted? This should convince the skeptical, as I mean what I say and I do exactly as I advertise. REMEMBER this is not a FREE offer, but you pay me a REASONABLE fee when a cure is accomplished, and NOT A DOLLAR NEED BE PAID UNTIL CURED.

I Cure Stricture Without the Knife or Bougie.
I Cure Contagious Blood Poison, Never to Return.
I Cure Loss of Manly Vigor; No Stimulant, but Permanent.
I Cure Varicocele Without Operation and No Loss of Time.

CONSULT DR. KING (FREE) BEFORE PLACING YOUR CASE ELSEWHERE.

VARICOCELE—My cure is without pain or surgery, and removes every drop of stagnated blood and diseased tissue from the affected veins. The prominent symptoms of this disease are heavy, dragging pains in the small of the back, extending down into the affected cords; low spirits, nervous debility and frequently a great decline in health. My treatment removes these unnatural conditions; normal circulation is re-established throughout the pelvic region and perfect manhood is restored.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON—My special form of treatment contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

LOSS OF MANLY VIGOR—My cure for weak men does not stimulate temporarily, but restores permanently, stops every drain of vigor and builds up the nervous system, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys, revives the spirits, brightens the intellect and restores the wasted power of manhood.

PILES Are small vascular tumors, and they have a most degrading influence on the general health. I cure Piles without cutting nor do I use any ligatures or carbolic acid injections, which treatment has ruined many. My treatment is safe and painless, causing no detention from business, and when you are dismissed by me you are cured for life.

STRICTURE—By the use of my original and strictly modern treatment I can cure the disease without cutting or dilating, thus avoiding the horrors of surgery. It is the only treatment that should ever be used, and the only one recommended by the legions of men who have recently been cured by it. It acts immediately and directly upon the Stricture, dissolving it completely and dislodging all diseased tissues, which comes away in strips or shredlike fiber, allays all irritation and inflammation, leaving the canal entirely free from obstruction. The weakened organs become strong and sturdy, and the joys and vigor of manhood are restored.

RUPTURE Is an escape of the bowels from the lower part of the abdominal cavity. Rupture sometimes results in strangulation and death. Trusses should not be worn, as they only aggravate the trouble. I have the only cure, safe method of curing Rupture. Besides being absolutely reliable, it is painless and harmless. It makes no difference how bad your Rupture is or how many times you have been treated, I can cure you and will guarantee entire satisfaction.

CHRONIC DISORDERS—Those suffering from Nervous Prostration, Unnatural Discharges, Sciatica, Rheumatism, Rupture, Piles, Kidneys, Bladder or Prostatic troubles should consult me at once. No case should be thought incurable until I have diagnosed it and given my opinion.

HOME TREATMENT—One personal visit is always preferred, but if you can not call at my office, write me your symptoms fully, and I will mail you a complete set of improved symptom blanks. I make no charge for advice or diagnosing your case. Hundreds are cured by my improved methods of home treatment.

YESTERDAY'S BASEBALL, FOOTBALL AND SPORTING RESULTS

NEW-FORMED WASHINGTON HELD LOMBARD TO A TIE

On a Rain-Soaked Sodden Field the Local Eleven, Minus Its Captain, Agreeably Disappointed by Its Great Defense.

BY J. E. WRAY.

On a rain soaked, sodden field at Pastime Park, before a scant crowd of enthusiasts, Washington University's scarcely formed eleven held the team from Lombard University to a tie yesterday afternoon, score, 0—0.

Minus its captain, and with two men in the lineup who were not even thoroughly familiar with the signals, the local eleven agreeably disappointed Coach White by putting up a great defensive game. Through both the 20-minute halves played the myrtle and maroon team, battling strictly on its nerve, was able to hold the Lombard men for downs, whenever a critical stage was reached.

The visiting team had the advantage of three weeks' hard training and the experience of two match games, but though its team work stood out by contrast with that of the Washington men, its hard plunging backs, and formation plays could not gain consistently against the Washington line. When the rub came the local eleven backed up and held for downs.

Want of practice, unfamilarity with the signals and fumbling weakened the aggressive play of Washington. Straight through the eleven the material was better than that of the Lombard aggregation, but unity of action was wanting to make its attack successful.

Washington Strong on the Defensive.

The noteworthy work done by Washington was all on defensive. Contrary to Coach White's expectations there was no spot in the line where the Lombard backs could find sure gains. Pieper at times was a revelation. His tremendous strength tore a hole for him through the enemy's line time after time and his play in general showed a dash and ambition that was wanting in his work last year.

Smith and Tolson did yoeman work defense and Lombard's interference had a hard time pasing the line at the points where they were stationed.

Owing to the absence of Gordon from the game, Cram was sent to fullback on the defensive, while Tolson eked out the line defense.

It was little Cram's first appearance in a game in the two years he has been connected with the squad and he signalized his first trial by making an open field tackle that probably saved a touchdown in the early part of the first half.

Lombard's fullback, Miller, had been hurled against Washington's center for a ten-yard gain, and found an open field in front of him except for little Cram. The hearts of the Washington supporters sank with a thud as they saw the big Lombard man plunging toward frail Cram with the goal line not over 25 yards away.

Cram made the tackle in the most approved style, however, and downed his man in his tracks.

That was the nearest the Lombards came to a score, although they had the ball a trifle closer to Washington's goal once.

Whitehall at Center Surprised Everybody.

Whitehall at center surprised everybody by playing up to the notch, getting into several plays for successful tackles. The best gains of Lombard were made by bucks and formation plays on or near Washington's tackles. Smith, Tolson and Bischoff took care of most of the end attempts, while the center yielded to the Lombard backs only occasionally.

The game was featureless as regards long runs or impending scores. The battle ground in the first half was in Washington's territory, after a brief spurt made by the local men shortly after play started. Then White's men started off like whirlwinds and tore off gains, mostly around the ends, for several yards at a time. A fumble lost the ball and Lombard worked it up the field to Washington's 20-yard line.

Here Washington took a stand. A try for right end found Smith doing a tackling stunt for no gain by Lombard. After a three-yard gain a formation play on right tackle was stopped as if it had hit a stone wall, and the ball went to Washington on downs.

Two short gains and Washington was forced to punt to the center of the field. Washington, however, had found its defensive strength and refused to give. Lombard being forced to punt after two tries to gain.

The battle for the remainder of the half see-sawed back and forth with no appreciable advantage, time being called with the ball still in Washington's territory on the 29-yard line.

In the second half for a time it appeared that the game was up for Washington. Early in the half Walter Krausse, who had been doing good work for the eleven both on the aggressive and defense, was hurt and had to retire from the game.

Capt. Gordon Inspired Hope.

White was absolutely without a man and was forced to put in Sherman, a strong, willing player, but one absolutely without experience. Cram was also out of the game and Pitzman was put in to help out. On the aggressive the changed conditions made it almost hopeless for Washington to do anything. On the defensive they played like demons. Pieper, Tolson and Smith did the conspicuous work and tore up the line and interference of the enemy.

Lombard began to find Sherman in the halfback's place in the line, however, and were ramming that place home for gains when luck changed. Capt. Gordon arrived, in company with Hope and new life went into the eleven. Hope went [illegible] one end, Gordon played defensive fullback and Bischoff went to half. Then Lombard had its hands full.

Two tries to break down the new defense failed and forced Cooper to punt. Gordon got the ball and wash dashing back with it when Andrews tried to stop him and was laid out.

Thereafter Lombard's chances of scoring went glimmering. Washington showed superiority in all departments of play and had the eleven had another week's practice would have won out to a certainty.

Time was called with the ball on Washington's 49-yard line and going into the enemy's territory rapidly.

The showing made by the local eleven encouraged White to hope that he will yet make a winning eleven of the material in hand. Washington's next game is against Illinois at Champaign next Saturday.

The lineup:

Washington.	Positions.	Lombard.
Bischoff, Hope	Right end	Andrew, Ayars
Cassell	Right tackle	Hartgrove
Schantl	Right guard	Bruner
Whitehill	Center	Shaffer

BY CHARLES CHADWICK.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 4.—Princeton defeated Lehigh today by a score of 23 to 0. It was Princeton's second game of the season, the Tigers having defeated Swarthmore Wednesday, 18 to 0. The game was remarkable for the fact that the scoring was all done in the second half. For the first period of 20 minutes on a wet, slippery field, the light Lehigh team stood off the fierce rushes of Princeton's veteran backs by an almost incredible stiffness on the defense.

It was the kind of playing to bring a thrill to the heart of the lover of the game.

In the second half Lehigh went to pieces under the strain. There were two exciting plays in this half. The first was a 95-yard run by Burke, the Princeton's quarter.

He misjudged Lehigh's punt and allowed it to roll by him, but regained it on the 5-yard line. Waller took the first Lehigh tackler and Brown knocked down two others. Burke meanwhile was going down the west side lines and over the goal line like a trolley slot afire.

Students in Oilskins Wild With Delight.

The crowd of undergraduates in yellow oilskins and the seniors, dressed in the fantastic costumes of the annual parade, jumped up on the bleachers wild with delight and yells, horns and the the reports of fireworks mingled in one melee of enthusiasm.

The second feature of this half was Vetterlein's drop kick. He gauged his distance from the rush line carefully, and standing on the 35-yard line sent the ball off coolly and easily. Vetterlein is a freshman and was coached last year at Penn Charter School by Sharpe, Yale's famous drop kicker.

Enough could be seen of the Princeton team to indicate that it is a green team, not particularly heavy and stronger behind the line and at the ends. Capt. Davis and Henry are the best pair of ends in the country, fast under kicks, sure tacklers and skillful in blocking on the offensive.

Brown, 180 pounds, who played last year in the Yale game; Rafferty, [illegible] pounds, and DeWitt, [illegible] pounds, are the best of material for tackles. DeWitt plays guard also, and for the other guards, Waller, [illegible] pounds; a freshman Barney, 200 pounds, and Dutcher, a freshman from Andover, 200 pounds, at present on the hospital list, make up the list of available heavy men for the line. Short, at center, is a new man, weighing 186 pounds, who passes in accurately for kicks.

Princeton Has Two Strong Backfields.

Princeton has two strong backfields which can be used interchangeably. Ross McClave runs low and is good at center plunges. Burke, at quarterback, is a speedy man in a broken field, and Vetterlein, the second quarterback, is a drop-kicker and a punter, but slightly inferior to DeWitt.

The indications are that Princeton will excel this season at the kicking game. With DeWitt and Vetterlein behind the line and Davis and Henry at end she will be better equipped in this department of the game than any other college on the gridiron, and this will make up for many a weak point in the offense or defense.

The line-up:

Princeton (23).	Position.	Lehigh.
Davis	Left end	Herman, Calvin
Brown	Left tackle	Geare
Waller	Left guard	Johnson
Short	Center	Barnard
De Witt, Barney	Right guard	Orth
Rafferty, Dewitt	Right tackle	Laudevelut
Henry, Butler	Right end	Dornin, Brush
Burke, Vetterlein	Quarterback	Faranaugh, Dornin
Hart, Kafer	Left halfback	Farabaugh
Foulke, Moore	Right halfback	Lind, Purvis
R. McClaves, Byle	Fullback	Purvis, Butler

WEST POINT BEAT TUFTS

Game Was Fought Out in Rain and Players and Spectators Were Drenched.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The football season opened here today with a game between Tufts and the cadets. Rain poured in torrents, drenching the spectators and making the ball slippery as a greased pig. Gangs of prisoners had been busy all morning putting up the large grandstand, which the rain soon made too uncomfortable to occupy. The game ended with the score 5 to 0 in favor of West Point.

Line-up:

West Point.	Positions.	Tufts.
Dee	Left tackle	Bray
Tipton	Left guard	Galarneu
Boyers	Center	Prince
Thompson	Right guard	Hill

ANNAPOLIS FAILED TO SCORE

Georgetown Had Been Working Several Weeks, While Navy Was Raw and Unpracticed.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 4.—The Naval Academy football team opened the season this afternoon, the contest being with Georgetown University. The weather was quite cool, but threatening. The navy coaches did not place much dependence in their team winning today's game, for they have only practiced five days while Georgetown had been working several weeks. Georgetown won 4 to 0. The Washington boys were confident of w[illegible]

MISS ROOSEVELT SAW HARVARD PLAY

She Wore a Gown of Bright Crimson--Harvard Beat Bates.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 4.—Harvard won from Bates this afternoon on Soldiers' Field by a score of 23 to 0. Two touchdowns were made in each half and Harvard played practically two teams in that time.

In the first half the best team the coaches could get together was put in the field, and in the second half the subs were given a chance to show what they could do.

Conspicuous among the spectators was Miss Alice Roosevelt, the President's daughter, decked in a bright crimson gown. She was with her cousin, Theodore Robinson, a junior in Harvard.

Harvard showed up better than she has at any time before this year. There were no long runs, but a great many five and ten-yard dashes were made chiefly because of the better interference.

The backs were still slow in starting, but on the whole there was more team work than at any time previous.

The features of the game were the brilliant rushing of Tenney at right half, and the beautiful playing of Barnard in the line. Barnard fairly picked his opponent up and threw him back at each rush.

Stillman returned punts and kick-offs in phenomenal shape, too, and his punting was of a high order. Frequently the ball was sent away for fifty yards.

One of the prettiest plays of the day was made by Marshall, the little quarter, when he leaped fully five feet in the air to hurdle over a would-be tackler. Graydon, the old fullback, also did some pretty hurdling.

Harvard.	Position.	Bates.
Jones, Littig	Left end	Connors, Thurston
Wright, Bleakie	Left tackle	J. Reed
A. Marshall, Hovey	Left guard	Hunt
King, Lyon	Center	Cutter
Barnard, Coburn	Right guard	Howes

Marshall, Daly	Quarterback	Allen (Capt.)
Piper, Stillman	Left halfback	Towne
Tenney, Lindsay	Right halfback	Kendall
Graydon, Meier, Ives	Fullback	Briggs

Score—Harvard 23, Bates 0. Touchdowns—Graydon, Piper, Lindsay, Meier. Goals from touchdowns—Barnard (2); Daly. Umpire—Hallowell. Referee—Murchie. Linesmen—Randall, Clements. Timekeepers—Wood, B. A. A. Time—15-minute halves. Attendance, 4500.

YALE DEFEATED AMHERST 23 TO 0

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 4.—Yale beat Amherst here this afternoon by a score of 23 to 0 in a really hard-fought game. Amherst was made up of fighters, and they were able to hold Yale plungers on several occasions.

Capt. Chadwick, Shevlin and Farmer did Yale's best work, while Goss showed up in improved form. Chadwick scored a 30-yard run, amid wild cheers, and made a touchdown. Yale's ends were much stronger, and her backs did good work every try. Yale coachers are much elated over the playing. Line-up:

Yale	Positions.	Amherst.
Shevlin	Left tackle	Pierce
Glass	Left guard	Palmer
Holt	Center	Howard
Goss	Right guard	Varnum
Hogan	Right tackle	Priddy
Coffin	Right end	Griswold
Metcalf	Quarterback	Daniels
Chadwick	Left half	Washburn
Ward	Right half	Biram
McClintock	Fullback	Quill

Goals from touchdown—Yale, McClintock, Bowman 2.

M'KENDREE BEAT THE HIGH SCHOOL

Score in the Game at Lebanon Was Seventeen to Nothing.

LEBANON, Ill., Oct. 4.—McKendree defeated St. Louis High School today, 17 to 0. The ground was poor on account of heavy rains. Both teams were a little weak on defense.

McKendree won the toss and took the south goal. Serweck, Gould, Wallis, Harmon and Van Cleave advanced the ball for large gains. Van Cleve made several sensational hurdles and during the second half scored a drop kick from the 30-yard line.

The touchdowns were made by Serweck and Burgard. Flint kicked both goals. For High, Ben Gray played a star game. The team as a whole was good on defending line bucks, but could not break the interference of their heavy opponents. Coach Morgan and Manager Boothby congratulated McKendree on their clean game.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—The baseball season with the National League ended here today with a double-header, in which New York and Boston broke even. In the first game Malarkey was sent in against Mathewson and while he was hit harder, he kept the batting scattered. Long played a magnificent game at short, accepting eleven chances. In the second game errors by Demont and timely batting gave New York five runs and the game. Boston managed to score a single run in the eighth, preventing a shutout. McGinnity had the best of the pitching. Attendance 1715. Scores:

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.

Chicago at St. Louis, two games.
Pittsburg at Cincinnati.

A dozen games like the one yesterday afternoon between the Cardinals and the Chicagos would not be worth the price of a single admission. The game may have looked like a hot contest from a telegraphic figure report, but the spectators who sat freezing for an hour and 28 minutes with absolutely nothing to create even a little enthusiasm, thought it would be real nice if the managements would refund their six-bits to pay their carfare home.

In the first place the weather was beastly, and the grounds were like mush. Nobody in the game had a spark of get-up about him and the only feature was the listlessness of the players. But there is some excuse for them at that. Only two hundred persons turned out to watch them perform, and during the last three innings an exceedingly disagreeable drizzle soaked through their uniforms and chilled them to the bone. It was impossible for them to run bases in their usual form, and when the ball bounded through the grass it landed in the player's hands attached to a big cake of mud.

Both Yerkes and Morrissey were extremely out of shape. They could no more find the plate than if there wasn't any. Kruger made a very wild throw to first, and Chance muffed a ball after he had it in his hands, while on two occasions the ball was held by the fielder until too late to catch the runner. Umpire Brown made a decision in the Cardinals' favor which netted them a run, which was vigorously questioned by the opposing team, but he clung to it. During the fifth, sixth and seventh innings rain was falling, and as neither team seemed able to score, the game was called, as much on account of darkness, however, as because of the rain.

A double-header is announced for this afternoon if the weather permits, and it is promised that the men will exhibit more spirit than they did yesterday.

SAILOR'S DREAM WON STAKE AT FAIR GROUNDS

His Closing Price Was 15 to 1 and at These Good Odds He Led All the Way and Finished an Easy Victor

BY R. D. WALSH.

As is usual in such events the unexpected happened in the running of the William J. Lemp stakes at the Fair Grounds yesterday. Everything considered, weight, distance and condition of the track it can be truthfully affirmed that the best horse won.

Of the five horses that participated in the contest the extreme outsider in the betting won, Sailor's Dream closing price was 15 to 1, and he was ridden by that prince of western lightweights, Jockey A. W. Booker. In his victory he was materially assisted by the start, but his advantage in that respect was entirely due to Booker's alertness.

There was rather a long delay at the post, due to Mr. Dade's conscientious efforts to get them off to an even break, and in this delay the heavy-weighted Gold Bell suffered the most, because in every false start he was out in front and in consequence was considerably used up before the real start was effected.

When the red flag finally dropped as a sign that they were off, Sailor's Dream and Gold Bell rushed to the front. These two had a marked advantage in the start and Booker did not hesitate to make the most of it. In the first quarter he opened up a long gap between himself and the rest of the field and never relinquished that position to the end.

Sailor's Dream was greatly favored in the weights and like a true son of Pirate of Penzance he reveled in the heavy going. Gold Bell, vigorously ridden by Dale, chased him for the first five furlongs, but the effort tired him badly and he had to surrender second place to Jack Young who finished with a determined rush and ran a game race.

GOLD BELL'S HEAVY WEIGHT.

When it is considered that Gold Bell carried 27 pounds more than the winner and 22 pounds more than Jack Young it must be admitted that his performance was a most meritorious one, and stamps him as a colt of high quality. Jack Young just managed to beat him a neck for second place.

The Fizer filly, Lazarre, with only 92 pounds and Houbre up was played down from 15 to 8 to 1, but finished in her proper place, last. She was completely outclassed in that company and had no possible chance of winning. The fact hat she got a poor sendoff in no way affected the result.

Ed Layson, on whom the hopes of the Hayes cohorts were centered, ran a most disappointing race in going which was supposed to be and undoubtedly was, to his entire liking. He displayed no speed at any part of the race, and although he was piloted by an excellent rider, Lee Jackson, he did not seem to be able to untrack himself.

Mr. Baker confidently expected to win the race with Jack Young, but he was beaten by a disadvantage in the start and a difference of five pounds in weight, which was considerable in view of the terrible condition of the track. It is also probable that Booker is a better rider than Birkenruth, though the latter is accounted one of the best boys in the West.

SAILOR'S DREAM NEGLECTED.

As far as the bookmakers were concerned the race could not have resulted more advantageously to them than it did. There was an enormous play on Layson, Gold Bell and Jack Young and as Sailor's Dream was practically neglected it is easy to see that they reaped a rich harvest.

Sailor's Dream did not figure to win and was not selected by any of the experts of New York, Chicago or St. Louis. The best I could do was to give him third place and I was the only one who so honored him. Sept. 11 he finished seventh in a six furlong race, being beaten by such a selling plater as The Advocate.

Sept. 6 he finished last in a field of seven at seven furlongs and was beaten by Jack Young, among others, who gave him 5 pounds. He was a different horse yesterday, fit and ready, and true to the traditions of his breeding in being a mud lark of the first water.

Outside of the stake race the card was only of mediocre quality. It was a day of disaster for the favorites, only one out of seven crossing the wire first. This was in the sixth race, when Pyrrho, with Lee Jackson up, cantered home an easy winner in front of Potheen.

This favorite would have fallen by the wayside, too, if Dr. Street's horse had been given a better send off. Pyrrho was off in front and Potheen was off last in a field of ten, and still the Darden horse only won by a neck. With an even break there is no question that Potheen would have won.

Dr. Scharff was the longest shot of the day to win, his price at one time being as high as 20 to 1. With a more vigorous and intelligent ride Tom Collins would have beaten the Doctor, but Tod Walsh seems to have lost all his cunning and is only a pigmy compared to what he was a year ago.

Extol, a handsome son of the great [illegible], won the second race at odds of 10 to 1. I was the only one of the turf experts who gave this fellow as a good thing, and he fully justified the good things I said of him by winning in hollow fashion. He is a good colt and will be heard from in better company.

Joe Lesser won the opening event about as he pleased. He took command early in the race and kept that position to the end, winning by half a dozen lengths. Joe is a distinguished mud lark, but Mission, who was also in this race, is another mudder and he did not appear to be trying.

The Mormon at a long price—10 to 1—captured the third race handily from King Tatius and Joe Collins. Trauer showed prominently to the stretch, but collapsed.

Lee Jackson rode two winners, and has already shown that he still retains the skill which made him famous in California.

FAIR GROUNDS RACING RESULTS

FIRST RACE, seven furlongs—Joe Lesser 95 (Houbre), 2¼ to 1, first; Leenja 97 (Jackson), 2½ to 1, second; Russellton 100 (Waldo), 8 to 1, third. Time, 1:33¼.

Hainault, Ermack, Jake Weber, Kitty G., The Boer, Optimo, Wall and Tickful also ran.

FEARS NO APACHE UPRISING.

Government Not Worried Over White Settlers' Repeated Apprehension.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The interior department officials are not worried over the reported apprehension of settlers near the Fort McDowell reservation in Arizona that the Apaches may cause serious trouble. The view of the department is that the white settlers, as for a long time past, are trying to force the Apaches off the abandoned reservation on which the latter have settled. No complications are anticipated by the authorities here.

SNYDER GUILTY— SENTENCE FIVE YEARS

duce the bribe taker and ask that you believe his statement beyond all question.

"He has sworn, so he admitted before you, falsely time and time again."

"I have said and I repeat that perjury is worse than bribery."

Judge Priest then attacked Uthoff, saying:

"He is a self-confessed murderer, a cringing liar. Uthoff, the confessed boodler, the main reliance of the prosecution. Can you think of a man so utterly depraved and debauched as to accept bribes from conflicting interests?"

He attacked Kobusch's testimony and said:

"There is an old axiom: 'Once false always false. Once a liar always a liar, once a perjurer always a perjurer.'"

The spectators stood as if spellbound at Judge Priest's endeavor. There was scarcely an audible sound in the room, as he delivered his speech.

MR. FOLK'S ARGUMENT.

No abatement of the intense interest with which Judge Priest had been followed for an hour was noticed when Circuit Attorney Folk confronted the jury.

Mr. Folk spoke for 40 minutes, taking only two-thirds of his allotted time.

He spoke always to the jury, never turning to the judge, the opposing counsel or the auditors, as Judge Priest had done.

Mr. Folk opened by defending his own position in the case, which had been assailed by Judge Priest in assertions that the prosecution was inspired by ambition.

"I am here," he said, "as the representative of the state. It is my duty to prosecute the guilty and to spare the innocent. It can no more be my purpose to mislead you and to work injustice than it could be yours.

"Judge Priest has told you that bribery is a trifling offense. What does he consider a serious offense?

"If the story which has been told on the witness stand in your hearing does not bring the blush of shame to the cheek of every citizen, what could? How could crime be more rampant, more shameless?

"A trifling offense for men elected to public office to sell themselves for an annual salary to corporate interests?

"A trifling offense for public servants to sell franchises belonging to the people for the profit only of their own itching palms?

"A trifling offense to induce legislators to pervert their official acts, with purposes blacker, if possible, than their own?

"If such were the general rule, if all officials were corrupt, what would government be but a debauching tyranny which a few with wealth might purchase back and forth. How could such a government endure? Is this a trifling offense?

"The briber is worse than the murderer, for while the murderer commits one crime against the law the briber perverts all law at its very source. He is worse than the anarchist, who is openly against the law, for he stealthily strikes down the law while pretending to be its friend. And worse, if this be possible, because with less possible excuse for his conduct, is the bribe giver. He is simply and utterly infamous.

"For Uthoff I do not apologize. He is not the kind of a man I would choose as an associate for myself or for any one of you. But how can the state ever prove the crime of bribery except by the testimony of one of the parties to that crime? Such crimes are not committed on the floors of legislative assemblies in the presence of many. They are done stealthily and in seclusion.

"I am firmly convinced that Uthoff has told you the truth."

MR. FOLK'S STATEMENT.

Circuit Attorney Joseph W. Folk made this statement to the Post-Dispatch after the verdict was rendered:

"Naturally I am well pleased with the verdict of the jury. I believe it was absolutely in accordance with the law and the facts.

There was not the slightest doubt on my part of the defendant's guilt. But whether the jury declared him innocent or guilty the state was entirely satisfied with the facts as presented.

"We neglected, I believe, no point which it was possible to bring out.

"From the start we were confident of our contention and the result justifies our sanguine beliefs.

"The case has served not only as an object lesson to others who would prostitute their position of public trust, but furnishes the people with an insight into the methods of the bribe giver and the bribe taker and from that standpoint alone the trial was fruitful of much good.

"For the splendid work of my associates, Mr. Maroney, Mr. Bishop and Mr. Harvey, I am greatly indebted for the fine showing the state made."

A short time before the verdict was rendered Rabbi Leon Harrison and Public Librarian F. M. Crunden stepped up to Mr Folk and congratulated him heartily on the efforts he has made, and is making to bring the boodlers to justice.

"If there is any support you desire from the law-abiding people of this community," said Rabbi Harrison, "you shall have it. You can have the financial assistance of the best citizens of St. Louis if you will only speak the word."

Mr. Folk thanked the clergyman for his kindly exprssions, saying:

"I am certain that I have every man who respects the law with me. I know this, and it has strengthened me in my work."

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE JURY

Judge Ryan's charge to the jury is viewed by lawyers as one of the master pieces of judicial instruction. While fair to the defense, it was clear that the side of the state was also guarded carefully.

The judge told the jury if it believed that Frederick G. Uthoff had voted for the Central Traction bill in the Council after the defendant had corruptly intended to influence his vote upon the payment of $50,000 or any sum of money as a gratuity, reward or bribe, the jury should find the defendant guilty of bribery as charged in the indictment, provided the jury believes from the evidence that the prosecution of the defendant has not been barred by the statute of limitations and unless the jury does so believe from the evidence it should acquit the defendant.

If the jury convicted the defendant of bribery, the judge stated, it must assess his punishment at not less than two years and not more than five in the penitentiary. If the jury convicted for attempted bribery it must assess the punishment at imprisonment for not more than five years in the penitentiary or in the city jail for a term of not more than one year and a fine of not less than $1000.

"The question of whether or not the defendant in this case has been an inhabitant of this state," said the judge, "is not for your consideration."

If the evidence shows, the jury was told, that the defendant was not usually resident in this state a sufficient length of time to make the time between the commission of the alleged bribery or attempt to bribe and the time of the indictment less than three years, then the case under the indictment is not barred by the statute of limitation.

The jury was told that the indictment was not evidence of the defendant's guilt and that the law presumed him to be innocent until proven guilty beyond reasonable doubt. But a doubt sufficient to acquit ought to be more than a mere possibility of the defendant's innocence. If, however, this presumption of innocence had been overcome by the evidence and the guilt of the defendant was established to a moral certainty and beyond reasonable doubt, the duty of the jury was to convict unless it acquitted on the ground of the statute of limitation. The jury was told that it was the sole judge of the credibility of witnesses and must reject evidence that it believed to be perjured or prejudiced. But it might convict on the evidence of Uthoff alone if it believed it to be true.

PRINCIPLE OF THE STATUTE OF LIMITATION

Frederick N. Judson, the attorney, has prepared the following statement for the Post-Dispatch:

"Statutes of limitation in criminal cases rest upon the same basis of public policy as those in civil actions. Human memory fails, witnesses scatter, and it is in the interest of public policy that controversies should be tried and determined while evidence is presumably obtainable.

"After the lapse of years it may be difficult for the state to prove the commission of a crime; but on the other hand, the death or absence of witnesses may make it difficult for an innocent man to defeat a prosecution. The state employs officials and maintains machinery for the investigation and punishment of crime, while the citizen must find his own evidence in defending against an accusation.

"The Post-Dispatch charged at the time that the Central Traction franchise was obtained by bribery, and yet more than four years have passed before any indictment was found. Under our laws there is no limitation of time in the case of any offense punishable with death or life imprisonment, but there is a limitation of three years in the case of all other felonies, bribery included.

"The reason of these limitations is that after the lapse of time the evidence may not be available to establish either guilt or innocence, and therefore, as the state has the machinery at all times for the prosecution of crime, it is proper and in the interest of public policy that prosecutions should be promptly made. It develops upon the people therefore to see that the officials elected are those who will perform their duty and make prompt prosecutions.

"While cases may occur in which the bar of the statute may protect criminals, yet it is enacted in the interest of public policy, and any change should be carefully considered."

SELLS HIS WIFE FOR $25.

Michigan Man Who Shoots Purchaser Is Acquitted of Assault Charge.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Oct. 4.—Orville Lewis, a farmer who lives near Lawton, testified today that he and William Crossman of Paw Paw made a bargain a few weeks ago whereby Crossman sold his wife to him for $25. Afterward Crossman became dissatisfied with the bargain, but Lewis considered it legal. In the altercation over Mrs. Crossman that followed the witness swore that Crossman shot him in the side.

In spite of the evidence the jury acquitted Crossman of the charge of assault with intent to kill.

ELECTRICAL WHIP, A NEW INVENTION

NOVEL METHOD OF ENERGIZING A LAZY HORSE.

MAIL CARRIER DEVISED IT

Could Not Use Whip in His Closed Wagon and Horse Knew It, So He Surprised Him.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 4.—A Georgia Edison has invented an electrical apparatus for urging horses and mules to a faster pace while drawing buggies and wagons or at the plow.

The apparatus is a very simple one. It consists of a magneto dynamo, a pair of copper plates for each horse and sufficient connecting wire to connect the dynamo with the plates. The dynamo is fastened to the wagon or buggy. The copper plates are secured under the harness saddle so that they touch the horse's hair. The connecting wires run along the tongue or shafts.

When the driver wishes his steed to take a more lively pace, instead of belaboring him with a whip, he has only to give the crank of the dynamo a few turns and the excitation which results gives the horse every desire to strike a very rapid gait.

This apparatus is the invention of James A. Giles of Elberton, Ga. Mr. Giles is mail carrier on rural free delivery route No. 1 in that county, and six days in the week makes a circuit of over 25 miles behind his [illegible] steed, "Black."

Mr. Giles was led to his invention through necessity. He found that when he closed himself in his wagon on rainy days he was unable to apply the lash to his horse without practically getting out of his house. When the wind was blowing he disliked to open his door for fear of letting his mail get wet.

"Black" soon took in the situation, and so it came about that on rainy days he paid not the slightest attention to verbal commands, knowing from experience that on such days his master would not open the door of his mail wagon to get his whip. Consequently Mr. Giles suffered constant delay on days when the weather was bad and he had most need to hurry.

He thought it might be possible for him to show "Black" that it would be advisable to move when the rain was falling as well as when the sky was filled with sunlight. Accordingly he got his apparatus in order and the new invention carefully attached to the wagon and harness. At the first application of the electricity the horse manifested the most profound attention. The electric whip was a success from the start.

Since that time Mr. Giles has been using the electric whip regularly. It has now been in use for over three months, and he becomes more pleased with it every day. When Mr. Giles explained his invention to a number of his friends in Elberton they became enthusiastic over it and urged him to apply for a patent. He has done this, and will possibly place the electric whips on sale in the near future.

It has been found that instead of injuring the horse, as some thought it would, the occasional administrations of the electrical treatment really benefit the horse and keep him full of life.

Mr. Giles has the apparatus so arranged that it can be used on one horse or on a team of two, three or four horses.

A regiment of 1000 men could readily find shelter under a regular banyan tree. In India there is one of these trees which has 400 main trunks and over 8000 smaller ones.

THE SAC AND FOX YEARLY DOG FEAST

THEIR ANCIENT TRIBAL CEREMONIES OBSERVED.

CONFERRING OF A DEGREE

Thirty Dogs Were Cooked and Eaten With Gusto and Amid Much Mysterious Ceremony.

VINITA, I. T., Oct. 4.—The Sac and Fox Indians have concluded their dog feast for this year. This is an annual feast and is held annually near Stroud, O. T., and D. R. James M. Duncan of Miami, I. T., witnessed the "dog feast" which has just closed with all the forms and ceremonies of the Ancient Order of the Otterskin in which two big buck Indians were initiated and received the sacred degree of the breech clout.

He says that the candidates were first prepared for the initiation by being divested of all clothing except a breech clout. They were then put through a sweating process over a vessel steaming with herbs. While this is being done the members of the lodge, about an equal number of squaws and bucks, dance around them. The candidate is then given a pill that causes him to vomit freely. He is then taken behind the curtains and given [illegible] mysteries of the degrees, after which [illegible] dance takes place and the Indian[illegible] a kind of hoodoo meter that can[illegible] described.

Then came the [illegible] soup, the Indians drinking dog soup [illegible] seeming to relish it the same as people [illegible] drink lemonade. They had over a hundred dogs. About 30 of that number were cooked up in the lodge tent for lodge purposes. One Indian child about 8 years old took up a pup head by the nose and gnawed at it if it was good. The dogs were killed and prepared in different ways and the meat was thoroughly cooked. Some of the dogs were felled by a stout club in the hands of a big Indian. They always try to avoid losing any blood and for this reason the blow is delivered across the back of the neck. Others would take the dog by his hind legs and throw him on his side, when two big bucks would lay a strong pole across the dog's neck when the one holding the dog's legs would bring the dog's body a quick jerk over the pole and break the neck. When the dog quits kicking they cut off the tail close to the body and the legs at the knees and hocks, then lay the body onto a blazing fire until the hair is burned off. It is then scraped until it looks quite clean, then cut up in pieces from one-half to two pounds each and put into a kettle of water for cooking three to four hours.

After the dog feast the lodge is called to work again and the big medicine man is master of ceremonies. He marches six times around the big tent, where each member is seated on the grounds, carrying in his right hand an instrument like a child's rattle box, only much larger. In his left hand are as many sticks as there are persons present. Each time, as he goes around, as he passes the bucks, he pokes his rattle box toward them, saying "Hoo-ee." They reply in the same manner. Then he delivers his tools, sticks, rattle box and otter skin to the big squaw, who goes six times around poking the rattle box at the squaws exclaiming "Hoo-ee," with the emphasis on the "hoo." This ceremony is supposed to insure their good health until the next annual dog feast. After this followed the big dance, which continued for several days.

DOES IT PAY YOU

to run risks or take chances where health and future are involved, when years of success furnish assurances that it is not necessary? Medical advertisements frequently appear in the papers that were written by some advertising company or individual at so much per inch. Concerns have often approached me with such propositions, saying that they were writing advertisements for certain other doctors and that they were well pleased with the results. This I regard as a sort of confidence game on the part of the doctor. When a man fathers anything it should be his own, and you will find the treatment and results in such cases as fraudulent as their advertisements are fictitious. "Words are like leaves and where they most abound much fruit of sense beneath is rarely found." Monte men and confidence sharks always select large crowds like carnivals and fairs because opportunities are better for them. Likewise the trickster specialist enters the field of private diseases because the imperative necessity for treatment in these conditions is apparent to any sane man, and as these pretenders know their unfitness they try to make up for their lack of professional ability with alluring advertisements, suave manners and promises that they never expect to keep. A man seeking treatment owes it to himself to know that his physician is a man of ripe experience, reliable and trustworthy. When a doctor cannot establish these facts you should consult a physician who can. If you are not well enough satisfied with my reputation as a specialist for the past twenty-five years, come to my office and let me show you my plan of treating and some of my references. I accept for treatment only such cases as I know for a certainty that I can cure and in each case accepted give a written guarantee.

I treat BLOOD POISON of every character, VARICOCELE, PILES, LOST MANHOOD, STRICTURE AND REFLEX CONDITIONS. I cure these disorders to STAY CURED forever, for less expense compared with results and in a shorter time than any specialist in the city.

Examinations are free and advice cheerfully given. If you cannot call at my office write for booklet and question list.

REAL ESTATE IS IN GOOD DEMAND

CENTRAL PROPERTY ACTIVE

NEW BUILDING RECORD IS PREDICTED FOR 1902.

Fancy Prices Are Held on Real Estate Needed for Home Sites by Believers in Worlds Fair's Power to Boost.

Sales of realty during the past week were restricted largely to the residence section of the city. Medium-priced home properties are in good demand, an unusual number of sales of dwellings ranging in price from $2500 to $6000 being reported.

The uncertainty of the stock market is diverting much capital toward real estate investment, as evidenced by the improved inquiry for real estate involving speculative advantages.

The call for flats, tenements and other income producing properties is more emphatic than for a long time, a ready market being reported for this kind of property at reasonable prices. But realty men saw that as a rule, owners are deluded with the idea that the World's Fair is going to work a phenomenal boom in values and are holding out for prices that will never be realized. Applications for building loans are plentiful. Builders say that with weather conducive to active operations this winter a new record will be scored in building during the coming year.

Large Demand for Building Loans.

"Notwithstanding the great increase in the cost of building," said Harry L. Hayden the prominent real estate dealer, "compared with two years, and even with one year ago, there is a large demand for money on building loans, a demand which has naturally been stimulated by the rise in rents.

"But few agents are making any effort to meet this demand, yet here is certainly a very attractive and profitable field for investors with idle capital, whose constant complaint is that good real estate loans are so hard to find. It is a fact of common knowledge that the supply of modern dwellings and apartments is far below the ever-growing demand. Enterprising builders and investors who preceive the plain condition of things are the men who are willing and anxious to supply theacutely felt want, if only they can find capitalists ready to meet them half way. People with money to loan can be sure of good 6 per cent investments with liberal margins of security if they will supply the funds."

Down Town Property Is in Great Request.

"The inquiry for most centrally located downtown property in the past six months has been extraordinary and unprecedented, but many improvement schemes of great magnitude and importance have been blocked and estopped by the existence of tenants' leases with several years to run, the holders refusing in many cases the most tempting bonuses. Popular comment on the insufficiency and generally inferior character of the city's hotel accommodations seems to have at last resulted in a bona fide hotel enterprise, the chosen site, northeast corner of Twelfth and Olive, being an admirable location for the purpose. The real estate firm connected with the project is well known as one which does things and gets there, so we may reasonably look forward to a material realization of that oft-heralded but airy fabric, million dollar hotel."

The Mercantile Trust Co. late Saturday afternoon sold a large block of manufacturing property in North St. Louis for something over $70,000.

The final papers will pass during the coming week.

The Mercantile Trust Co. also reports having negotiated a loan for $200,000 for a long term of years on a valuable downtown corner.

AGENTS' REPORTS.

MERCANTILE TRUST CO.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports having had an exceptionally active week's business in its real estate department, having closed an unusual number of sales, with other deals of importance pending. This company also reports that it has had a large number of new properties listed with it within the past ten days, and that it has generally experienced an active business owing to the improved condition which it finds exists in the realty market.

They report the sale of a block of ground at the junction of Broadway, Gasconade and Piedmont streets, the lot fronting 350 feet on Piedmont, by a depth of 250 feet on Gasconade, on which is erected a two-story frame house, sold for the account of Mrs. Fanny Dubois for $10,000 cash, the purchaser being E. W. Bell. The improvements are considered of little value, and the purchaser bought the site with a view of using it for business purposes.

Also lot on the south side of Berlin avenue, between Euclid and King's highway, 75x250. This lot adjoins the residence of Patrick Burns on the east, and was sold by Mr. Burns for $8000 cash to a client of Small & Crouch, who contemplate erecting a large residence in keeping with the handsome homes in this block.

Also No. 2232 Adams street, a two-story brick house, erected on lot 50x125 feet, sold for the account of John Frost for $8250 cash, purchaser being Amedee V. Reyburn, Jr., who buys for an investment.

Also No. 4039 Castleman avenue, a two-story residence containing ten rooms and all conveniences, erected on lot 50x125, being in Tyler Place, sold for the account of Henderson Realty Co. to William McCabe. The property rents for $1480 per year and was purchased by Mr. McCabe for an investment.

Also No. 1635 Arlington avenue, a two-story brick residence of ten rooms, all conveniences, erected on lot 60x170, sold for the account of Ida Suhre and Alvina Hake. This property sold for $4800 to Louis H. Groue, who purchased for an investment.

Also 2115 Walnut street, a two-story brick house, erected on lot 25x125, sold for the account of W. J. Hruska for $3750, purchaser being Fred Wittkopp, who bought for a home.

Also 1265 Blackstone avenue, a two-story eight-room brick residence, erected on lot 31x135 feet, sold for the account of Thos. F. Masterson of Chicago, Ill., for $3400 cash, the purchaser being Mrs. Mary Dooling.

Also 3411 Lawton avenue, a two-story brick residence, containing nine rooms, erected on lot 25x128 feet, sold for the account of A. Friedman for $3900, the purchaser being Daniel Dwyer, a nonresident, who purchased for a home, and will move to the city. This house was listed with the Mercantile Trust Co. on last Wednesday.

Also 2763 Bacon street, a two-story brick residence of seven rooms, erected on lot 46 feet front by an irregular depth, sold for the account of Mrs. Ellen Adams for $2400, the purchaser being Thos. L. Sparks, who bought for an investment.

Also 2205 Randolph street, an old two-story brick residence, erected on lot 50x120 feet, sold for the account of Mrs. Ellen Adams for $6000, the purchaser being G. Richter Investment Co.

Also 6437 Suburban avenue, a one-story frame cottage, erected on lot 20x100 feet, sold for the account of W. K. Hegeerberg, the purchaser being Covert Realty Co., represented by Judge John H. Terry. The purchaser bought for an investment.

Also 2205-07 Randolph street, a two-story brick house, erected on lot 25x120 feet, sold for the account of Emique Parmer, for $3500 cash, purchaser being Amedee Reyburn, who bought as an investment.

Also two lots on the south side of Randolph street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets, sold for the account of Henri de Panaloza, represented by the Nicholls-Ritter Realty & Financial Co., purchaser being G. Richert Investment Co., who bought as an investment.

Also 3031 Dickson street, two-story 8-room brick house, erected on lot 25x118 sold for the account of G. H. Martine, for $2600 cash, the purchaser being Mrs. Frank T. Bolin, who will occupy as her home.

Also lot on the south side of Arco avenue, between Taylor and King's highway, in Gibson Heights, 25x126 feet, sold for the account of J. P. Brennan, for $30 per foot cash, purchaser being Joseph J. Mounts, who contemplates erecting a house.

Also lot adjoining the above on the east, 25x126, sold for the account of Henderson Realty Co., for $30 per foot, to the same purchaser.

Also southwest corner of St. Louis and Lambdin avenues, lot 30x100 feet, sold for the account of F. C. Schultz, represented by Attorney W. B. Thompson, for $1200, the purchaser being J. C. Duemler, who will erect a building.

Also lot on the north line of Pope avenue, between Bulwer and Prescott, sold for the account of E. C. Lackland, Jr., for $30 per foot, the purchaser being Katie Unger, who buys as a building site.

Also lot on the south side of Cote Brilliante avenue, near Hamilton, in Mount Auburn, for account of Henderson Realty Co., for $1100, purchaser being Robert E. Bruce.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports having negotiated a loan of $200,000 for a long term of years on a valuable downtown corner, and also to have made a number of smaller loans at current market rates.

This company also reports a number of leases, and that the healthy demand for property for rent continues unabated.

COMMONWEALTH TRUST CO.

The Commonwealth Trust Co. reports a very satisfactory week in its real estate department, especially in the sales, renting and leasing branches.

It reports the sale of the property located at 1324, 1326 and 1328 Chestnut street. This property consists of a two-story brick building, used by Mr. Nathaniel S. Clements as a livery stable. The lot has a frontage of 75 feet on the south line of Chestnut street by a depth to an alley of 72 feet 7 inches, and lies only 50 feet east of Fourteenth street. The property was sold for Mrs. M. Virginia Clements to an out-of-town client of the Commonwealth Trust Co. Mrs. Clements was represented by Mr. Joseph S. Rothwell. Negotiations are now pending for a lease of this property at a figure that will make it a very handsome investment.

Also sold the property located at 1007 Lucas avenue, consisting of a two-story brick building, with lot 20x105 feet to an alley. This property was sold for account of a client of the Commonwealth Trust Co. to Mr. Robert A. Burns.

This is the second time the Commonwealth Trust Co. has sold this property within a month.

It also reports a sale on O'Fallon street, the particulars of which will be given in a few days.

The Commonwealth Trust Co. has had a large number of inquiries during the week for business property.

F. E. FOX.

Mr. F. E. Fox, representing the Lindell R. E. Co., reports the following sales during the past week:

Sold to Jos. W. Dye of the St. Louis Hay and Grain Co., 2912 Sullivan avenue, a modern red brick, seven-room house, on a 37½-foot lot. The improvements include a brick street and alley.

Also sold to J. L. Dawkins the adjoining house, No. 2914 Sullivan avenue, one a drab brick of same size. Both parties bought for homes, paying $4250 each.

The Lindell R. E. Co. is having plans prepared for more houses in the Lindell Park subdivision east of Grand avenue. This company finished the first 12 houses in Lindell place Oct. 1, three of which were sold in course of construction. This company reports a good inquiry for real estate.

ROYAL INVESTMENT CO.

C. R. H. Davis, president of the Royal Investment Co., sold house No. 4633 Berlin avenue, in Berlin Heights, from the Royal Investment Co., to Mr. Safford S. De Lano, treasurer of the American Car & Foundry Co., $18,000 cash. Mr. De Lano purchased for a home and will occupy the house before the 20th inst. This house is west of the house recently sold Mr. Seward for $18,000.

Also sold to The Federal Investment Co. a lot on the south side of Forest Park boulevard, about 500 feet east of King's highway, having a frontage of 70 feet, for $85 per foot, from Mr. F. H. Gehart. The Federal Investment Co. will build two fine houses on the lots at once.

FISHER & CO.

Fisher & Co.'s sales are five in number and aggregate $30,000, as follows:

No. 5869 Cates avenue, (east of Hamilton avenue), new, modern two-story double twelve-room brick dwelling, reception hall, hardwood finish throughout, hot-water heat, two bathrooms, every convenience, property of William White, sold to George T. Meyer for $12,000. Mr. Meyer will occupy this property as his future home. Andrews, Rice & Co. represented the purchaser in this transaction.

Also Nos. 1020 and 1022 North N[illegible] between Wash and Carr streets, [illegible] brick building, store and eight rooms [illegible] two-story twelve-room brick tenement in [illegible] renting for $60 per month, lot 31x131, property of John Revitsky. Sold to Jacob Goldstein for $4500, purchased as an investment.

Also 180 acres of land in Pike County, nine miles southwest of Bowling Green, Mo. This land is in a high state of cultivation and is improved with a large two-story two-room frame dwelling. The sale was on behalf of William Dunn; sold to H. J. Moore at the rate of $30 an acre, or $5400.

Also No. 4051 Page avenue, two-story nine-room brick dwelling, reception hall and all modern conveniences, with lot 28x135, property of Mrs. Florence Michel. Sold to William P. Cody for $4500. Purchased for a home.

Also Blaine avenue, north side, west of Spring avenue, vacant lot 75x128, property of Louis Meiners; sold to Henry T. Kuhule for $26 per front foot. The purchaser has plans for the erection of three two-story brick buildings arranged as six-room flats.

HENRY HIEMENZ, JR.

Lot on the south side of Sidney street in Magnolia Heights, midway between Arkansas and Tennessee avenue, 30x125, from Otto L. Fortman of San Antona, Tex., to August Ellerman, at $32 per foot.

No. 2331 Virginia avenue, a modern two-story brick building, with lot 25x128 feet, from Julius Hartig to Anna Hohenschild for $5150, who bought for a home. Charles F. Vogel represented the seller.

Also lot on the south side of Connecticut street, east of Morgan Ford road, 25x124, from W. P. Sachs for $350 to Henry Detjen, who will improve with a dwelling.

Also lot on the south side of Hickory street, between Cardinal and Compton avenues, 30x125, with stable and other improvements of little value, from W. F. Fell to Harry Waits for $800.

RUTLEDGE & KILPATRICK.

Sold for Symmes estate No. 1529 Olive street, an old three-story building with lot fronting 20 feet by a depth of 106 feet, to a non-resident client of Phil Chew's for $15,000.

Also sold for Stanford Investment Co. to Henry Llewellin, flats, 5201-03 Fairmount avenue, of four and five rooms each, for $11,000 cash. Mr. Llewellin was represented by the Brennan Real Estate Co.

Also closed a 99-year lease on a prominent Olive street corner, particulars of which will be given in a few days.

Also sold house 3943 Lincoln avenue, a five-room frame house, with lot 25 feet front, from Francis J. Maguire to Matilda Tesson for $1600.

Also sold house 3901 South Compton avenue, a four-room brick house, with lot 77 feet front, from a client to W. H. McDade.

Also sold for account of Stanford Investment Co. 1306 Granville place, a seven-room brick house, with bath and all conveniences, lot 25 feet front, to Joseph E. Bray for a home for $3450. The Stanford Investment Co. is just completing several more houses adjoining this house, which will be ready for occupancy about Oct. 15.

THE SHIELDS AUCTION.

B. F. Shields on Oct. 11 will close out by auction on the premises 33 residence and business sites, located at Marcus, St. Ferdinand and Cottage avenues. The property is improved with vitrified brick streets, sewers, water, gas and electric lights, besides having the advantages of churches of all denominations, public schools and other conveniences.

The terms of the sale are one-fourth cash, balance one, two and three years, with 6 per cent interest on deferred payments. The property is reached by the Easton avenue or any other cars by transferring to the Taylor avenue line. Henry L. Sutton will cry the sale.

NICHOLLS-RITTER

Sales for the week amount to $57,700.

The entire office force and salesmen of the Nicholls-Ritter Realty & Financial Co. have been on the jump all the week, this being one of the busiest weeks they have ever experienced. Besides doing a large loaning and rental business they have closed the following sales:

For account of Henry A. Stegrist, the one-story brick manufacturing building on the northeast corner of Second and Vine streets, known as 500 North Second street, lot 44 feet on Second and 137 feet on Vine street; sold to Jas. F. Ballard of the Ballard-Snow Liniment Co., for $25,000. This property consists of one-story building, with very heavy walls, capable of receiving two or three more stories. Ballard-Snow Liniment Co. will use its purchase for business purposes.

The lot upon which these improvements are built was sold by the Nicholls-Ritter Realty & Financial Co. to Hy A. Siegrist in February, 1900, for $6000. Mr. Siegrist improved it at once, making it his place of business.

They also sold for account of A. K. Humphrey the new 12-room brick residence, 4370 McPherson avenue, to Wm. Grayson, Jr., for $14,000. This is one of the handsome houses built by A. K. Humphrey on the south side of McPherson avenue, west of Boyle avenue. It was formerly occupied by Cyrus E. Clark, who purchased through the Nicholls-Ritter Realty & Financial Co. a house from A. K. Humphrey on the north side of the street. Mr. Grayson will make this house his home as soon as some alterations are completed.

They also sold for account of Wm. Burd of California the 60-foot lot on the north side of Morgan street, near Academy avenue, west of King's highway, for $3450, to the Murch Bros. Construction Co.

On this lot Murch Bros. are erecting two elegant flats which will be finished very shortly.

They also sold for account of Heri de Penaloza lot 50-ft. front by 130-ft. deep on the south side of Randolph street, west of Twenty-second street. The property was bought as a speculation.

REALTY NOTES.

W. D. McKeever, formerly a well-known newspaper man, is the latest addition to the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co.

WHAT DOES MORGAN MEAN?

Orders 50,000 Tons of Coal From Wales to Be Distributed in New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—J. Pierpont Morgan, acting in the name of the International Mercantile Marine Co.—the shipping combine—has arranged to purchase 50,000 tons of coal in Wales and ship it to this city as rapidly as possible for distribution to the poor and public institutions.

If more coal is needed to relieve the famine that will result if the strike is continued, Mr. Morgan will bring it from Wales.

The treasury department was notified today that there are 100,000 tons of anthracite at Montreal available for shipment to this country.

News of the Morgan gift was given out in a staement issued at the Morgan banking house by Mr. Steele, one of Mr. Morgan's partners. From the statement it would appear that the International Mercantile Marine Co. is the donor of the coal, but there is no doubt that Mr. Morgan personally is going to an expense of at least $500,000 to relieve the coal situation.

What there is back of this gift of Mr. Morgan's is a matter of speculation in Wall street. In some circles it is believed to be a slap at the presidents of the coal roads, who have so obstinately refused to consider any terms for the settlement of the strike save unconditional surrender on the part of the miners.

Those who believe that Mr. Morgan's action is directed against the presidents of the coal roads assert that Mr. Morgan sent for President Truesdale last week and told him that the strike must be settled.

President Truesdale is reported to have said that Mr. Morgan mixed in the strike two years ago, and made possible the situation as it exists today, and that he would have to keep out and let the operators go along the lines they have laid down.

The buying of coal in Wales is taken to be Mr. Morgan's answer to this.

Fifty thousand tons, it is figured, will supply coal all through the winter to at least 25,000 families. An average family contains five persons, so Mr. Morgan arranged for heating, all through the winter, 125,000 persons.

The sudden action taken by Mr. Morgan is considered significant by those familiar with the inner workings of the coal situation for two reasons.

The first of these is the belief of the operators that they may become the targets of attack when cold weather sets in, and all the horrors of a winter without fuel manifest themselves and work the population of this and other cities up to deeds of violence.

By supplying the very poorest people of the city with coal, danger of an uprising by them is averted.

One of the operators, who had a talk with Mr. Morgan just before the latter decided to bring the 50,000 tons of coal here, said to a reporter in the office of J. P. Morgan & Co.

"You must understand that we are face to face with a great crisis. We have to be most careful in everything that we do or say."

EVERYTHING READY FOR THE BIG FAIR

BEGINS MONDAY, BUT GATES ARE OPEN TODAY.

BIG THURSDAY LEGAL HOLIDAY

Monday Is School Children's Day and Friday's Receipts Go to the Leading Charities.

Everything is in tip top shape for the opening of the forty-second annual St. Louis Fair on Monday. The Fair Grounds will be open today for public inspection of the exhibits; today will be 25 cents. The three big days of Fair week, will be Monday, Thursday and Friday. Monday the public school children will be admitted free.

Big Thursday will be a general holiday. Friday, charity day. The entire receipts of this day will be turned over to the Provident Association, St. Vincent de Paul's Society and United Jewish charities.

The special attractions for the arena include Capt. Woodward's performing seals and sea lions; Prof. Baldwin, the balloonist; F. H. Conley, the one-legged trick cyclist; Ancolette trio of arial artists, and Prof. Edward Rix, high wire performer.

The horse show will continue every afternoon in the amphitheater, while the cattle show will be held in the same arena in the forenoon. The sheep and swine departments will be located near the Prairie avenue or north gate. The poultry department is very extensive.

Thousands of beautiful specimens of handiwork of the fair sex will be seen in the Textile hall. Cash premiums aggregating $12,000 will be distributed in this department. The awards will be made today. Peter Adair of Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney is in charge of this department.

Women and girls will also be the principal exhibitors in the general exhibit building. All kinds of jellies, preserves, canned fruits, bread, cakes and other products of the kitchen will be shown in this department.

An interesting exhibit of amateur photography is also promised. There will be an immense display of fruits, grains and vegetables in the same building.

REV. DR. SCARRIT HAS WITHDRAWN

ST. BARTHOLOMEW PARISH CONTROVERSY ENDED.

It was stated last night by a close friend of Rev. Dr. W. R. Scarritt, projector of the proposed new St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Parish, that Dr. Scarritt had withdrawn from his position, which created a considerable controversy, three rectors having united in a printed protest to Bishop Tuttle against the project.

Dr. Scarritt was called up by telephone last night at his home, 4528 Westminster place, and in reply to a question as to whether he had withdrawn he said that he had agreed with Bishop Tuttle to refer all inquiries regarding the subject to the bishop.

The protest, filed by the three rectors was in pamphlet form, entitled, "The Plot to Destroy the Church of the Redeemer," and it was signed by Dr. R. A. Holland of St. George's Church, Rev. J. K. Brennan of St. Mark's and Rev. William Elmer of St. Philip's.

It was alleged in the pamphlet that the new parish was a one-man enterprise, and the declaration was made that by reason of it the Church of the Redeemer was made to pay $3750 more for a lot at Washington boulevard and Euclid avenue than it would have been required to pay had it not been for a "tax levied by lawless competition."

FINE RESIDENCE AT 25% LESS THAN COST.

HERE IS AN OPPORTUNITY TO BUY A FINE HOME, AT A PRICE AT LEAST ONE-FOURTH LESS THAN YOU CAN BUILD IT TODAY. NO. 4318 VIRGINIA AVENUE.

Has nine finished rooms, everything in complete order and repair; finely finished inside; bath, hot and cold water, hardwood floor in dining room, Home Comfort furnace, fine yard, 4-foot terrace, large trees. The place is surrounded by nice houses and situated just far enough out to have the benefits of pure air.

It was put up several years ago for a home and the only reason for selling is that the owner wants to purchase a larger house, nearer his place of business.

Don't miss this, if you want a big bargain, for the house, without the lot, cost $4500, and all he wants for it is $4250 for the house and 50 feet of ground, or will sell with 100-foot front.

"KID" SHERIDAN IN THE HOLDOVER

Arrested by Officer Coulter at Zelazo's Saloon.

HAS BEEN IN ST. LOUIS, ILL

"RECKON YOUV'E GOT ME SPOTTED," HE SAID JAUNTILY.

Ex-Delegate of Fourth Ward Declines to Tell Name of Hospital in Which He Has Been Ensconsed So Long.

Scarcely had Fugitive Emile Hartmann been brought back from Indian Territory and placed in jail yesterday morning when Fugitive John A. Sheridan was arrested in the West End and lodged in the Four Courts lockup.

The "Kid," former delegate from the Fourth ward, defeated in a memorable "Indian" battle atthe polls by the Hon. "Snake" Kinney, had been a fugitive from justice since Sept. 8, having been indicted upon two charges of bribery and one charge of perjury, as one of the 18 upon whom the John K. Murrell thunderbolt fell.

For two weeks past a price of $300 has been upon his head, to be paid by the state upon his capture.

"Kid" Sheridan, when at home, lived at 918 Morgan street. His business, when he worked at it, was that of a beer salesman.

Probably a majority of the policemen in St. Louis knew the "Kid" by sight, but it was left to Patrolman William Coulter of the Tenth district to be the first to recognize the fugitive after nearly four weeks of liberty.

Officer Coulter Spotted the "Kid."

Coulter yesterday morning was standing on Delmar avenue near Euclid avenue when he saw a familiar figure enter the saloon of Louis Zelazo at that corner. It was a big, heavy-set man, with a smooth, round face.

"Kid Sheridan, sure!" said the officer to himself.

He waited until the big man emerged, then walked up behind him and called him by name. The "Kid" turned around, but said nothing, and walked on. Coulter followed him to Delmar and Walton avenues, where he placed him under arrest, informing the prisoner that he, the prisoner, was "Kid" Sheridan.

"Reckon you've got me spotted, old man," said the "Kid," agreeably, "and I'll go along with you. I was on the way to the Four Courts to give myself up, anyhow."

Coulter and his prisoner reached the Four Courts, via the Deer street police station, at 12:30 o'clock. Sheridan was taken before Chiefs Kiely and Desmond and was questioned mildly.

"Where have you been all this time?" asked Chief Kiely.

Sheridan hesitated before replying: "Why, I was in a hospital for ten days."

He declined to give the name of the hospital, but said that it was a private institution.

Sheridan in St. Louis Most of the Time.

He also said that he had been in St. Louis most of the time, but had spent a few days in St. Louis County.

He explained his failure to "come in" at once by saying that he was sick at the time of the indictment and couldn't surrender himself. Sheridan refused to talk about his indictment.

Sheridan was the Fourth ward member in the House of Delegates preceding the present body. He was the opponent of Willian Vogel, who was elected at the polls. The House combine, however, elected Murrell speaker, ousted Vogel and seated Sheridan.

Vogel carried the case to the supreme court, which decided that the House of Delegates was the proper judge of its own membership. Vogel, however, by injunctions kept Sheridan from drawing his salary of $25 a month.

But "Kid" Sheridan, it is alleged, drew $2500 at the Julius Lehmann birthday party, as his pro rata of the $47,500 bribe money that was paid for the passage of the lighting bill through the House of Delegates.

The capture of Hartmann and Sheridan leaves four fugitives still in the brush—Kelly, Lehmann, Decker and Madera.

HORSE A PRACTICAL JOKER.

Let All His Companions Out of the Stable Yard After Night.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 4.—A mystery that for a considerable time worried the Rhodes-Haverty Co., and that finally led that firm to offer a reward of $25 for the apprehension of the party guilty of the annoyance, has been explained.

Almost every night recently the gate of the Rhodes-Haverty Co.'s stable yard has been opened and the horses turned out. Every morning the drivers and stable hands would have to scour the neighborhood in search of the animals, and this task soon became an intolerable nuisance in addition to the delay it caused in the starting of the day's work.

Finally the firm offered a reward of $25 for the capture of the practical joker or malicious mischief maker. Joe Orberg, a substitute policeman, went after the reward. The other night he secreted himself in the vicinity of the yard and awaited developments. About 2 a. m. he saw the gate swing open and the horses come trooping forth. He hustled into the yard at once, but could find no one to arrest, so he gave chase to the horses, rounded them up and drove them back.

Next night he concealed himself in the yard. Sometime after midnight he saw the oldest horse in the bunch walk up to the gate, raise the bar with its nose and then let it fall while the gate swung open.

Orberg closed the gate before the horses got out and spent the rest of the night cogitating as to whether or not he should arrest the practical joker.

COTTON IN KENTUCKY.

An Experiment in Raising It Seems to Give Promise.

SHELBYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—J. C. Claxon is showing samples of cotton grown by him in his garden. It is of the short-fleece variety and the bolls are of large size, well filled and matured and of remarkably fine quality to be grown in this latitude.

Refuses to Write.

From the Philadelphia Post.

That a man can successfully conduct a vast business for a number of years without writing or signing a letter seems to be incredible in this age of universal letter-writing, but it is said that J. Edward Addicks, who is president of a dozen corporations, never writes or signs a communication of any description.

Some years ago Mr. Addicks, according to the story, wrote a hasty letter to an old friend and business associate, but, by some unfortunate accident, it was not mailed. The next day the injustice of the letter was so strongly impressed upon his mind that he vowed that he would never write another letter.

He has telephones in each of his four homes, in those of all his confidential agents and employes, and in the private offices of all of the ma[illegible] porations with which he is identified, and [illegible] paid [illegible]

WALBRIDGE FOR CONGRESS

Ex-Mayor Can Have the Nomination in the Twelfth District if He Wants It.

Ex-Mayor Cyrus P. Walbridge had the Twelfth Congressional District Convention practically at his feet yesterday, and great pressure is being brought to bear upon him to accept the nomination for Congress.

Opposed to him were George D. Reynolds and Hiram Lloyd, the former appearing to be the stronger opponent. Reynolds was squelched just before adjournment by the seating of contesting delegates from the Twenty-second, Fifteenth and Fifth wards favorable to Walbridge's candidacy.

The convention will meet again at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon to receive the report of a committee of five appointed to investigate whether or not the convention should nominate a candidate for the unexpired term of James J. Butler.

George Wagner, the undertaker, was out for the unexpired term, while Reynolds wanted both.

Ex-Mayor Walbridge is acceptable to both R. C. Kerens and State Chairman Akins, they feeling that he could do more in the race than any other Republican in the district.

FOLLOWED WIFE $1000 MILES.

Found Her With Her Paramour, Just as He Expected To.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 4.—J. W. Benson of St. Augustine, Fla., found his wife and little son in this city after a search extending over 1400 miles.

The woman and her child disappeared from St. Augustine about a month ago, and a short time after George Meyer of that city also left his home.

Benson suspected that Meyer and his wife had arranged an elopement and intended to meet at some place out of the st[illegible] He followed them through North Carolina and to this place. Benson saw his wife cross along the sidewalk and pointed her out to an officer. She was followed to a boarding house, where Meyer and the child were found. It is said that the couple have been living as husband and wife since coming here, the woman having secured work in a dressmaking establishment.

She denies that Benson is her husband, but says Meyer deserted his wife in St. Augustine to elope with her.

Meyer was arrested on a warrant from St. Augustine and is now in jail.

Benson says he only wants his boy, and when he secures possession of him will let his wife go her way.

HELD BODY FOR FOUR YEARS.

Undertaker Kept It for Charges—Now There Is No One to Pay Them.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Oct. 4.—The Owensboro Undertakers' Association has a strange case to deal with. A little child of A. M. White, a veterinary surgeon, who lived here, died in the spring of 1898, and it was sent to Robert Tennelly, an undertaker, to be prepared for burial. When it was embalmed the parents had no money to pay the undertaker, who refused to give it up.

The body remained in Tennelly's establishment until a few weeks ago, when it passed to the Owensboro Undertakers' Association, which bought Tennelly out. The present proprietors desire to get rid of the body, but there is no one to take it.

At the time Tennelly refused to give the body to its parents, a Louisville paper published an account of it, which resulted in an important damage suit and a judgment for Tennelly for $5000. The parents of the child are no longer here, and the Owensboro Undertakers' Association has a baby on hand that has been dead for more than four years.

Eight hundred and twenty-two years was the aggregate age of 11 persons who died recently at Yarmouth, England.

CRUELTY DROVE CONVICTS TO IT

Amputated Three of Their Own Fingers.

TASKS TOO HEAVY FOR THEM

GUARD'S RESIGNATION A PROTEST AGAINST CRUELTIES.

Harrowing Stories Are Current of Convicts Punished to the Verge of Insanity by Officials at the Chester Penitentiary.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 4.—The action of convicts J. Reagdon and G. Rose, who cut off three fingers from the right hand of each to escape their tasks, has brought to light a system of most inhuman cruelty which has been practiced on convicts in the southern Illinois penitentiary here. R. J. Wilson of Marissa, Ill., a keeper over the gang of which Rose and Reagdon were a part, has resigned, rather than be a party to the cruelties which the prison officials inflicted on the men as a punishment.

Mutilation to Escape Too Heavy Work.

The two convicts were employed in the foundry, and were compelled to do tasks for which their strength was inadequate. Knowing that it would be useless to complain, they were forced to the desperate expedient of cutting off parts of their hands to avoid the labor. The two men procured an old rusty hatchet and cut off the fingers.

As soon as the men were discovered they were taken to the surgeon, and had their wounded hands dressed, after which they were taken to the prison yard and forced to stand on a block the remainder of the day.

Deputy Dowell was asked by the correspondent if that was not an unusually severe punishment to inflict on men in their condition.

"No," he replied, "that is the punishment usually inflicted on unruly prisoners."

Harrowing Tales of Cruelties Practiced.

Many harrowing stories are told of cruelties practiced on convicts here. Many prisoners have been punished to the verge of insanity by inhuman guards and keepers. Keeper Wilson, who resigned, said that some of the prisoners were subjected to the most brutal and inhuman punishments.

"Shy" Daniels, a negro convict, furnishes a striking example of the kind of discipline in vogue at the Southern Illinois penitentiary. Daniels has been confined about six years. When he was received at the prison he was a most magnificent specimen of physicial manhood. Now he is a wreck and but a shadow of his former self. Daniels was possessed of an untamable spirit when he was first incarcerated, and this caused him to come in conflict several times with the prison rules. Several periods of confinement, however, in the dreaded "solitary," with its black darkness and bread and water diet, has broken him in body and spirit and made him a most model prisoner.

Physicians Inspect Them Often.

Some faint idea of the horrors and severity of punishment by solitary confinement may be had when it is known that the prison physician makes two visits a day to prisoners confined in the "solitary." The strain on prisoners undergoing solitary confinement is so great that many go insane from the horrors of the punishment.

The prison officials are very careful to suppress information in regard to such occurrences, but occasionally in especially aggravated cases, such as those of Readon and Rose, the facts will leak out.

DEAD DETECTIVE FOUND.

BREWTON, Tenn., Oct. 4.—News has reached here of the finding of the dead body of James W. Storey, a detective, in a brush pile near the camps of the Alger-Sullivan Lumber Co., 18 miles northwest of Flomaton. He was seen last at the camps, and it is supposed was murdered that night and the perpetrators of the crime made good their escape.

The discovery was made by a searching party who had missed their companion and feared that he had met with foul play.

NEVER SAW A RIVER BEFORE.

Never Was on a Street Car or Had Set Eyes on a Railroad.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 4.—Mrs. James Hulse, from Fall Branch, Tenn., an isolated town in Upper East Tennessee, was in Jonesboro this week. She is said to have declared that, though 39 years old and the mother of five children, she had never seen a river, and until she reached Jonesboro she had never gazed upon a railroad track or train and had never walked the streets of a town or city. She has 21 brothers and sisters.

MILLS SEND CHILDREN HOME.

The Owners Want Them to Attend School When in Session.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 4.—It is stated that the Whaley cotton mills had issued an order for all children under 12 years of age to be kept out of the mills. As there is considerable agitation just now on account of the pending "child labor agitation," the statement is considered of some importance.

When asked if such an order had been issued, J. Sumter Moore, general manager of the Olympia mills, stated that the mills have not done more this year than has been their custom. It is true that there were 40 or 50 children to quit the mills Monday under instructions issued Saturday, but the reason of this is that the schools resumed Monday and the mills wanted to encourage the children to attend school.

KILLED WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Husband Was Crazed to Deed by Jealousy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 4.—Luther McNeer, a traction engineer, crazed by jealousy, shot and killed his wife, to whom he had been married only five months, last night, and shot himself twice through the left breast.

The two bullets failing to kill him, he undressed himself, lay down on a bed and [illegible] of carbolic acid. The Russian Painter Tells of Visit to President.

WAS FAVORABLY IMPRESSED.

THINKS HIM A VIGOROUS, TALENTED, MORAL MAN.

Pleased Because the President Said He Thought of Skobeloff Before He Led the Charge Up San Juan Hill.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 4.—Vassili Verestchagin, the Russian painter who was sometime ago received by President Roosevelt, thus describes the audience:

"When I had been led into the blue room of the White House I was told the President would be at liberty at once. Soon afterwards a stout, rather tall gentleman, with short-cut hair, entered the room with rapid steps. He winked at me through his golden pince neze, pressed strongly my hand, and said he was 'quite delighted' to make my acquaintance. I mentioned in our conversation the charge up San Juan Hill, in which the President took part, and he promised amiably to explain fully to me everything in which I was interested. He asked me to call again that evening to talk it over with him. He said that he was more pleased on account of his regiment than on his own account that I was painting the picture showing the attack on San Juan Hill.

"The President impressed me as a vigorous, talented man who was interested in all things, especially in military matters. He speaks clearly, distinctly and to the point. He gives every sentence—if I may say so—a careful coinage. His glance is thoughtful and straightforward, his gestures expressive, his speech fluent and copious, and, as I said before, polished in every sentence.

"I talked with the President in the evening from 9 till 10:30 and had again occasion to admire the simple, sincere manner of speech of this man so very strong physically and morally. I do not believe that he pushed himself to the front in the least as he, rocking in his easy chair, told me what he did, thought and felt on that remarkably day at San Juan Hill—the only serious land battle during the war. It was very interesting to hear Mr. Roosevelt say that before he started on the charge there passed before his mind every detail of the famous charge of Skobeloff at Plevna. He repeated that he remembered this moment very well. He promised to send me his book on the Cuban campaign.

"Then he asked me to call again on the following day, that he might introduce me to the secretary of war, who would give me the necessary introduction should I wish to see the battlefield."

UNCOVER GIGANTIC SKELETON.

Bones of an Unclassified Animal Unearthed at Waco, Tex.

WACO, Tex., Oct. 4.—A force of laborers employed by the city, while digging gravel in a pit located on the outer end of South Third street, uncovered the skeleton of a gigantic animal which has not, so far, been classified. The bones are not well preserved except the joints, parts of the skull and one of the tusks. Persons who do not profess expert knowledge in such matters say the find is the remains of a mastodon. The jawbone is over two feet long and part of it is missing. The skeleton was under a layer of gravel ten feet thick, and several feet of earth had been stripped off above the gravel. W. S. Gillespie, commercial agent of the Cotton Belt route, has charge of the bones.

NO HOPE FOR SPALDING.

Former Banker Must Go Back to the Penitentiary.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—The stubborn fight made by Charles F. Spalding, the former banker, to secure his release from the state penitentiary, has proved unavailing and he must return to Joliet to serve the remainder of his sentence for embezzlement. After having been in the county jail since July 17 on a writ of habeas corpus, and after much delay in the hearing and decision of the case, one petition having been withdrawn to prevent the possibility of an adverse decision, he has been remanded to the penitentiary by Judges Smith and Bishop.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Schenley of Pittsburg, who has a house at Prince's Gate, has been much concerned because she could not agree to a proposition that the park she presented to her native city should be utilized in connection with the Carnegie scheme for a Pittsburg polytechnic institute.

Mrs. Schenley says the gave the park to Pittsburg because, looking from the windows of her London drawing room, through which she can see Hyde Park, she realized what a great boon Hyde Park is to London. So she gave the park for recreation, not for education, and she will think a long time before she turns it from its original purpose.

BEHIND THE AGE.

English Metropolis Shows No Disposition to Wake Up.

English conservatism, that stubborn spirit of opposition to adopting new methods, is keeping the great city of London behind the age in many of the conveniences of modern life that the progress of science has given to other cities. DECENCY AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

By making the authority of the Board of Lady Managers cover all shows or exhibits in which women are a chief feature, the desire of the board "that there be no indecent dances or improper exhibits in the Midway during the Exposition" may be realized. This expressed desire should be equivalent to a demand, and should be granted by the general management. It is a desire that will be shared by everyone with the exception of the toughs and hoodlums among the visitors.

It should be realized that the kind of attractions objected to by the Board of Lady Managers are not a necessary feature of a World's Fair. It would be untrue to say that even a strong minority desires such attractions. Women and children outnumber men in the population, and it is to be supposed that women and children will outnumber the men in the total number of visitors to the Fair. There should be no show or exhibit from which women and children who go to see the Fair shall be compelled to turn with disgust.

As far as St. Louis is concerned, the indecent show, the indecent picture machine and its fellow, the gambling slot machine, are fit and natural accompaniments to that regime of boodle, corruption and "wide-openness" which the city is trying so hard to abolish before the World's Fair shall open. We want a clean city and a clean Fair We can have the latter by deciding now that the male and female hoodlum shall have no part in it.

LORDLY IGNORANCE.

The London Express, prompted by President Roosevelt's frequent references to the Monroe doctrine, sent reporters to a number of representative Englishmen to get their views.

A legal gentleman dismissed the subject grandly: "My dear sir," said he, "I have not the time to offer a long explanation to a layman of the jurisprudence of the United States as expounded by Mr. Justice Monroe."

A man on 'change said he had a poor opinion of these "American quack medicines," and another financier cunningly opined that the Monroe doctrine was only "another of Mr. Pierpont Morgan's little games." But he couldn't recall the exact details.

Another gentleman explained that the doctrine was the work of Monroe, a famous American naval officer, whose motto was "shoot first and then explain afterward."

Plainly that Anglo-American alliance is being laid in the solid ground of mutual knowledge and good understanding. The statesmanlike grasp of great political principles reflected in these answers is wonderful.

Is it still a matter of pride among Englishmen to be ignorant of all things American?

ALPHABETICAL RULE OF EXPENSE.

The cost of a member of a legislative assembly depends upon his place in the rollcall, which, in turn, depends upon the first letter of his name.

Thus, if your name is, say Algernonson, you can't be worth much. In the St. Louis City Council, say $5000. But if you are Zollicofferdam, you are very expensive, you come high, but the promoters must have you at any price—say $50,000 or $100,000.

The only exception to this alphabetical rule of expensiveness applies to the presiding officer. It doesn't matter what letter begins his name. In any case, he votes after Zollicofferdam and in case of a tie may make or mar the best-laid schemes of patriotic promoters.

For these reasons you should aspire to the position of presiding officer, if you really want to get on at one jump. The presidency of such a body as the St. Louis City Council is a better capital than a complete outfit of dark lanterns, jimmies, monkey wrenches, cross-cut saws and nitroglycerine. You are the most expensive man in the bunch.

This exception aside, your profit in membership depends upon the first letter of your name. If it is early in the alphabet, you must go to see him; if it is in the neighborhood of Omega, he must come to see you and leave a bundle on the sofa.

This usually ends the transaction, but expensive men should bear in mind that it is important not only to get the bundle, but to keep it. There is no use having a name beginning with Z or U if you can't get another bundle without returning the one already left on the sofa. Never return anything.

CONSUMPTION PREVENTABLE AND CURABLE.

The New York Charity Organization has appointed "a committee on the prevention of tuberculosis."

About 35 per cent of the deaths due to consumption occur when the victims are from 15 to 34 years old and 20 per cent occur when they are 35 to 54 years old.

It is pointed out that consumption takes hold of its victims at the time of life when their powers would otherwise be at the maximum and their efficiency as [illegible] of society the greatest. The importance of the subject [illegible]

[illegible] sible to eliminate tuberculosis in this country, as yellow fever was eliminated in Havana, but that there is no reason why the elimination should not be accomplished at this present time."

This is encouraging, for it is the ripest scientific thought. And since in these days the money can always be had to carry on any humanitarian work that promises success, we may expect marked progress in the near future. If consumption is "preventable and curable," let it be demonstrated as a fact of life as well as of science.

THE LAST GRAND REVIEW.

This week the Grand Army of the Republic will march for the last time in grand review down Pennslyvania avenue at the nation's capital.

More than a generation has passed since the heroes of the civil war swept past the reviewing stand at the capital and then turned their faces homeward and their hearts to the occupations of peace. Four years they gave to their country with unselfish devotion From 1861 to 1865 they were nation makers. Then they became home-makers. Always their work was constructive.

There is something pathetic in the thought of these old men, who are about to die, celebrating for the last time the victories of their youth. Time to them is in the past. They have no future. Eternity awaits them with its mystery which they face in peace today as they faced it then in war. They have done their work and bequeath its results to men of the present, who must, in their turn, assume the responsibility of progress.

To these old veterans it must be a peculiar happiness to know that the wounds of the war in which they fought are healed. No rancor survives, no gnawing disappointment, no resentment —only a generous spirit of fellowship in a united nation, whose welfare, power and glory are jealously guarded alike by the sons of those who wore the blue and the sons of those who wore the gray.

Moreover the men of '61 have the satisfaction of knowing that by their example they taught the world that citizenship need not be sacrificed on becoming a soldier, that he is a soldier because he is first a citizen, and takes up arms only to preserve the blessings of citizenship.

Of the 2,500,000 men who enlisted during the four years of the civil war but few survive. But they may be sure that they will not fail to receive honor while they live and that they and their companions who have passed on will not be forgotten by their children and their children's children.

The spectacle of two great American financiers contending with each other for underground London must greatly interest Europe. M. now inspires in transatlantic people.

There ought to be a great world's peace conference in St. Louis in 1904 while so much of the world will be here to view the vast Exposition. POST-DISPATCH SNAP SHOTS.

Neither his tibia troubles nor the J. P. M. menace appears to modify in the least the gayety of our chief magistrate.

A titled foreigner with an American wife may constantly neglect her, but he will never cease to pay attention to her money.

The richest man's son may be a spendthrift, the soberest man's son may be a drunkard, and it appears that a novelist's son may become a destroyer of novels. The son of the great Daudet is calling for a law against fiction, believing it should be as much forbidden as morphine or cigarettes. He asserts that it warps the mind, breeds crime and causes unlimited unhappiness.

Two Wisconsin ministers have abandoned the pulpit to engage in politics. Is Wisconsin politics so bad that the preachers have to turn out to save it?

The alarming spread of petroleum drinking in Paris will not alarm the owners of American oil gushers. If petroleum has begun to take the place of whisky, a great and expanding market for it is assured. If the fuel oil jag is to take the place of the fusel oil jag, the demand for the product of American wells will be unprecedented. Many wives will be pleased to learn that the petroleum drunkard is not brutal and they will set the coal-oil can where it will be convenielnt for hubby. He can make a saloon of his home. Surely this is the era of petroleum.

SCHOOL MA'AMS FOLLOW THE FLAG

By C. L. DEYO.

The following modest dispatch appeared in the newspapers the other day:

"SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 29.—Twelve hundred public schools were opened over the entire island of Porto Rico this morning. The first day's attendance at these free schools totaled over 50,000 children."

Secretary Hay's Roumanian letter occupied a column and a half. This San Juan dispatch is three lines long. The letter was discussed through yet more columns and is still the text for congratulation, glorification and self-satisfaction. The San Juan dispatch is forgotten by all save a few earnest hearts who do not measure the importance of "news" by the number of words needed to tell it or the linear inches of palaver consumed in discussing it.

The Roumanian letter is an incident—important enough as an incident—in diplomacy. The San Juan dispatch announces a Fact of history. It's a little fact, hardly worth the emphasis of a capital letter, but it is alive, assertive, growing, with the authority of life In that is its importance. It is alive.

When the Romans conquered a nation they built roads through it, that the legions might quickly reach centers of revolt, keep the people in subjection and reduce them all to servitude—a servitude which came in time to be shared by Romans and provincials alike under the vain title of Roman citizen.

When the Americans conquered Porto Rico they built roads so that the people might readily bring the fruits of the soil to market, erected hospitals and established sanitary regulations that the islanders might enjoy life in health and strength, and opened school houses wherein to teach them the uses of that life,—all designed to raise them from the slavery of ignorance, prejudice, disease and dirt to the freedom of knowledge, reason, health and personal cleanliness under the proud title of American citizen.

Let us rejoice for a moment or two over our manifest superiority, forgetting our many and grievous faults. This is authorized because virtue is alive and will grow, while vice is dead and will pass away into innocuous desuetude and forgetfulness.

A little bragging is good now and then; not much—just a little. It heartens one up so that one gets a fresh hold on the problems which sometimes seem beyond the strength of man to solve.

The Spaniards made the Porto Ricans pay taxes,—for the Spaniards. The Americans make them pay taxes—for the Porto Ricans. Besides the Americans send school ma'ams who shall teach the little Porto Rican that his or her first duty is to become a man or a woman as the case may be. When that lesson is well learned the little islander will perceive without being shown that to be an American man or woman is the greatest privilege and blessing ever conferred by Almighty God upon his children.

I am bragging, yes, but it isn't a very big brag and only for a moment. By and bye when I have time enough I will enlarge upon the habit Americans have (like other people), of abusing their great privileges and forgetting the blessings which have been showered upon them. For the present let us claim nobility and deny meanness.

The importance to the Porto Rican of this, to them, wonderful Fact cannot be overestimated. To be educated—what more can anybody ask? To educate means to draw out the manhood or womanhood lying in the innermost part of every soul and make it the governing fact of one's career.

The Porto Ricans have never hitherto been permitted to know that they were men and women. They have honestly believed that they were sugar and coffee planters and taxpayers. Some, to be sure, have heard that there were other vital activities, but very very few did anything but plant and pay, plant and pay.

Our school ma'ams are going to teach them how to live.

That is what we are all here for—to live. The well-educated live well, and are happy because their manhood or womanhood is the governing fact of life.

That is what the school ma'ams will teach the Porto Rican children—to live well.

I don't know whether the constitution follows the flag or not. When I read the Supreme Court decisions on the subject in the morning I think it does; when I read them in the evening I think it doesn't. It depends entirely upon the level of the vital powers in the individual reader.

But that is of no consequence whatever. We know that the school ma'am follows the flag. The flag, in fact, is merely a notice to the native that she is on the way, will soon arrive and take him in hand.

What does it matter where the ark of the constitution is, if the school ma'am follows the flag?

The little Porto Ricans with the aid of the school ma'am, without the constitution, may become a man. The little Porto Rican with the constitution without the school ma'am can never become a man—never, never, never.

The institutions of liberty, order, law—these are but shadows of the liberty, order, law, living in the soul.

So, I say, the announcement of Sept. 29 was of an important Fact of history. The little Porto Ricans will be taught to know and love liberty in their own souls; they will be taught how to use this liberty in order, in all seemliness and dignity; and they will be taught to submit themselves as freemen to the laws they make for themselves. That done, the question of the exact location of the constitution in the procession with reference to the flag will settle itself.

Build a constitution within, and lo, it will appear without. This is the bottom fact of political progress.

Just A Minute

WITH THE POST-DISPATCH POET AND PHILOSOPHER.

THE BOODLER.

He was the boldest boodler who ever tried to float
A scheme to perfect infamy and sell his wavering vote.
He reveled in the fetid wealth that came of shameless vice,
And gloated o'er the gold of which his honor was the price.

He was a thief thrice over, and a perjurer so base
'Twould seem that he would shun as death the people's call to face
A judge and jury, with a tale of infamy so vile,
And yet the wretch confesses all, and even dares to smile!

He sacrificed the people on the altar of his greed;
He stained his soul with sullied oaths, his avarice to feed;
He robbed the thieves who trusted him, as did his vile compeers,
And cloaked with seeming decency the sordid sins of years.

We may admire the bandit, who, in daring, dashing wise,
Denudes our purses in a trice before our very eyes;
We may forgive the hungry wretch who robs us of our cash,
Nor seek to ply upon his back the law's unfeeling lash—

But curses be upon the head of him who stoops to crime,
In guise of trust and friendship, and rolls in fetid slime'!
Nay, touch him not, but leave him there, as brazenly he stands!
He would befoul the prison bars he clutched with felon hands!

Borrowing as a Science.

The commonest sort of a man can make money, but it takes a genius to borrow it in paying quantities.

Walter Stanton, a New Yorker, holds the world's record in this line [illegible] entitled to the crown as a Napoleo[illegible]

He owns $270; he ow[illegible]

If there were [illegible] his [illegible] has the proper kind of nerve can borrow thousands without security, or at least with security which amounts to nothing, and nothing be thought of it, but when he goes after the coin by the million, men are constrained to stop and stare, and even the most venturesome speculator cannot repress an exclamation of surprise.

No man on earth is in a better position than Mr. Stanton to live "on the interest of what he owes"—a favorite method of gentlemen who make a livelihood by vending aerated ozone.

Mr. Stanton reminds one, only on a magnificent scale, of a St. Louis man who was once offered a job at $15 a week.

He spurned the offer contemptuously.

"Humph!" he exclaimed. "I can stand out on a street corner and borrow more than that!"

PRAISE THE LIVING.

Withhold not thy sweet praise till death enshroud
The face that else would lighten with a smile;
Hide not thy sympathetic counsel while
The soul thou lovest is beneath a cloud,
Tired, grieved, yet brave against the selfish crowd,
Who reck not how discouragements may pile,
Like Pelion on Ossa, to revile
The gentle spirit. Pause not; speak aloud!
Life is the time of friendship and devotion.
The grave is deep: it hides no phrases fair,
Nor is the soul disturbed by the commotion
Of men who strive: it is beyond despair.
Speak to thy friend: let thy words be a lotion
To soothe his heart, ere it shall moulder there.

FAMOUS SERMON SERIES

NO. 17.

THE PROGRESS OF LIFE.

By Alexander McKenzie.

IT IS interesting to know our rise from from below us, but it is of much great- far below us, but it is of much great- life which is from above us.

> "Love the inmate, not the room;
> The wearer, not the garb; the plume
> Of the falcon, not the bars
> Which kept him from the splendid stars."

More than this we are to know, that the spirit in which our divine life consists is sustained by the life of which it is a part, and is constantly reinforced by the inspiration of him who has given us our being. Life is continually to advance, to increase in power, in inspiration, in accomplishment. At last it will become so great that this body which surrounds it is no longer large enough and will disappear, while the life will go forth in some new and freer form, to live forever. Certainly, it cannot be for very long that our enlarging life can be content with these limits which suffice for 70 years. We cannot always spare a third of our time for sleep, or consent to the infirmities of age, when "they that look out of the windows are darkened." Very beautifully did St. Paul describe this in words whose meaning we are reluctant to perceive. He seems to have viewed man as living in a house of snow. What other house could it be which would dissolve? Where had he seen snow, unless it were upon the heights of Hermon, where it lingers through the year? Though this tent that we are dwelling in upon the earth shall melt away, when it has melted away, we have another house to follow it. It brings up the play of our boyhood, when we raised our houses of snow, and sat within them; but they were cold, they were narrow, we could move but a step and we touched the walls. After a time the house melted, but the boy was left out on the open field where he had room enough; the house had melted, not the boy. Day by day this is going on around us, yet we do not rejoice in the new liberty, the larger room to live in. We call it by sad names. We set it in somber symbols. It is not strange. Affection is strong and tender, and we need the companionship of those we love, and the world is never the same when they have gone out of it. Let us speak gently of our natural and sacred sorrows. Yet can we not rise, and even through our tears see the chief point, the meaning of the dissolving of the house? God's angels come by two and two. To the child of God the angel of death comes in company with the angel of life. Sometimes we open the door and death comes in. We close it quickly, leaving the other without. The dark form sits beside the hearth and makes the room silent and sad, while immortality waits upon the outer steps. Perchance, presently, we open the door again and let him come in. He brings the intent of God, and we are comforted. In the thought of God the chief point of death is immortality. The whole tone of the New Testament teaching is like this. The life advances steadily; at length, in an hour it breaks away and is free. The victory is won. The trumpets sound, and in the glorified body the immortal spirit walks with God.

WHERE CAN THE YOUNG MAN GO?

We have been told repeatedly that there is no such corruption in English, Scottish or Irish city governments as curses American cities. Yet for years franchises have been sought and obtained by promoters and capitalists in the cities of Great Britain and Ireland. They were as valuable as those sought and obtained in American cities. But the promoters and capitalists on the other side of the Atlantic did not expect to be "held up" by the aldermen there. In American cities they found by experience that "holding up" was a necessary preliminary to oobtaining a franchise. Is the British alderman less greedy or more conscientious? Or has it never occurred to him that he is in office "for what there is in it?"

If the British city legislator is more conscientious, as seems to be the case, what has made him so? Is it not the influences to which he has been subjected as a young man? Are those influences any different from the influences surrounding a young man in an American city? Let us see.

Both American and British cities have the public park. That is a strong influence for good. But during the winter months, when much of our life must be spent indoors, the park loses its hold on us. We must have some indoor place of rest and recreation. Where can the young men go to find this, in American cities? Is it not a fact that the saloon is about the only place always open to him?

But the young man of an English city, town or village has something different. It is the coffee houses and the reading room.

For 30 years coffee houses have been spreading all over the British Isles, until at this time every little town has one or more. These coffee houses usually have reading rooms attached, also facilities for indoor games. And no small town, and few villages lack the public library and reading room. In the big cities they are not content with a public library with its branches. Each parish has its own library, and reading rooms abound.

This means that the young man can at all times go somewhere to meet his fellows amid pleasant, orderly surroundings, where he will not be tempted to make a fool of himself. It means that his moral stamina will not be weakened or his self-respect lowered. It means that he has at his command a cheap club, a decent shelter, a clean resting place. He is not expected to buy a drink for the mere sake of buying, after his thirst is quenched. He can get good, cheap food without being compelled to becloud his intellect. And he can spend as much time in the place as he likes, without feeling that he has overstepped his welcome.

All this must have a tremendous influence for good on the young man. And it is the young man who is preparing himself to govern our cities.

As everyone knows, most of the education in civic corruption that has developed the condition from which St. Louis has suffered was picked up at the saloon bar. The young man in St. Louis has nowhere else to go. During the winter months, unless he can afford to belong to an expensive club, he must either stay at home or enter the groggery. Theater and church offer some food for his mind and emotional self. But they cannot supply all that is needed. The gregarious instinct demands a common meeting place, where body and mind may be recreated at any hour of the day or evening. The young man gets this, to some degree, at the saloon. But at what a cost!

Bishop Potter has said much on this subject. He has shown that the saloon must be, and is, "the people's club," until something better is provided. Branch libraries are good, but they are not adequate to the need. St. Louis should have, in every precinct, a place where the young men and women would be welcome, a club room free from the temptations and the atmosphere of the saloon; a place of recreation, enlightenment and entertainment for body and soud. With such centers of common good, the work of the school room and home would be helped rather than hindered. A generation of young men would grow up fit, by training and conscience, to make laws and keep them.

TREASURES FROM OLD HYMNALS

SWEET HOME.

An alien from God, and a stranger to grace,
I wandered through earth, its gay pleasures to trace;
In the pathway of sin I continued to roam,
Unmindful, alas! that it led me from home.
Home, home, sweet, sweet home,
O Savior! direct me to heaven, my home.

The pleasures of earth I have seen fade away,
They bloom for a season, but soon they decay;
But pleasures more lasting in Jesus are given,
Salvation on earth, and a mansion in heaven.

Allure me no longer, ye false glowing charms;
My Savior invites me, I'll go to his arms;
At the banquet of mercy I hear there is room,
O then may I feast with his children at home?

Farewell, vain amusements, my follies adieu!
While Jesus and heaven and glory I view,
I feast in the pleasures that flow from the throne,
The foretastes of heaven, sweet heaven, my home.

The days of my exile are passing away.
The time is approaching, when Jesus will say,
"Well done, faithful servant, sit down on my throne,
And dwell in my presence, forever at home."

Affliction and sorrow and death shall be o'er,
The saints shall unite to be parted no more;
Their loud hallelujahs fill heaven's high dome,
They dwell with the Savior forever at home.

GET THE CORRECT MEASURE OF THE DOG

"The successful man is he who succeeds in getting others to think as well of him as he thinks of himself," says a local Maeterlinck.

Ex-Senator David Tarbox Jewett defeated Lincoln in three law suits, saw him give his son Tod five cents when he ought, according to accepted methods of discipline, to have given him a thrashing, and sized Lincoln up as small potatoes and few in a hill. Mr. Jewett saw his error in time to repair it, but he never forgave himself for the error he made in judging the Lincoln brand of human nature.

A man down on Chouteau avenue owned a St. Bernard dog. He was a large dog and a lazy dog, and he acted largely on impulse.

The man also owned a shoe store. The wave of prosperity that swept all the rest of the world finally got to Chouteau avenue. The man felt so affluent he had a glass front put in his store.

It was a decided improvement, too. Gazing through the plate glass one could see the orderly rows of ladies' kid shoes, marked down from $3 to $2.99 as per advertisements in the Post-Dispatch. The man swelled with pride.

He had about reached the limits to which a m[illegible] of his size might swell even with p[illegible]en there was a commotion up the [illegible]here was a blare of trumpet and a [illegible] cymbals and drum. Turning his [illegible] beheld an unusual sight on Chouteau [illegible]enue, the advance guard of a circus and following close behind were all [illegible] guards and the steam calliope.

First came the beauties of every nation on bravely caparisoned Arabian chargers. Then the Bedouins of the desert jolted along on the apexes of the variously-humped dromedaries.

Large clowns drawn by small ponies with sfall boys and girls forming a living snake were next in the van. And then, following the jubilee singers and the wayback band, was the den of man-eating lions only separated from their keeper by a screen of steel bars.

As this den came opposite the shoe store with its glass front and its sleeping St. Bernard dog beside a glowing hardcoal base burner, one of the lions became ennuied. It yawned and uttered a roar of weariness that made the shoe store's glass front rattle.

The roaring awoke the dog. The first thing he saw was the lion standing erect in the den. With one spring the dog was into the street and the glass front was in a large number of small pieces.

So loud was the crash that the procession stopped temporarily. The driver of the lion den got down and walked over beside the man who owned the store and the dog, and who did own the glass front. Not a word was spoken for a moment. Then the man aforesaid spoke.

"There is no great loss without some small gain," he said. "We've got the measure of that dog anyway."

It is sometimes worth while to be put to some inconvenience and even to expense to get the measure of the dog.

FAIR week at the theaters will be, for the most part, a week of old attractions, some of them so old as to be alantediluvian. The only new thing of consequence will be Otis Skinner at the Century Theater in "Lazarre," a dramatization of Mary Hartwell Catherwood's book, by Messrs. Skinner and Boucicault.

"Lazarre" has only been done in Chicago, that is, unless we count Green Bay, Wis., where it was given its premier, and Chicago has had a regular "Lazarre" craze. Before the week is over it promises to have captured St. Louis.

I have often wondered why it was that all the old plays in the category, way back to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," should be booked for fair week. I found the answer in some press agents' notices that came in last week:

"The public," so the notice stated, "preferred good old things, which it knew about, to some new thing of which it had never heard except through the energy of the press agent."

Such being the case, why should we ever have anything new. Why not continue playing the same old plays, year after year? Why not continue playing the same old operas, year after year? As far as the operas are concerned, to a large extent we do, but even the producers of grand opera strive to give us at least one new thing each season.

To book a lot of old plays for fair week each year strikes me as an affront to the intelligence of the country visitors who crowd within the city gates at this time. It is saying to them, "We give you old stuff because you don't know what new works are."

But probably the man in the box office knows more about what attracts a fair week crowd than a person who only judges an audience from a seat in the dress circle.

Kirke La Shelle has selected St. Louis as the city in which to make the first production of "Checkers," as this is the native heath of the author, Henry Blossom. The manuscript of the piece has been bandied about managers' offices even as much as was "The Message from Mars," which Charles Hawtrey finally staged. Of course, if "Checkers" is the anticipated hit, those that let it slip through their fingers will not be heard from. Otherwise—!

Stuart Robson began his fifty-first season on the American stage at the Montauk Theater Monday night last in "The Henrietta," playing his famous role of Bertie the Lamb. Mr. Robson, who remains under the management of Daniel V. Arthur, goes from Brooklyn to Pittsburg and then as far West as Vancouver. He will alternate "The Henrietta" and "A Comedy of Errors."

The Kirke La Shelle Comic Opera Company opened its third season at the Princess Theater, Toronto, with an organization of singers that Manager John F. Slocum feels sure will give this opera the very best interpretation it has ever had. The basso, Joseph C. Miron, who was in the original production in New York has returned to the cast and is featured as Brevet. Hermoine Hazelton now has the title role. Edna Floyd again has the soubrette role Estelle.

Concerning De Wolf Hopper, who formally began his starring tour in "Mr. Pickwick" at Pittsburg, his manager, Everett R. Reynolds, says: "The production and performance were quite up to my expectations and the box office sale [illegible] enormous. The same statement holds g[illegible]cerning the advance sale for Mr. Ho[illegible]gement at the Detroit Opera H[illegible] libretto and score were so [illegible] pared that no changes have b[illegible] except for two or three cuts in the book, made simply because the entertainment ran too long."

Mildred Holland will produce Carina Jordan's new romantic drama, "The Lily and the Prince," at Pottsville, Pa., on Nov. 10. This play was given a trial production at Buffalo last spring, meeting with marked success. Manager White has given it a magnificent production, and predicts that it will eclipse Miss Holland's former successes.

Maurice Freeman is this season's leading man for the American Stock of New York. Mr. Freeman, notwithstanding the turmoil and grind of stock work, manages to achieve artistic heights that portend great future success.

Kate Claxton, in an elaborate revival of "The Two Orphans," begins her season Oct. 20 in Elizabeth, N. J. The tour calls for her appearance in the southern and western cities. Nelson Roberts and W. W. Randall are Miss Claxton's managers.

Directly he returned from Europe last month, Richard Mansfield sent for a well-known player to consult about a part in his production of "Julius Cesar." The man happened to be decidedly self-appreciative.

"Good morning," said Mansfield, as his caller entered. "You know, I'm preparing 'Julius Cesar.' I've a capital part for you. But before we go into details as to that let me know your salary." As he said this he turned to his desk to adjust some memoranda.

"Four hundred dollars," said his caller.

Mansfield continued his work, with his back turned, but replied, pleasantly, "You will please shut the door when you go out, won't you?"

A letter to Manager Rudolph [illegible] from Prague announces that [illegible] young Bohemian violin vi[illegible] form for the last time th[illegible] Ilichter Orchestra at [illegible] and on Nov [illegible] Majestic from Liverpool with his accompanist and secretary. A delegation of representative members of Bohemian societies will welcome Kocian on his arrival in New York.

MANAGER'S OPINIONS OF CURRENT ATTRACTIONS.

THE Imperial Theater has for Fair week, opening today at the matinee, Al. W. Martin's augmented production of the immortal story "Uncle Tom's Cabin." For many years this old play has been abused with poor presentations and it has only been for the past few years that Mr. Martin has been touring with his most complete equipment. Every scene is reproduced as entire in detail and as faithful to nature as any of the later day plays. Besides the acting company, of some 30 members, Mr. Martin also carries some 40 colored singers and dancers.

The Olympic this week has William A. Brady's production of Lottie Blair Parker's beautiful pastoral play, "Way Down East." Theater-goers who have seen the play will undoubtedly gladly renew acquaintance with Squire Bartlett, who believes in living according to the "scripturs"; motherly Mrs. Bartlett, the squire's wife; Anna Moore, who was more sinned against than sinning; David Bartlett, the squire's sturdy son; Kate Brewster, the squire's pretty niece; Hi Holler, the chore boy with the infectious laugh; Rube Whipple, the quaint constable, and "his all bound round with a woolen string, Seth Holcomb"; he with the penchant for "life-long bitters"; the village choir and the village doctor. Such a gracious welcome may not await Martha Perkins, the village gossip and mischief maker, nor Lennox Sanderson, the villainous city chap. These are the characters around which Mrs. Parker has written her play. They are residents of a New England countryside. They are plain people, and the story written about them becomes their plainness.

At the Grand Opera House, commencing with today's matinee, will be presented the fairy spectacle "Superba." This season's production is conceded to outdo all previous creations in this artistic way—and so something out of the ordinary can be looked forward to. Theater goers will see that in this newest of new "Superbas" marvelous, necromatic effects, pantomime, comedy, spectacular ballets and beautiful transformation scenes have been invented and arranged, making it materially a new production. The dramatic story of Fairyland that is told in "Superba" allows of the most extravagant ideas in scenery and mechanical tricks.

"The James Boys in Missouri" comes to Havlin's with the matinee of today, and will furnish all of the realism imaginable in the stage effects and the manner in which the story is told. The dramatic cast is headed by George Klimt and Miss Alma Hearn, and is said to be one of the strongest of the season in the field of melodrama. Coming, as it does, for the week of the Fair, it will be appreciated by the visitors from the country districts. The story of the play carries with it a pretty love romance that relieves it of its intensity, and is also said to have a rich vein of comedy. The train effect in the Blue Cut is the most realistic that has ever been staged.

The offering of the Standard Theater for the week, commencing matinee today, will be the Tiger Lillies Co., a new organization in the burlesque field, under the management of Mr. Will N. Drew of the, Star Theater, Cleveland. Mr. Drew being a man whose knowledge of things theatrical places him in the front rank of the purveyors of this sort of entertainment has made every effort to present something novel and pleasing. As a curtain raiser will be shown a one-act farce, followed by an all-star vaudeville bill introducing such artists as the Garrity sisters, the Deonzo brothers, Black and Kooper and McRea and Wyatt.

The Heras family of acrobates, of which there are seven members, originally from the Winter Garten of Berlin, whose feats have astonished the patrons of eastern vaudeville houses, will be the headlines at the Columbia on the new bill which opens tomorrow afternoon. This family has never before appeared in St. Louis, and their act is considerably superior to the ordinary run of acrobatic work. Fanny Rice, the distinguished star, will offer a little comedy, "Surprises." Lizzie and Vinie Daly are offering some new dancing specialties, and Charles Kenna, monologue comedian, promises some songs and stories which have not been offered here before this season. White and Simmons, with the minstrel comedy, "Get in the Band Wagon;" the Columbian Trio in "The Wax Doll," a musical comedy; Marsh and Sartella, song and dance artists; Jessie Dale, vocalist; McMahon and Chappelle, sketch artists, and Fox and Fox[illegible] the funny clown with the re[illegible], are other good numbers of [illegible] complete bill includes Mr. [illegible] in the sketch "Down [illegible] [illegible] Halbrooks, [illegible] selections,

LAZARRE, AS A DRAMA, IS WORTH WHILE; IT HAS NATURE, ROMANCE AND HUMOR

BY ROSE MARION.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 1.

"Lazarre," the play adapted by Aubry Boucicault and Otis Skinner from the book of Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood and presented by Otis Skinner and company, has scored a hit in Chicago. It is a good, hard hit, too.

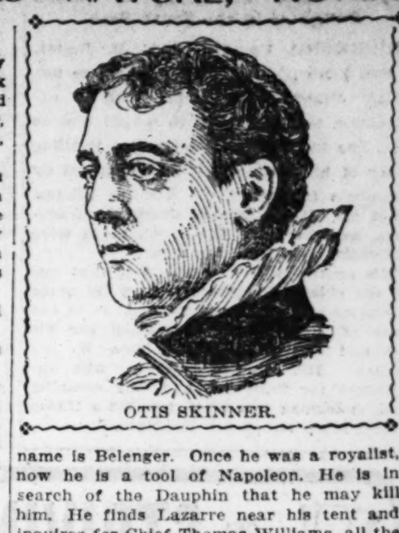
"Lazarre," the book, is everywhere. You can see it in the hands of young women in offices, who are reading at it every time an opportunity offers. You can see many men buying the same book and you can see newsdealers parading the fact that it is part of their stock.

The play is also well advertised and well attended.

It should be. It is considerably worth while.

Last night I looked upon the play "Lazarre." I had not read the book. I have read books before they were dramatized and then looked upon their dramatizations too oft in times gone by to risk new disappointments. Besides, I hadn't had time. My first knowledge of "Lazarre" came to me up at Green Bay, Wis., when I read that its initial performance was to be given.

Before I reached Chicago the first performance here had been given and I did not see it until the third night.



OTIS SKINNER.

CHICAGOANS GO LATE.

I had been indoors because of Chicago rain for two whole days, and life was nearer a nightmare than a dream when I walked down the aisle of the Grand Opera House. Chicago was already there—that is, the seats were mostly filled. But that wasn't all. Persons came and came long after the first act in the same heartless fashion we have in St. Louis of coming at any imaginable time and marching to seats whether the best speech of the evening is being given or the heroine is breaking her heart.

But the late comers didn't bother me. I was looking at "Lazarre." Before the evening was over I pardoned Chicago for everything, even its weather, because it had given me opportunity to see "Lazarre."

Don't worry; I have no intention of raving, and announcing that "Lazarre" is the best yet.

But it is a clean, wholesome, romantic little play, taken from an historical novel. It has no sword-fights, no duels, no shootings. It has, however, a villain that is too intensely melodramatic to suit me. He jarred my nerves as does a line of miss-set type in my own "stuff" when printed.

STORY OF THE PLAY.

Perhaps it would be well to tell you a bit of the story first. "Lazarre" is the son of Marie Antoinette and Louis XVI. In his childhood he is taken to England after being released from prison and thence to America, where he is placed with Thomas Williams, a Mohawk Indian chief of New York, who rears him as his son. Dr. Chantry, an Englishman, knows who he is and watches over him. One day, when Lazarre has grown to manhood, he is injured by falling on a stone, which cuts his forehead. He is taken to the home of Count de Chaumont, a French emigre, who fancies he recognizes in him the dauphin of France.

So also thinks Eagle de Ferrier, ward of De Chaumont, played by the wife of Otis Skinner, Maud Durbin. Dr. Chantry does not discourage their views.

The first act opens with Lazarre in a bed in the home of Count de Chaumont, where he has been placed because of his injury.

Count de Chaumont, because he thinks he recognizes the son of his king, pays the Mohaw chief, Thomas Williams, a price for the boy. Lazarre makes his home with the count, but not until after he has told him that he is not to be bought and sold because he is a king.

Later Dr. Chantry tells Count de Chaumont the truth. Eagle, the count's ward, teaches Lazarre to read and tells him of the history of France. The old story repeats itself. The pupil falls in love with his teacher. He says that he cares naught for thrones or royalty, only for love. The young French girl, who places country above self, curbs her own feeling and will not listen to his pleading.

Like many another disappointed man Lazarre goes back to the woods.

This is where the villain appears. His name is Belenger. Once he was a royalist, now he is a tool of Napoleon. He is in search of the Dauphin that he may kill him. He finds Lazarre near his tent and inquires for Chief Thomas Williams, all the time looking strongly at Lazarre. He goes off the stage for a minute and Dr. Chantry and Eagle come on. Lazarre goes in his tent and lets down the curtains. Eagle has stifled her woman's pride with her love of country and has come to bring Lazarre back to civilization, using his love for her as a lever. Dr. Chantry accompanies her, but while she accomplishes the work he and Skenandoah, Lazarre's Indian companion go off to smoke the pipe of peace.

The scene between Lazarre and Eagle is especially charming. The man, willing to do anything for the woman he loves, offers to give up his forest freedom to go with her.

The woman, intent upon sacrificing everything in order to gain a king for her country, finally says that he may come back for her sake. There is no joy for her in this. She feels that she may not love him and she knows that her guardian wants her to be his own wife.

But after the fashion of women who are puzzled, she takes the only way that she sees open for accomplishing her purpose. Hand in hand she and Lazarre stroll up over the rocks, and while they climb, the villain comes back and encounters Dr. Chantry. Dr. Chantry calls Belenger by name and tells him of his villainy.

Belenger pretends that the doctor is joking, then begins to make false statements.

Lazarre and Eagle come back. Lazarre recognizes Belenger and then begins to relate events in his life when a child.

VILLAIN POORLY PLAYED.

The face and voice of Lazarre as he talks makes one forget the swaggering villain.

I wish I could forget him always.

I liked not his costume, his manner, nor his French dialect. The first was too much on the order of a coachman, the second was the total reverse of what one would expect in a clever French spy, while the third was atrocious.

Of course there is more to the story. The action in the third and fourth acts takes place in Europe. Lazarre meets Napoleon in the Tulleries at the latter's reception and tells that gentleman some strong facts. When Napoleon goes for guards Lazarre escapes through a secret passage behind a picture. He has remembered about the passage from his own childhood. The secret passage is again suggestive of melodrama but the man had to get out some way.

In act 4 Lazarre goes to Russia where he sees his sister who receives him with joy and his uncle who receives him with wrath.

With him always is Shenandoah, and you find yourself praying that that Indian will take Lazarre back to the woods.

The woman for whom he left the wilderness becomes the promised wife of her guardian, why, the stage story does not reveal. So Lazarre does go back to America all the way to Green Bay, Wisconsin. He stays there living in a lodge and teaching young Indians. One day officials from France come to beg him to return there. Napoleon is at Elba and fortune favors Lazarre. Dr. Chantry is with them, but to all their solicitations Lazarre gives but one answer.

He has had enough of royalty and aspirations for thrones—America and freedom will do for him.

THE WEDDING.

They all go away and when they are gone he finds Eagle's diary—the locked book to which he has carried a key for three years with the understanding that if no word comes from her in that time that she is dead. He unlocks the book and reads—what any man may read if he opens the diary of the woman who loves him of himself. Then he finds something else—a line telling of the death of Count de Chaumont, with the fact that the writer is glad she did not have to marry him.

Then Lazarre knows that Eagle loved him, and though he thinks her dead, he is happy in that knowledge. All the time she is walking across the floor of the lodge toward him. His statement that he will never be king, but that she will always be his queen finishes the play.

And while the curtain goes down there stands Shenandoah, the faithful Indian, in the background, and one feels like hugging him because he has been the guardian angel of the whole play, bringing Lazarre back to freedom from the false aristocracy of the old world.

That is the play. It has side lights, one particularly bright one being the humor of Annabel de Chaumont, which part is played by Nannette Comstock most cleverly.

There is little of posing, much of nature and more than several times when one may laugh. The love scenes are not drawn-out affairs, but are simple and strong as befits the emotion of a man of the forest who is more a king because he will not be one than if he occupied a throne.

ANK STATEMENT AS AN ANTI-CLIMAX

On the Same Lines As Previous Weeks.

ACTUALLY NOT FAVORABLE

STOCK MARKET LAPSED INTO WEAKNESS, AFTER FLUCTUATIONS.

Time Money Has Not Acted as Was Expected by Secretary Shaw in Taking Action on Government Reserves.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Evening Post says:

Today's bank statement was in the nature of an anti-climax. It was in form and manner of compilation on exactly the lines of previous weeks. Any bank with government deposits, if it chooses to let its reserve percentage slip below 25 and stay there, may do so with impunity, so far as the Washington office is concerned. But the public will know what the bank is doing. For this defense of rightful publicity the clearing house committee desreves the thanks of the whole community.

As for the statement itself, which may be compared, as usual, with previous weeks, it is not favorable. The far more pregnant fact in it is the decrease of only $1,878,000 in the loans. Very clearyl, the heavy contraction at the beginning of the week has been offset by something. As a result of the changes, the meager surplus reserve established a week ago is more than cut in two.

The stock market, after alternate weakness, recovery and dullness on the early trading, lapsed again into weakness after the bank statement had appeared. None of the day's movements was, however, at all sensational. Yesterday afternoon's extraordinary shock had anticipated much. Taken as a group, the coal shares were but slightly affected by the failure of yesterday's conference.

The verdict of financial history on Secretary Shaw's hotly-discussed move of relief is likely to depend on considerations somewhat apart from construction of law, in short, on how hard one was pressed for money. It is possible to conceive a financial situation such that the man in office, with one radical expedent of relief in sight, is warranted in brushing aside all technicalities and asserting it.

A crisis in the Stock Exchange may be the merely outward sign of a deeper crisis. This was true of November, 1890, and of May, 1893. Was it also true last Monday? Not unless all the assurances of merchants and financiers have been misleading us. A framework of speculation, which never had a right to arise at all, had partly collapsed already; the rest of it was tottering. Behind that structure was another series of legitimate financial enterprises, whose completion probably depended on the state of the money market. But these, unless Wall street is mistaken, could have been deferred. Meantime the country's real prosperity continues and would have continued whatever happened to the "pools" of Wall street.

It is less easy still to say what the treasury move has accomplished for the future. One fact stands out conspicuously —prospect of relief from Europe.

That the treasury's action in any wise helped out this part of the situation nobody seriously imagines.

Our one sure key to the door of Europe's treasure chest is stringent money, and the money market is supposed to have been relieved. As to the scope of such relief that is another question. One year ago last month the treasury through bond redemption, poured, not ten, but twenty millions into the money market. Wall street, then being sanerminded, did not indulge in day dreams of new speculative opportunities. There was no mob of speculators crying out after last Tuesday's fashion, that so many millions of the new reserves rightly belonged to them. And, in fact, the new reserves turned out to be the merest palliative.

Money on call was 7 per cent nominal today. Time money has not worked at all, as was anticipated after the action of the secretary with reference to reserve on government deposits, but continued to command nearly as high a rate as before that announcement. At the close of the week no money could be had on short time contracts at less than 7 per cent; and nearly all loans produced a higher rate, while 6 per cent would bring money for six months or a year. Lenders have been firm as to rates all through the week.

Mercantile paper resumes life slowly. Some fine names were sold late in the week at 7 per cent and nothing appeared to be held at less than 6 per cent. The supply is already quite large, and can be increased at any moment that any activity can be noted in the demand. Interior money rates are unchanged.

COAL FROM CANADA.

100,000 Tons of Anthracite Is Being Shipped In.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The secretary of the treasury has received a communication from the collector of customs at Portland, Me., in which he states that the Dominion Coal Co. of Canada is about to export to the United States 100,000 tons of anthracite coal and asks that increased facilities be given the company for handling the same. The department will extend every facility within the law and its discretion. The coal pays a duty of 67 cents a ton.

DIGGING FOR BURIED GOLD.

Dooryards in Knoxville, Tenn., Are Torn Up at Night.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 4.—Considerable excitement has been created in the eastern part of the city by parties digging in an isolated yard for several nights of late. It is stated that several years ago a man died in the house on this property and that before he died he had buried in the yard a small fortune in gold. He failed to disclose to any one the identity of the spot where the treasure was located. The recent midnight diggers are reported to be searching for the old man's gold.

JUST LIKE POCAHONTAS.

Taylor's Life Saved by a Chief's Daughter in the South Seas.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 4.—E. M. Taylor, a well known Manchester man, whose five years' absence from home without explanation led his family to mourn him as lost, has just returned and tells a thrilling story of his three years' imprisonment by cannibals in one of the Samoan islands. That Mr. Taylor escaped death is miraculous, as several of his companions were instantly slain upon capture.

His escape is due to the fact that one of the chief's daughters—Yahow by name —became enamored of him, and, as in the case of John Smith, interceded for his life and was granted the boon by her father. Mr. Taylor, however, was imprisoned for three years, finally escaping and, swimming two miles, reached a tramp oyster sloop bound for Honolulu.

LOVERS FOUND DEAD.

Young Man and Woman Found Dead in Virginia Forest.

STONEY CREEK, Va., Oct. 4.—The dead bodies of R. B. Mitchell and Miss Mabel Lee, both prominent young people, were found in the woods near this place. They had both been killed by a pistol wound, and the revolver was found lying between them.

The young couple ran away from home to be married. The horse they drove was found wandering near the bodies, and this helped to make the identification, the bodies being badly decomposed. Supposition is that Mitchell shot the girl and then killed himself.

WANT IT FOR THEMSELVES.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 4.—It is reliably reported here that the Lafollette Iron, Coal & Railroad Co. has been offered $5000 per day rent for the use of its big iron furnace which was blown in on Thursday. The offer was refused, the company preferring to operate the plant itself. The furnace is the largest in the South, having a capacity of 350 tons per day. About 400 men are employed in connection with it.

BREAD UPON THE WATERS.

Old Kentuckian Proffered a Home by a Boy He Had Raised.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Oct. 4.—About forty years ago Thomas F. Brown, a highly respectable farmer and Mexican war veteran of the Green Briar neighborhood, took a boy to raise named Will Rummage. He was brought up on the farm and given a common school education.

In time the boy wanted to seek his fortune. We went to Colorado, located at Gunnison and prospered. He is a mine owner and a prominent business man.

Recently Mr. Brown received a letter from Rummage, telling him that his early kindness had not been forgotton, and asking him to come to Gunnison and live with him the rest of his life.

Mr. Brown, who is now 86 years old, made the trip to see his adopted son, but declined to give up his old Kentucky home. He has returned and says he will visit Rummage again next spring.

GOOD AS A SNAKE STORY.

Watch Lost in a Field for Two Years Started to Running Again.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Oct. 4.—B. H. Thompson of the Curdsville vicinity is a lucky man. Two years ago he lost a watch in his wheat field. He searched diligently for the timepiece at the time, but was unable to find it. Naturally he gave it up and had ceased to think about it. The other day one of Mr. Thompson's laborers was working in the field in which the watch had been lost and found it. As the finder picked it up he shook it and it immediately began running. This was accounted for by the fact that when it fell from the pocket of the owner when it was lost that it stopped running. The finder shook it in order to get some water out of it. It has been keeping good time ever since.

THEY APPRECIATE HIS ACT.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 4.—The following resolution was passed by the Confederate Veterans here:

"We, the members of Camp Falkner, United Confederate Veterans, in special meeting assembled, take this, the earliest opportunity, of expressing to Gen. Torrence, commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, our heartfelt appreciation of his recent and generous act of kindness in appealing to all the people of this country for help for the Confederate home at Mountain Creek.

"The appeal of Gen. Torrence was unexpected and unsolicited, and came from a heart that is big enough to take in all men that are in distress. He came among us and was received as a friend and comrade by those to whom the bitterness of war is but a memory. His every utterance shows that for those against whom he had stood in battle he had only friendship, and for those who were unfortunate, whose misfortunes have outlasted the war, his heart overflows with tenderness and sympathy. We send back to him, and all those who co-operate with him, a greeting in the spirit of comradeship, of gratitude and of our common citizenship."

BRIDAL CAR PLANNED.

Said to Be in Contemplation by an Accommodating Railroad Over in Illinois.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—For the protection of its passengers the Chicago & Northwestern road expects to haul a bridal car on one of its trains. This train runs from Freeport, Ill., to Chicago, making the trip in the early evening. It has been estimated that this train carries more wedding parties and bridal pairs than any other short-run train in the Middle West.

Last night, when the train arrived in Chicago, there was strewn on the floor of the car sufficient rice to fill a bushel measure and the package racks were hung with old shoes of every size and description. The seats and the windows were festooned with ribbons. At each station there would come in through the open windows showers of rice and handfuls of small circulars setting forth the fact that a newly wedded pair were about to get on the train.

For this reason the company thinks it would be a good plan to load the blissful pairs in one car, which would be properly labeled and decorated and where ordinary passengers would not be unceremoniously disturbed.

Secrets of Personal Magnetism Laid Bare.

Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Books on Personal Magnetism and Hypnotism to Be Given Away by a Noted Philadelphia College.

Hon. James R. Kenney of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the Committee on Distribution.

Every One May Now Learn All the Secrets of These Mysterious Sciences at His Own Home.

Hon. JAMES R. KENNEY of Pennsylvania.
Ex-Mayor of Reading, Pa., noted orator, author and scientist.

"I can honestly and conscientiously say from my long experience in dealing with people and from my personal acquaintance with many of the most prominent men in this country, that there is no other thing which will help one so much in life as a thorough knowledge of Personal Magnetism," says Hon. James R. Kenney, "and for this reason I accepted the chairmanship of the committee on distribution of works on Personal Magnetism and Hypnotism for the American College of Sciences of Philadelphia.

"The real secrets of Personal Magnetism and Hypnotism have always been jealously guarded by the few who knew them and kept from the masses of the people. One who understands these sciences has an inestimable advantage in the race of life. I want to put this information in the hands of every ambitious man and woman in this country.

"The American College of Sciences has just appropriated $10,000 to be used in printing books for free distribution, and if this does not supply the demand it will appropriate $10,000 more. The books are absolutely free. They do not cost you a single cent.

"Tell me what kind of work you are engaged in; or, if sick, the disease from which you suffer, and I will send you the book which will put you on the road to success, health and strength. It matters not how successful you are, I will guarantee to help you achieve greater success. The work which I will send you is from the pens of the most eminent specialists of the country; it is richly illustrated with the finest half-tone engravings, and is intensely interesting from start to finish. It has been the means of changing the whole current in the lives of hundreds of persons who were ready to give up in despair. You can learn at home in a few days and use personal magnetism in your daily work without the knowledge of your most intimate friends. You can use it to influence others; you can use it to keep others from influencing you. You can positively cure the most obstinate chronic diseases and banish all bad habits.

"If you have not met with business or social success which you desire; if you are not successful in winning and holding friends; if you are sick, and tired of taking drugs that do not cure; if you care to develop your memory or any other mental faculty to a higher state of perfection; or, lastly, if you wish to possess that subtle, invisible, intangible power that sways and rules the minds of men, you should write me today and let me send you free a copy of our new book. It will prove a revelation to you." Address JAMES R. KENNEY, 122 C, Commercial Union Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

PREACHER QUITS ORTHODOX FAITH

Rev. Stockdale, Former Baptist, Now Free Thinker.

PROMINENT IN THE CHURCH

HAD GOOD PASTORATE AND BRILLIANT PROSPECTS.

Doctrines of Infallibility of Bible, Eternal Punishment, Man's Fall and Deity of Jesus Are Rejected by Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Oct. 5.—Parker Stockdale, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Independence, and one of the most widely known of the younger Baptist ministers of the state, has resigned his pastorate and left the church because he no longer accepts the creed of othodoxy.

Following are the specific reasons, constituting a sweeping denunciation of othodoxy, for his action:

(1.) "I do not believe that the Bible was inspired, any more than any other great book."

(2.) "I reject the doctrine of the trinity as being contrary to the dictates of common sense."

(3.) "I do not believe in man's creation on the biblical plan and his fall. Evolution is God's way."

(4.) "I reject the doctrines of predestination.

(5.) "Education is the only salvation to be achieved."

(6.) "I reject the doctrine of eternal punishment as unworthy God."

(7.) "I reject the doctrine of the deity of Jesus."

(8.) "I do not believe a miracle was ever performed."

The announcement of Mr. Stockdale's retirement from the church astounded his congregation. He made it to them in person in a speech that moved many of them to tears and all to regrets.

When he said that his conscience was driving him to the renunciation of the creed in which he had been reared all knew he spoke the truth.

There was no other possible motive.

No young minister of his denomination had brighter prospects. He had already received evidence of being favored by the church, and greater favors waited on his age and experience. He was happy in his relations with his pastorate. The salary was comfortable and his congregation was ready to increase it. He was popular in the community as well as among the members of the congregation.

He had been at Independence two years. It was his first pastorate after leaving William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., where he had spent five years preparing himself for a ministerial career.

A year ago he began to read so-called heretical philosophy, as a means of broadening his mind. The theories he found there impressed him more deeply than he dreamed. They made him dissatisfied with the orthodox creed. Finally they convinced him. He did not hesitate upon his course.

"A Baptist preacher who can't preach the Baptist faith should get out," he said.

Then came the startling announcement to his congregation, the offer of his resignation and its acceptance in the following resolution:

Resolved, That we accept Brother Stockdale's resignation, here and now, and that in so doing we express to him our sincere regret on account of the course he has taken. That we assure him of our esteem as an intellectual, genial gentleman, and that we assure him and his good wife that as they go out from us they carry with them our best wishes and our sincere prayers; that God may guide them aright, and especially that God may cause Brother Stockdale to see the error of his present course, and to return to the faith which he now renounces. And be it further

Resolved, That we take this occasion to express to Brother Stockdale and to our sister churches, and to the world, our unwavering allegiance to the cause of Christianity and to the doctrines and practices of the Baptist denomination.

Mr. Stockdale will leave Independence this week for Meadville, Pa., where he will teach English and elocution in a Universalist college. He has dictated for the Post-Dispatch the following statement of the views that caused his resignation:

BY PARKER STOCKDALE.

There are two methods advocated today for the progressive thinker. One is to teach in the churches as they are already organized, the results of critical, scientific and philosophic investigation in their relation to religion, and thus gradually educate the people out of othodoxy; the other is to leave the orthodox churches and teach mankind regardless of creeds, dogmas and traditions, what is accepted by the individual as true and in harmony with the spirit of the age in which we are living.

I propose for myself hereafter the latter course. I simply ask for liberty in religion. I think the people whom I leave ought to be willing to grant this with gladness. They are the professed friends of religious liberty and freedom of conscience. If this entire church should remain orthodox forever, I have nothing to say; it is a right under our constitution that they do and should enjoy, the right to teach in their own way.

For myself there is only one thing to do, and that is to place myself in a position where I can be absolutely free to think and speak for myself. I do not desire license either in morals or in thinking; all I ask is to be free from a creed or a system of theology. A great many men claim that they are free, but after all they know that their thinking is colored and limited by the organization with which they are identified and by beliefs they are supposed to represent and advocate by reason of the fact that the church to which they belong has certain articles of faith or a written creed.

Some say that it does not matter; a man does not have to preach all of the statements in the creeds; he can just simply leave certain parts alone and preach what he believes to be true. This is not an honest position and is not logical. Some men treat the Bible in the same way. They say: "Let us leave some things alone and preach what we accept." This is not the right course to take with the dogma already affirmed, that God inspired the whole Bible. In my opinion a man must be either strictly orthodox or he must be a liberal in religion, and in the sense, too, in which these terms are generally understood and accepted.

I surrender orthodoxy and become a free man. In addition to the statements already made I shall indicate my views on some of the leading doctrines, as represented by the articles of faith of the Baptist Church. I shall not attempt a thorough discussion of them, for I have not the time nor the inclination to do so.

I do not believe that the Bible is inspired in the sense that the terms is generally used and understood.

I reject the statement, "We believe that the holy Bible is a perfect treasure of heavenly instruction," and that "it has truth without any mixture of error for its matter."

I believe that there are in the Bible some of the noblest truths that ever blessed humanity and at the same time there are many mistakes, errors, contradictions and discrepancies found throughout its pages. It is inspired no more than Homer, Shakspeare or Emerson, in their loftiest deliverances. It in its sublimest pages surpasses all other books in the religious and spiritual elements.

It should be studied as a great literary production and be subject to all the laws of criticism that hold good in the study of any literary work. The truth in it is truth because it is truth, not simply because it is in the Bible. All truth comes from God and in that sense I understand the term revelation.

A truth discovered by the human reason is sacred as one that is the child of inspiration. I accept Paine's argument that if the Bible is a revelation from God, it is only so to the man who first received it. I must take his testimony that he was inspired or that of some witness testifying for him.

In my judgment it was a sad day for the world and for rational religion when the dogma of an infallible book did not perish, with that of an infallible pope. I believe in only one God. If he is he must be infinite and eternal, therefore any limitations or descriptions of the Deity should be made with the consciousness of our ignorance and inability to know God in all the amplitude and grandeur of his being. It is presumptuous in any man to define God. The orthodox God is a being created by the mind of man. He has followed certain imaginative and logical processes in this work of God making. I do not question one thing God ever did or said, for it seems to me that he must be infinite in wisdom, goodness and power. I deny, however, many things men say that God has said and done. I know God never did a cruel thing nor commanded it to be done. The true God has always been better than man, but the traditional God has always been like the nation over which he presided.

I do not believe in the doctrine of the Trinity. Trinitarianism can be clearly traced in its historical evolution. I accept the Unitarian teaching on this subject. The doctrine of the Trinity is purely dogmatic and violates every law of rational thinking.

I do not believe in the fall of man. I believe in evolution, and I think that it was and is God's method in the creation and production of mankind. He began with the cell, but in that cell was the power of the infinite one and all the possibilities of a race ultimately to be intelligent and spiritual enough to know and commune with the Deity of the universe.

The story of the Creation, the fall of man, the origin of languages, the flood and many others recorded in the Old Testament are simply testimonials to the childhood of the race and the art of storytelling in fable and legend. Of course, with the hypothesis of the fall of man rejected, there falls to the ground every theory of salvation by atonement.

Salvation is education in intellectual and spiritual possibilities. It means development and growth. It means knowledge instead of ignorance, perfection instead of incompleteness. It means civilization instead of barbarism. I do not believe in the doctrines of predestination and the final perseverance of the saints.

Does Not Believe in Eternal Punishment.

The first I detest as a libel on God and as a monument of unspeakable selfishness on the part of the originators and advocates of the idea, both in the Bible and out of it. The second I reject because it teaches that God interferes with the freedom of the human will.

I do not believe in 'a resistible grace' either in calling a man to be saved or in keeping him saved.

I do not believe in the dogma of eternal punishment. It is simply infamous. I could not remain rational and believe that the infinite one would create a race, knowing from the beginning that a vast majority of the people would spend eternity in endless torment.

Some even come close to blasphemy, if there is such a sin, and say that the sufferings of the damned are for God's eternal glory. This life which is mingling of tears and laughter, of cloud and sunlight, of thorn and flower, is only a place for education, development and discipline. In all this universe, whenever and wherever a longing soul seeks the presence and the love of God it will find them.

In consideration of my limited space all I can do is to simply indicate in this way my relation to the doctrines of the Baptist church as I understand them from the Articles of Faith. There are several other dogmas which I might mention, but I shall not take the time. It is enough to say that I reject orthodoxy and all its teachings and tendencies. In conclusion I shall say that I do not accept the doctrine of the Deity of Jesus. I cannot believe any longer that he was or is God. He no doubt was the loftiest religious spirit and teacher of any age. He was divine, as are all the Sons of God, and his memory will never fade from the minds of men so long as love blesses the world. He lives in the hearts of men today, because he lived for men while on earth. He is the Savior of the race, in the sense that if his teachings are accepted and his example followed, men will outgrow selfishness, ignorance, prejudice, hatred and moral imperfections. Then peace, love, self-sacrifice, generous service and happiness will be the dominant forces in the noblest civilization the earth has ever known. I accept gladly all the beautiful lessons he taught humanity, but I reject all the supernatural events recorded in connection with his life, from the dogma of the Immaculate Conception to the ascension. I do not believe a miracle ever happened, and the supernatural is only the natural unknown to us.

Reason and Love in Religion of Future.

The religion of the future will be a religion that is strictly rational. The supreme element will be love. Fear will vanish from the hearts of men. The supernatural is passing and will soon pass away altogether. Miracles will be thought of as a relic of ignorance. Reason will be as sacred as faith. We will find true happiness in reason's blessed way, with faith ever leading us on into the unknown and unseen. Orthodoxy will not stand the test of rational free thought until the investigation is ended, if there was not the erroneous idea that somehow orthodoxy is the guardian of morality and the support of civilization. A doctrine must stand by its own worth.

I admit that free thinking is largely rejected because it is considered destructive, but we are entering on a new era. The old rubbish has to be cleared away. For a thousand years when orthodoxy was supreme the world was in ignorance. I have been investigating the claims and ideas of free thought for about a year, and have been in doubt for some time. I have been influenced by reading the works of Voltaire, Volney, Hume, Gibbon, Tyndall, Huxley, Spencer, Darwin, Ingersoll, Emerson, the German rationalists, the French philosophers and representative men in the Unitarian denomination, and largely influenced by the writings anr teachings of Dr. Roberts of the Church of This World. I have noticed that the preachers abuse Dr. Roberts, but do not answer his arguments. I also have been influenced by a study of higher criticism, and might add also Theodore Parker has influenced me a great deal.

SOCIETY.

Considered socially St. Louis has been very gay—but the weather—the least said the better. Whatever possessed the weather man to have such weather for our distinguished visitors and just when we wanted to have everything in ship shape, too?

The "misty, moisty" conditions did not seem to dampen the ardor of entertainer or of entertained, for the week was well filled with affairs for the lady managers, for the young women, who will, in the near future, bid farewell to single blessedness and for the buds about to blossom.

Then all the feminine portion of society has been busy with modistes.

The stir, incident to getting new gowns or furbishing up the one from last year for the V. P. ball has kept maids and matrons moving at a rather lively gait.

Tuesday evening the Southern Hotel was the scene of a brilliant reception to the lady managers. The second floor had been converted into a tropical garden by the lavish use of wild smilax and hundreds of flowers that filled the rooms with their fragrance and beauty.

Mrs. Blair was greatly admired and complimented, and there was general rejoicing over her election as president of the board. Mrs. Blair's gowns were beautiful and artistic. Each day brought forth an exquisite creation, but for my life the most beautiful garment she wore was her long coat of cream broadcloth with folds of soft silk of the same shade of graduated width from hem to yoke and broad collar of heavy ecru lace.

Mrs. John Ockerson was one of the most charming St. Louis women seen at the reception Tuesday evening. She wore a gown of black net and Persian applique over white.

Mrs. Julius Walsh appeared in pearl gray with heavy lace of the same color.

Mrs. Goodman King, who came in late, wore grey crepe with picture hat of black and pale grey tulle boa.

Mrs. Russell Harding wore one of the handsomest gowns of the evening. It was Irish lace over liberty silk.

Mrs. Reid Northrup wore an imported gown of black Brussells net, elaborately straped in black velvet over white.

Mrs. Northrup and Miss Hendrick, Miss Gould's friend, who is a member of her party, held a little court, all their own, near the entrance of the drawing room. Mrs. Northrup's carriage coat of bisque doe skin with Russian sable collar, cuffs and revers was most magnificent.

The surprise of the week was the announcement of Miss Effie La Prelle's engagement to Mr. Presley Allen.

Miss La Prelle is one of the most popular and admired girls in the younger set, her particular charm being her voice. To hear her converse or to listen to her low, sweet laugh makes one forget the world and its worries. She is tall and slight with brown hair and eyes.

Miss La Prelle graduated from Hosmer Hall two years ago. She never made a formal debut, but was seen at all the fashionable functions last month. Miss La Prelle is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. La Prelle of 10 Washington terrace. Mrs. C. E. Chapman is an elder sister of Miss La Prelle's.

Mr. Allen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Allen of 5061 Forest Park terrace.

The wedding will take place in November at the Third Baptist Church and the bridal party will be an unusually long one.

Mr. Allen will take his bride to his ranch in Texas directly after the wedding, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Mr. Allen makes his home in Texas part of each year.

Miss Ella Beers will be married to Mr. Crawford of New York Wednesday, Oct. 15. The plans for this wedding have been altered. This was to have been one of the very large church weddings, but now it will be a "quiet home wedding," if such an affair, with a bride, matron of honor, maid of honor and two bridesmaids and of course a corresponding number of men can truthfully speaking, be called a "quiet" wedding.

Mrs. Tildon Swan of New York will be the matron, and Miss Matilda Anderson, maid of honor. Miss Belle Loader, who will be a bride Nov. 15, and Miss Ida Crouch, also a prospective bride of December, will be bridesmaids.

Mr. Crawford will bring several men with him from New York to attend him.

The ceremony will be preformed at 4 o'clock in the parlors of Beers Hotel, after which Mr. Crawford will depart for an eastern honeymoon.

Miss Irma Espenhain of Lafayette avenue will return home during the coming week. Miss Espenhain has been spending the summer at Battle Lake, Wis., with her sister, Mrs. Frank Mulsen.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Dods of 4118 Delmar boulevard have closed their home, and with their daughters, Miss Alice and Miss Clara Dods, have departed for New York, where they will remain for a year.

Mrs. Thomas Crouch and her daughter, Miss Ida Irene Crouch, of Delmar boulevard, will depart Oct. 8 for New York. Miss Crouch will he married some time during the early winter to Mr. John Williams of New York. It is to purchase and prepare her trousseau, which will be one of the most beautiful and complete, that Miss Crouch's visit to New York will be made.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Bolland of 914 Utah street are at home after spending the past summer at Atlantic City.

Mrs. E. L. Kimbrough of Philadelphia is the guest of Mrs. John E. Love of Vandeventer place. Mrs. Kimbrough will be remembered as Miss Marie Von Phul, who was a great beauty and belle of St. Louis in her girlhood.

Miss Marietta Dwyer of 5028 Westminster place, who has been spending the summer at the eastern resorts, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Webster Van Cleave, lately of Boston, Mass., have come to St. Louis to reside. Mrs. Van Cleave was Miss Carrie Fletcher of Louisville, Ky. and a great belle. She is a most delightful and charming young matron and will be an acquisition to St. Louis society.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Rosenberg and their charming and talented young daughters, Miss Blanch and Miss Adele Rosenberg, who have been touring the East all summer, returned to their home, 5012 McPherson avenue, during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Laclede Howard and their little daughter, who, with Mrs. Henry Flad and Miss Flad, went abroad in the early spring to spend the summer in travel, returned home Wednesday. Mr. Howard has been greatly benefited by the trip. Mrs. Flad and Miss Flad will not return to this country for a year. They will spend the coming winter in Berlin.

One of the early weddings of October will be that of Miss Martha Boyd and Dr. Samuel Taylor Bassett on the 16th at 8:30 o'clock in the Lafayette Park Methodist Church.

Miss Anne Ittner will serve Miss Boyd as maid of honor, and Miss Dorothy Manon and Miss Elizabeth Hall will be bridemaids. Miss Boyd is an unusually handsome young girl, with raven black hair and brown eyes. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Boyd of 2823 Russell avenue.

Dr. Bassett is a member of the faculty of Marion-Sims College. He will have as his best man Dr. Hull of Kansas City and Mr. Bruce Camenn and Mr. W. H. Tate will serve as groomsmen.

Mrs. John A. Ockerson gave an informal tea Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock in honor of Mrs. John Miller Horton of Buffalo, N. Y., the recently appointed member of the Board of Lady Managers of the World's Fair. Mrs. Ockerson's home was tastefully decorated with American Beauties, graceful palms and trailing smilax. The hostess and her guest received, assisted by Mrs. Capt. Mitchell, who is with Mrs. Horton, and Mrs. William H. Coleman, the lady manager from Indianapolis.

Mrs. Horton is one of Buffalo's society leaders, and has had wide experience in connection with expositions. She was chairman of the Pan-American Exposition, and all who visited the woman's building there remember most delightfully her handsome presence and charming personality. She was also commissioner to the Charleston exposition in 1900.

Mrs. Horton is prominent in Daughters of the American Revolution, being regent of the Buffalo chapter, the second largest in the organization. She is also a Colonial Dame, and takes great interest in all pertaining to patrotic matters.

In recognition of her ability, tact and wide experience, she has been accorded a prominent position on the board.

Mrs. Coleman, who is a most delightful and very handsome woman, added much to the pleasure of the occasion. Some of the guests present were: Mrs. Jas. L. Blair, Miss Helen Gould, Mrs. Goodman King, Mrs. Julius Walsh, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Holcombe, Mrs. Goldsboroug Mrs. Corwin Spencer, Mrs. Geo. W. Pa ke Mrs. Geo, Wright Mrs. Col. Godwin, Mr Geo. D. Cram, Mrs. H. I. Miller, Mr Ev [illegible] nett.

of Kirkwood, will be the contracting parties.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Patten.

Miss Sunshine Parsons of New York will be maid of honor and Mr. Lewis I. McGeary will attend Mr. Hitt as best man.

Mr. J. Frank White, Brian G. McGeary, Arthur C. Kimball and Loraine F. Jones will serve as ushers and groomsmen.

The four little flower girls are Miss Bonnie Jenkins, Miss Mildred Jones, Mary Elaine Tompkins and Sidney Brown.

The bride will be given away by her uncle, Judge Jenkins of Milwaukee.

There have been a number of charming affairs given in honor of the bride-elect and Miss Parsons of New York. Mrs. S. Milton Hitt, the mother of the bridegroom, gave an elaborate pink luncheon Thursday afternoon in their honor. The guests were: Mrs. Leslie Dana, Miss Louie Brown, Miss Cecil Hough, Miss Georgie Biggs, Mrs. Lewis McGeary, Miss Julia Macbeth, Miss Floy Warner.

Gen. Andre, the French minister of war, is seeking to improve the headgear of the French army. The present headwear is considered to have contributed in no small degree to the many recent cases of sunstroke.

IN ST. LOUIS.

Dermatologist John H. Woodbury and chief surgeon has set aside Wednesday, Oct. 15, as a special day to perform scientific, painless operations for correcting imperfect and deformed features and removing all disfiguring blemishes from the face or body.

All who desire to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity are advised to call at once and consult him personally and secure an hour, or write for full information and book.

NOW IS THE BEST TIME
To correct imperfect features.
To remove unsightly blemishes.
To cure skin and scalp diseases.
To beautify your complexion.
To make you look natural.

SPECIAL RATES THIS MONTH.

These operations are successfully performed only by him—no one in the world has given this class of work the thought, study and care of a lifetime as he has done. No one can perform correctly these delicate operations without long and constant practice. Twenty thousand successfully treated the past year.

—REMEMBER—

His scientific operations and treatments never fail, and thirty years' practical experience enables him to guarantee perfect results in all cases that come under his professional care. The office is open every week day from 9 to 6 for treating and curing all skin and scalp diseases, blemishes and imperfections.

Call or write him personally.

POST-DISPATCH DAILY RECORD OF FINANCIAL AND MARKET DOINGS

ADVANCES IN ALL CEREALS THE ORDER OF PAST WEEK

The Upturn Led by Corn—That Based on Bad Weather and Crop Reports—Wheat and Oats Follow Suit--Speculation Grows Bullish.

BY GEORGE D. L. KELLEY.

In a Chicago special published in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch on the "corners" that had been run in grain and provisions on the Board of Trade of that city during 1902, the concluding sentence read: "Selling is not as popular as it used to be." And, truly enough, it is not. But, on the other hand, buying is, and very popular at that. Dyed-in-the-wool bears, the average trader, including the scalper who skips from one side of the market to the other, as he sees or believes he sees a chance to pluck a profit, and the men who hedges his purchases of cash grain by sales of futures, have all been run in so frequently or so badly squeezed by "corners" that they now sell short in fear and trembling and fly out at the first cry of manipulation. Many have turned to the bull side on the belief that manipulation will be the whole thing during balance of the year. Tolling on to manipulation is about the same as sitting in a game where one man shuffles, cuts, deals and plays everybody else's hand, which, I take it, is a pretty hard game to bet on and to beat. But, besides manipulation, the fact that grain for some time past has shown more inclination to go up than down in price has drawn many to the bull side, and, as I have said, made buying very popular. This makes a one-sided market that requires the strongest kind of conditions or speculative backing to make it safe for those who are lined up on that side.

Now in the case of wheat. Taken from a supply and demand standpoint the situation is bearish. This country has not raised as large a crop as last year, but that crop was the greatest we ever raised, according to our records, and had the greatest demands for it, too, including the heaviest exports on record and 100,000,000 bushels fed to animals because of the short feed crops. Yet with all the great demands this country carried over into the new-crop year 100,000,000 bushels in available supplies and on farms July 1 last.

This year we may not have raised within 100,000,000 bushels of the 748,000,000-bushel yield of 1901, though I am a believer in a 700,000,000-bushel crop this year, but then the 100,000,000 bushels for animal feeding will not have to be met, nor will any such amount as was exported last season be called for. The importing countries of western Europe raised larger crops this year than last, though in England, Germany and the north of France the quality badly damaged by too much rain at harvest, and the exporting countries of eastern Europe—Russia and Roumania—have harvested not alone large yields, that of Russia exceeding all previous years, but also of a fine quality of wheat.

Then there is the increased yield of British North America, the smaller crop of which last season cut into sales to Europe by the United States last spring. Advices from abroad are that the importing countries, whose own crops are badly sprouted and out of condition generally, will need choice wheats for mixing and to strengthen their homemade flour, and will call for American spring wheat for that purpose. Here is where Manitoba and the northwestern provinces across the British line will get their work in if speculative manipulation keeps the price of wheat in our own market above the export level. So far these British American countries do not figure as purveyors of western Europe, but Russia and Roumania do. Since Sept. 1, when their shipments began to enlarge, these two countries have exported between them 20,624,000 bushels, or over 45 per cent of the 45,080,000 bushels set afloat by the principal exporting countries for these four weeks. America shipped of the total 22,202,000 bushels, or 49 per cent. During the same period last year America shipped 21,328,000 bushels, or 61 per cent of the 34,560,000 bushels exported, and Russia and Roumania 11,320,000 bushels, or 32 per cent. This indicates western Europe is drawing with more than her usual freedom on eastern Europe. These enlarged shipments for latter section, together with the large clearances from America, have increased the amount on ocean greatly, besides impressing importing Europe bearishly. This past week's shipments promise to show over 12,000,000 bushels set afloat.

The third month of the season of 1902-03 having ended, permits some figuring on about how much of this country's wheat crop has been used to meet requirements, actual of estimated. About 60,000,000 bushels were exported in wheat or flour, 40,000,000 bushels can be estimated for seeding, and, making a most liberal allowance, 90,000,000 bushels for domestic requirements. Here is, easy, 190,000,000 bushels to be taken out of consideration for future requirements for nine months. If exports and domestic consumption are allowed at same rate as for first three months and spring wheat seeding at 25,000,000 bushels, allowing the total wheat crop was but 650,000,000 bushels and adding the 100,000,000 bushels carried over from July 1 last, there would be still on hand next July 1, 85,000,000 bushels, and there will be a good deal more than that.

All this figuring on future requirements will not count for more than passing notice as long as manipulation is the chief influence, and the lack of contract grade in the Chicago market the most important factor in that connection. Anything, then, of a bullish character, from delayed seeding in America to frosts in the Argentine will count. But this question of supply and demand will count some time and count big, too. Already the effects of the higher prices in this country have told unfavorably on domestic and foreign demands, but few regard that. The many look at the large exports of the wheat bought when prices were much lower than now, talk of the premium prices paid in St. Louis for a few cars selected wheat, and then cry, "And December wheat will be cornered, too."

It was the last weather bureau summing up of crop conditions that started real bull markets in corn. Before that was issued the people who were working up sentiment strong enough to start good speculative buying had nothing save expectations to offer, and the encouragement in in this was hardly sufficient to bring in the right sort of investment buying. Their bull movement came very near being sidetracked, too, by a purported official statement from crop experts of the agricultural department that the corn crop was out of danger from frost and would yield over 2,500,000,000 bushels. But the weather bureau report of damage by dampness and mold over a wide area, and that weather unfavorable for maturing late corn came to the rescue and followed by another spell of "the rain it raineth every day" all over the corn belt, brought buyers in a-running. It was buying for both shorts and longs, too—the former going out and the latter coming in, and the result was that 40-cent corn for the new crop upturns was seen in the St. Louis market.

The claims of damage are undoubtedly exaggerated, as they always are, and when the actual conditions of the crop are determined by actual revealments of the husking this will be found to be the case. Experienced farmers laugh at the idea of corn in the shock being badly damaged by rains, or that matured uncut corn could be, either. In the northern sections of the corn belt, late corn where unmatured has probably been held back by rains and can be nipped by frosts. Undoubtedly a considerable proportion of low grade corn will be the result of the too rainy season. The crop has not had the warm, drying winds that makes contract corn, and there is liable to be all kinds of trouble over this fact.

The lack of contract grade will, as I have stated before, lead to manipulation in the markets that do not permit new corn to grade contract until well hardened by dry, hot winds or frost. Chicago is very particular in this respect, and Chicago is the head center of "comers" this year. Another dangerous condition is the fact that large sales of corn for export have been made to go via New Orleans and Galveston for October-November and November-December shipment. The rains have so far prevented any good movement of new corn to the seaboard to fill these sales, and it is feared that the sellers of this corn abroad will have trouble in filling their sales with corn acceptable abroad. Europe has been keen to buy on basis of about 57c laid down there, as Russia and Roumania had failed on their crops, and the Argentine sold up close—this is the corn now clearing in such large amounts from that country—so that America was depended upon to fill feeding requirements from her great crop. If Europe is disappointed on America's crop, there is liable to be music in the air, and not sweet strains, either.

The principal elevating power under oats for future delivery has been corn. Better speculation was excited than had been seen for a long time past, though that "better" was no great shakes in the volume transacted. Oats are more a cash than a speculative cereal in the St. Louis market. St. Louis has become such a distributive center to the Southwest, Southeast and direct South that the liberal movement that has gone on steadily to this point for weeks past has resulted in little accumulation in stocks here, though the visible increase has doubled that of last year for some time.

Another good week has been passed by the St. Louis miller and flour seller generally. The best trade has been on domestic account. That was really excellent. Southeastern and southern Illinois mills were sold so far ahead that they had to shut off their offers to a great extent, and this caused a diversion of orders to this market. New England was a better buyer than at any time in several years, owing to the fact that St. Louis mills were offering to sell at cheaper rates than those of Michigan. Soft winters received the preference, as hard winters held about 25c a barrel above them in price. Sales for export, however, were not of the same volume as they have been. The United Kingdom only came in occasionally, and then only at prices that it took close figuring to realize on. Yet several good-sized lots were booked, and, with that taken by the continent, made up a fair aggregate. Sales were few and small to Cuba and revolutionary South America shut out most business by her numerous "wars." Trade in mill feed would have been larger than it was had mills not been so sold ahead that offerings very small. As it was all that came out for sale met ready buyers at higher prices.

ZINC AND LEAD PRICES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 4.—The zinc market from over the Missouri-Kansas district is looking better, with a slight advance in prices for the week just ended. Prices have advanced $1 per ton in all the camps of the district except Joplin, where prices are remaining practically unchanged from the prices received two weeks ago. The Joplin producers claim that they are getting the worst of the deal just now, and that they have become careless about attending the Wednesday night curb market, where buyer and seller meet to discuss the prices of ore for the week. It is the impression among producers that this has caused the prices in Joplin to be proportionately lower than in the other camps of the district.

Many of them have been waiting till Thursday, when they sell their ore at the bin, believing they can do better by waiting. The buyers have nearly succeeded in breaking up the Wednesday night market, which has been made possible by the lukewarmness of the producers, and ore prices have been depressed accordingly. It amounts to a loss individually to the Joplin producers of about $1 per ton.

At Duenweg, Mo., the Loraine ore was advanced $1 per ton, and the Mattes & Booker output received a like advance. At Prosperity, Mo., the ore from [illegible] unt Ararat mine was also advanced [illegible] ton, and [illegible] Katy C. ore was [illegible] per ton, [illegible] be equivalen[illegible] At Car- [illegible] the Gl[illegible] bid of $0 [illegible] go there [illegible] d $1 per [illegible] r ton. TRANSIT BUFFETED

AS A FOOTBALL

ON FOURTH STREET

Local Railway Security Is Readily Sent Up and Down.

MONEY IN STRONG DEMAND

BANKS HAVE HAD TO CALL LOANS TO MEET COMMERCIAL DEMANDS.

Week Showed Big Buying in United Railways Preferred and 4s Bonds With Slight Fluctuation—Bear Market Expected for Most of This Week.

With practically one exception trading on Fourth street was featureless. The one exception was Transit, the football in local securities. The vagaries of this stock are many with each phase hard to explain. Sometimes it seems to reflect the general tone of the market, while again it declines with the rest of the list at an advance. Traders say that it is a closer reflection of local monetary conditions than any other stock on the list, and that its fluctuations come nearer showing the condition of the St. Louis money market than any other stock.

With a crop to move and mercantile houses calling for money to handle the largest volume of commercial business that has been known in St. Louis it has been necessary for the banks to call borrowers on the stock collateral with the smallest range of fluctuations.

Transit seems to be the stock that varies the least in dollars and cents when a large selling order is placed on the market, and for that reason the quotations fairly indicate the condition of the money market.

The banks report a smart demand for money for commercial and crop demands and state that while they have plenty to handle the demands of their regular customers, that they have none to spare for speculative purposes. Outside banks tributary to St. Louis have found that they could spare a considerable sum to loan on local securities, and this feature has helped the speculative market to an appreciable extent.

In the street railway securities Transit again comes to the front with a record-breaking statement of September earnings. Saturday a week ago the stock sold at 28½. Previous to the statement of September earnings it sold down to 28 on Tuesday and then up to 29¾ on Friday and back again to 28½ at Saturday's close. United Railways preferred and United Railways 4s, being dividend securities paying a rate hard to equal on a long-time investment, have varied more than the monetary situation would warrant. At the average selling price of the week the preferred returns the investor a trifle under 6 per cent, while the 4s give an income of nearly 5 per cent. These figures seem to have been attractive to investors, as any concession has readily found an anxious purchaser.

During the week $49,000 of United Railway 4s and $114,250 (par value) United Railway preferred changed hands, and Fourth street says they have been practically absorbed by the investing public. There has been a quiet demand for East St. Louis and Suburban securities, and while none have been handled on the local exchange, it is known that there has been a considerable volume of business in the Illinois securities at private sales.

Bank stocks have been neglected. During the entire week the records of the Exchange show transactions of but 108 shares. National Bank of Commerce was the only stock that showed any material fluctuation in price, and that stock went through the week in an apathetic manner until an offering of 13 shares broke the market from 401¼ to 397, and some of the brokers on Fourth street have been superstitious enough to attribute this low price to the traditional unlucky 13 shares dealt in.

Third National scaled down from $33.72 bid a week ago to $33.22 bid yesterday, transactions during the week being at 335 and 333, with no tangible reason for the decline.

The trust company section had but little advantage of the bank list in the matter of amount of sales. Missouri Trust scaled down from 126 a week ago to 124 on Tuesday on small sales and closed the week at 125½ bid. Mississippi Valley Trust did not figure in the week's transactions and Colonial showed a range of only from 212½ to 212.

Local stocks were barely in evidence. Edison on small transactions ranged from 40 to 40½. Laclede Gas has made excellent showing of late, and it is said that New York has been paying more for this stock than local operators were willing to offer. Though there have been no sales recorded on the Fouth street bourse, the New York Exchange has handled considerable of this security at a better figure than 90, which was the best price bid at yesterday's session. The probable increased sale of fuel gas this winter should lift the price of this stock.

Central Coal and Coke was the most active stock on the miscellaneous list. With a famine of anthracite coal facing the country it would seem that this stock would show a marked gain, but on the contrary it slumped from 71 to 68¼ with a goodly amount of sales.

Fourth street says that nothing but the monetary stringency causes the decline.

Rumor says the expected rich veins in Granite-Bimetallic did not develop and that stock went down the line to 1.80 bid on Saturday, with a moderate volume of business.

As a generally summary of the week it may be said that no immediate increase in prices can be expected under existing conditions. The earlier part of the week will probably show lower prices, which will continue until the weak holders are shaken out. Then the question of intrinsic value will assert itself and probably better prices will be recorded.

The appended table will show the range of prices for the past week:

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—There was much confusion and excitement in the stock market again today, which resulted in last prices at a level from 1 to 3 points lower than last night for most of the prominent active stocks. The failure of the coal conference at Washington to effect a settlement prevented the recovery which would naturally have followed from the refutation of yesterday's false rumors that the comptroller of the currency had overruled the decision of Secretary Shaw to remit the requirement upon national banks to maintain a 25-per-cent reserve against government deposits.

After an effective recovery, the market received a second shock from the appearance of the bank statement without change in its form to indicate the reduction in reserve requirements permitted by Secretary Shaw. That is to say, government deposits are still included with the deposits and reserve requirement estimated at 25 per cent of the total, with the result that a decrease in the surplus is indicated of $1,417,425, bringing down that item to $1,819,200.

The clearing house commission was long in session before the bank statement was given out, and no statement accompanied it to show what policy dictated it. A footnote to the bank statement gives the amount of government deposits with clearing house banks. Whatever may be the motives impelling the action of the clearing house the operators in stocks jumped to the conclusion that for stock market purposes the position of the New York banks is to be regarded as though Secretary Shaw's ruling was not in force. The fact remains that the secretary's permissive latitude upon the banks is available in case of a determination by the clearing house to change its decision or to relax its rule at its own discretion. The market strength of foreign exchange as a result of the week's easy money market and the shutting off of any hope of gold imports, or even with some apprehension of possible demand for gold exports, probably influenced the clearing house authorities.

Banking conditions had become such at the opening of the week that a considerable loan contraction was imperative, and loans placed in the stock market were called in such large volume as to run the call loan rate up to 35 per cent and precipitate a crisis in the stock market. Monday evening the market closed in a state of demoralization, and there were grave fears that a panic would ensue on Tuesday. But the next morning the announcement had been made of the drastic measures of relief of the money situation offered by Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, and there was a convulsive rebound in prices of stocks, which rather more than wiped out the semi-panic decline of Monday.

The nervousness and excitement of the trading decreased from day to day until the market settled down into dullness towards the end of the week. The level of prices had reached about that of last week's closing and was higher in some cases.

So much for the market effect of the important steps taken by the secretary of the treasury. The effect on the money market was equally marked, but not so prompt. The extreme stringency of the market was relieved and a stop was put to the forced liquidation in the stock market, but rates continued high in all departments. Call loan rates settled down to about an 8-per cent basis, and time loans, up to four months, commanded a permium over the 6-per cent legal rate. The conviction emerged that high money rates are likely to be maintained for the reainder of the year. It is fit that a prodigal rplaceent of the relief fund in stock exchange loans would endanger the situation again, and the policy of bankers and large financial powers has been enough to discourage any renewal of speculative activity for the present.

R. M. FRY, R. R. Fry Lumber Co., Secretary and Treasurer.

These are the gentlemen who conduct the affairs of the "Golden Gate," and their reputation alone is a sufficient guarantee as to the stability of the organization. The "Golden Gate" owns over 500 acres of as fine a mineral land as there is in El Dorado County, Cal., located directly on the "Mother Lode," only a mile from where Marshall first discovered gold in California in 1849. The great Springfield Mine, which paid dividends of $85,000 a month, is right on the same vein as the "Golden Gate." The big Church Mine, which is on the other side, has been a dividend payer for years and years. In fact, the "Mother Lode" is dotted from one end to the other with great dividend-paying mines; this is the home of the gold in this section of California. We have ore in our office from the "Golden Gate" which runs from $25 to more than $100 per ton. The Company is now preparing to erect its stamp mill, shaft No. 1 is going down, all bunk houses, office buildings, dining rooms, everything is completed. "Golden Gate" is now offered at 5c per share. Par value $1.00; in other words, you buy a dollar's worth of stock for 5c. "Great Western" is worth $1.00 per share today of any man's money; we sold this stock at 5c. "Golden Gate" will be worth $1.00 per share as soon as you give the officers the opportunity to develop the property and put up the stamp mill. The ore can be mined and milled for less than $1.50 per ton. "Golden Gate" has three distinct ledges of ore running clear through the property. Price will advance to $1.00 per share as soon as sufficient money is secured to complete the stamp mill and place the mine on a dividend paying basis. The man who can buy "Golden Gate" at 5c is lucky, indeed. The Directors have the power to advance the price at any time. We advise you to buy NOW, and not only to make the profit in the rise of the stock, but secure your dividends. Our weekly market letter free upon application. Buy "Golden Gate" and make hundreds of dollars on a small investment.

Rheumatism CURED BY the use of SWANSON'S
"5-DROPS"

SWANSON'S "5-DROPS" is the only medicine in the world that will cure Rheumatism in all of its forms and stages of development. Rheumatism is a blood disease, and is caused by poisonous matter (lactic acid and uric acid) being retained in the blood. "5-DROPS" cures this dreadful malady by eliminating from the blood, these poisons and any other impurities which may prevent perfect circulation. This is the only way in which a permanent cure may be obtained. With the blood pure, perfect circulation is assured, and disease is an impossibility. "5-DROPS" is an internal and external remedy, which acts quickly, safely and surely, and is an absolute cure for Rheumatism. "5-DROPS" taken internally will dissolve the poisonous acid, remove it from the system and cleanse the blood of all poisons. An application of "5-DROPS" to the afflicted parts will stop the pains almost instantly, while the cause of the disease is being surely removed by its internal use. Aches, pains and soreness disappear as if by magic when "5-DROPS" is used.

NEURALGIA is caused by the blood being impure, resulting in the impairment of the nervous system. The lack of nerve force brings a contraction of the nerve centers which is certain to cause the most intense pain. Unless the blood is at once purified and the system placed in a healthy condition it invariably terminates in a complete breakdown of the whole nervous system and often means years of terrible suffering. "5-DROPS" will give quick relief and effect a permanent cure of this dreadful malady. It cleanses the blood, starts perfect circulation, stops the pain, and in a remarkably short time restores the nerves to a normal condition. No other remedy in the world will revitalize the nerves centers or give such instant relief to the sufferer.

BERNARD BENBE, Goodell, Iowa, writes:—"I have taken about one bottle of "5-DROPS, and it has cured me of Rheumatism. I have had the Rheumatism for three years; went on crutches for about two years and could not rest day or night. After taking one-half bottle of "5-DROPS" I was well in a week, and I will praise it as long as I live."

MRS. JAMES McCARTER, 409 Edmund St., St. Paul, Minn., writes:—"Your "5-DROPS" is the best medicine I ever used. I was a cripple with Rheumatism for nine months. The sample bottle which you sent me gave me relief, and I procured two large size bottles of the remedy and after using am entirely well."

J. T. JOLLY, Juniata, Ky., writes:—"I have had Rheumatism for twenty years, and have been confined to my room for two years. In two weeks after I commenced using your "5-DROPS" I was up, and in one month I had laid my crutches away and I am able to work."

"5-DROPS" IS AN INFALLIBLE CURE FOR Rheumatism, Neuralgia, La Grippe, Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Lumbago, Sciatica, Gout, Asthma, Catarrh, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Nervousness, Backache, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Croup, Nervous and Neuralgic Headache, Malaria, Heart Weakness, Paralysis, Creeping Numbness, Sleeplessness and Blood Diseases.

NOTICE. "5-DROPS" is perfectly harmless and can be taken by a child as well as an adult. It is entirely free from alcohol, opiates, salicylates or other injurious drugs. OIL SHIPMENTS DISAPPOINTING

September Figures Show a Big Falling Off.

MANY REASONS FOR SHORTAGE

SCARCITY OF CARS, HOWEVER, IS THE PRINCIPAL ONE.

The Fire, However, Is Partly Responsible, but There Is Plenty of Oil to Ship if the Transportation Were Only Furnished.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BEAUMONT, Tex., Oct. 4.—The shipments of oil for September have been most disappointing. It was expected early in the month that they would exceed those of any previous month, and that the total would be in excess of a million and a half barrels. But the result shows that the amount for the month was less than a million barrels—848,815.

The fire in the Keith-Ward tract operated toward the reduction of shipments, although not to a very great extent. Shipments from the entire field were interfered with for a few days, and several good producers were "put out of business" for several weeks. But the continued congestion of cars and the inability of shippers to have their requisitions filled has been the main cause of the decrease.

The Southern Pacific, in spite of railroad commission decisions and the pleas of oil men, has managed to continue to do pretty much as it pleased with its own cars and with the cars owned by oil companies. The result has been that cars have not been forthcoming on demand and shipments have been greatly interfered with.

Pumping Plants Being Installed.

The fire undid much of the work of installing pumping plants that had been done; and in that it did most of its damage. The field as a producing proposition is probably little more complete than it was on the first of September, although the installation of pumping plants has been going on day and night with all the energy that money and men could produce. The field is now almost fully equipped for pumping, excepting the Keith-Ward tract, in the path of the fire. This tract is doing the "Phenix act" in remarkably rapid style; but there remains much to be done before the marks of the fire are fully wiped out.

The salt water proposition has been a matter more of prediction than realization. There is no doubt that water has been found in Spindle Top wells and that the owners thereof have been greatly alarmed thereat. Some of them have even gone so far as to try to dispose of their property and get "from under," being fully convinced that the whole field was going to yield to the dreaded salt water.

Flow of Salt Water Decreasing.

But not only has investigation by experienced chemists proved that the water found in the wells is not from the ocean, but the amount of water that is brought up is constantly decreasing, if the testimony of gentlemen who are in the best position to know is to be believed. They declare that wells which, a month ago, were yielding 20 per cent salt water are now showing less than 5 per cent; and they maintain that this represents the condition of the entire portion of the field that was affected.

It must not be understood that the entire field, or any very great part of it, has been showing salt water. Such is not the case. Not more than a dozen wells in one part of the field have yielded water with oil; and in by far the greater part of the field there has not been a sign of water. There appears to be little doubt that the water that has been found in the wells is the result of unplugged wells—abandoned holes that have been left as so many pores through which all the moisture that percolates into the veins through which they passed seep into the oil stratum, and do its share toward forcing the oil away from the mouths of the wells.

Movement for Plugging Wells.

Much talk about a concerted movement for plugging up these wells—filling them with a cement which would effectually prevent the seepage of water along their channels into the lower stratum—has been indulged in, but so far as present appearances go, little actual work has been done. Oil well owners think that they should not bear all the burden, and drillers declare that they will not bear it. Business men think that the oil-field men should settle the matter and they are not very quick in going into their pockets for the money necessary to help the oil men as they think they should be helped.

Indifference has much to do with the matter. The case is very similar to that of the use of "gumbo" in the earlier days of the drilling history of the field—when millions of barrels of muddy water were pumped into the oil stratum by men who were drilling wells. Wise people warned them against it; but they were in a hurry to get through with the work of drilling, and they were so anxious to get hold of the golden eggs that they were willing to run the risk of killing the goose. It was the same way with the wasting of oil in the gusher days—when mammoth spouters would be opened, and allowed to gush for half an hour or half a day for the amusement of some visitor. Enough oil was wasted in this way to supply the entire Southern Pacific system with fuel oil for twenty years; but nobody—except a few cranks—cared for this; there was the most complete confidence in the never-failingness of Spindle Top.

ALL WITH THE SAME NAME.

Three Men From Same House Fined for the Same Offense.

The New York Times prints this: Three men who gave their names as John F. O'Neill of 53 Bedford street were arraigned before Magistrate Hogan in the Jefferson Market court, charged with having eaten an enormous meal in Henry Refkowitz's restaurant at 199 Bleecker street, for which they refused to pay. He charged that they had consumed sirloin steaks and onions until he had become frightened at the quantity, and that they calmly said they had no money. Magistrate Hogan picked up one of the complaints. "John F. O'Neill, come up here," he said. All three prisoners stepped to the bridge. "Which one of you is John F. O'Neill?" asked the magistrate. "I am," repeated the three in chorus. "What!" exclaimed Magistrate Hogan. "Which of you lives at 53 Bedford street?" "I do," echoed the trio. "What is your name?" asked his honor of the tallest. "John F. O'Neill." "And yours?" he asked of the second in size. "John F. O'Neill." "And yours?" indicating the smallest. "John F. O'Neill." "Are you guilty?" "We are," the three answered as one. "Five dollars fine each," ruled the court, and the John F. O'Neills went to jail.

The Kindly Poor.

From the Indianapolis News.

Jane Addams tells from her wide experience how ungrudgingly the poor help one another. A poor young woman took refuge with a friend whom she supposed to be living in three rooms in another part of the town. When she arrived she discovered that her friend's husband had been out of work so long that they had been reduced to living in one room. The friend, however, took her in, and the husband was obliged to sleep upon a bench in the park every night for a week, which he did uncomplainingly, if not cheerfully. Fortunately it was summer, "and it only rained one night."

PEASANT'S BLESSING.

King Oscar Touched by Aged Woman's Evidence of Loyalty.

A touching and pretty little incident is related in connection with King Oscar's recent visit to Throndhiem. A great crowd had assembled before the new Masonic Temple to see the King, who was to participate in the dedicatory exercises.

In the throng was a little old woman, who on account of her age, was given a favored place by a police officer. As the King passed by she stepped forward and fell on her knee before him, raising a pretty floral design fashioned in the form of a crown.

As she handed him the offering she said in her broad peasant dialect: "God bless the King and his Queen and his whole house." The woman's humble loyalty and her kind sentiment quite overcame the monarch for a moment and tears stood in his eyes as he warmly thanked her.

Hard times in Germany are said to have caused a large diminution in the consumption of wine and spirituous liquors.

DR. BALLARD AND JONAH.

How the Minister Disposed of the Story About the Whale.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

They tell with relish down there at Ocean Gro a tale of old Dr. Ballard, the venerable vice-president of the association, who presides at most of the meetings. Dr. Ballard is upward of 80, but time has not dulled his wits, and it is a bright man who gets the better of him. One he met who was inclined to dispute the story of Jonah.

"Now, doctor," said he, "as a matter of fact, don't you think Jonah was—well, drawing the long bow, just a leetle bit? Wasn't that whale yarn the first authentic fish story?"

"No," replied the doctor, "I don't think it was. I think Jonah was a man of truth; you don't. I tell you what we'll do. We've both got to die before long. When I get to heaven, if Jonah's there I'll ask him about it. If he isn't there, why then you ask him!"

An Excellent Reason.

From the Indianapolis News.

Two Chillicothe small boys were discussing their favorite kinds of pie the other day. One of them declared pumpkin was the best made.

"I don't like it," returned the other.

"Why?" asked the first kid.

"Because you git yer ears smeared eatin' it," was the reply.

"WALL STREET WEEKLY REPORT."

Everybody knows that stocks have not declined owing to future outlook or because they were too high, but because the money situation made it simply impos- they were too high, but because the money situation made it simply impossible for all to get funds without liquidation. The ENORMOUS LIQUIDATION last week also aided matters materially. Now that the STORM IS OVER there will be as much of a desire to BUY as there was the first part of last week to SELL.

BARGAINS are more in evidence in WALL STREET than they are in dry goods stores. We think it is no exaggeration to say that fully 75,000 SHARES OF STOCKS have been absorbed by cash INVESTORS the past week. This stock will practically go out of the market to stay for quite some period at LEAST. It will take good profits to bring it back into WALL STREET, as this class of BUYER PURCHASES when low and only parts with his holdings when things are high and people are climbing for them.

ANOTHER POINT. Bear in mind the market of the past week has thrown back upon the hands of the CLIQUES AND INSIDERS nearly all outside holdings. Their work of disposal will consequently all have to be done over again. It will also take an ADVANCING MARKET to accomplish the purpose.

REMEMBER IN THE '99 TIGHT MONEY EPISODE, KEENE AND THE STANDARD OIL INTERESTS WERE BEARISH UPON THE MARKET. TODAY THEY ARE LOADED with STOCKS. The course of ST. PAUL the past month fully proves it. Their interests are consequently identified with the BULLS and they are probably the STRONGEST COMBINATION TODAY in WALL STREET. Stocks will ultimately go very much higher in many instances HIGHER THAN PRICES YET RECORDED. The low prices of the annual tight money period we believe have been made and will not be generally reached again.

The average trader should be conservative in trading, and the high-priced stocks should not be bought unless with plenty of margin to protect same. But such stocks as Wabash preferred, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, Copper and United States Steel common we consider safe on a 5-point margin. The latter, United States Steel common, if bought around 40, is safe on a 3-point margin.

We accept accounts as low as $50.00, commission ⅛, interest charges 5 per cent in ten share lots and upwards.

Cost of materials, including rims, washers, nipples, leather, rubber, twine and cement, hubs, spokes, etc.	$ 9,000.00
Labor assembling and manufacturing wheels	2,000.00
Expenses for running expenses of factory, etc., etc., including electric light, power, oil, coal, insurance, water, gas, etc., etc.	1,000.00
Cost of selling goods, advertising, etc., at 20 per cent selling price, which is extraordinarily high	6,400.00
	$18,400.00

These wheels can be sold for at least the same price as other manufacturers are selling their pneumatic tires alone for, which is in the neighborhood of $64.00 per set or for 2000 tires (500 sets) per day income.........$ 32,000.00
Leaving a clear profit daily of 13,600.00
Or a yearly profit of 4,080,000.00

This will enable the company to pay large dividends and at the same time place in reserve a very handsome sum each year.

There is no difficulty whatsoever in disposing of the entire output of the factory as fast as the tires and wheels can be turned out. Our General Manager, who was Treasurer and General Manager of the New Brunswick Tire Company, is authority for the statement that he sold 240,000 tires to one concern in one year, and these were manufactured in our factory.

BURNT CHILD DREADS FIRE!

Many dishonest mining schemes have bitten you. Has it not occurred to you that SOMEWHERE there MUST be good mines, properly managed, where your money would be honestly used and later pay you big returns?

I am a wholesale leather merchant in New York City. I am also President of THE LEAD MINING CORPORATION OF AMERICA, modestly capitalized at one million dollars, mining lead in Owen County, Kentucky. Every dollar you invest is honestly used to build up a property which some day will be the largest lead producer in the world.

For a short time its stock sells at $3.00 per share. It will be par ($10.00) within two years. In 90 days we will be earning from our first plant, already installed, $810.00 per week net profit, or 13½ per cent on your investment at present price. This is from our first shaft, and there are THIRTY MORE TO COME.

Write to me and I will give you complete facts.

The GOLDEN ROD MINING CO.

10 Millions Gold Ore in Sight.

THUNDER MOUNTAIN

IDAHO

AMERICA'S TRANSVAAL.

10 Millions Gold Ore in Sight.

THE GOLDEN ROD MINING CO. owns outright and absolutely free of debt what are considered to be two of the richest gold claims ever staked. They are in close proximity to the world-famous "Dewey Group" (estimated as having $10,000,000 of gold ore in sight). Official reports indicate this district as being the richest gold territory in the United States if not the whole world. The Golden Rod ore is free milling and is growing richer with depth. Assays from the bottom of the shaft now run over $70.00 per ton in gold.

The capital stock is 1,500,000 shares, par value $1.00 each, full paid and non-assessable. 80 per cent or 1,200,000 shares have been placed in the treasury. Unlike many companies who sell stock to buy and pay for their properties, The Golden Rod (having no debts) sells its TREASURY STOCK only for active development work. For this purpose therefore a limited amount of fully paid and non-assessable Treasury Stock is now offered at

5 CENTS PER SHARE

PAR VALUE $1.00.

This is no wild-cat scheme, but an honest, bona-fide business proposition. Work is being pushed rapidly, the stock is selling fast, and will soon advance in price—come in on the ground floor. All stockholders have equal rights—THERE ARE NO SALARIED OFFICERS, NO DEBTS, NO PREFERRED STOCK, NO BONDS AND NO LIABILITIES.

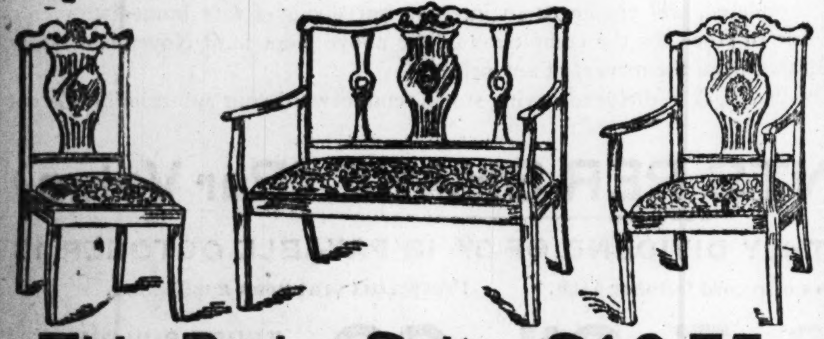
This Sideboard, $17.50

If you've a dining-room to complete or a desire to replace your old sideboard with a more modern style this is an unequaled opportunity—an opportunity not to be overlooked. From the very best grade of select oak this handsome sideboard is constructed, being arranged with a prettily molded top, embellished with a pattern French plate mirror of liberal dimensions. The lower compartment is arranged with lined linen and silverware drawers that are artistically bent. The cupboard is spacious and complete. We've 260 of these boards, bought at an opportune time from a manufacturer anxious to close out his line. Ordinary conditions would compel us to price them at $25.

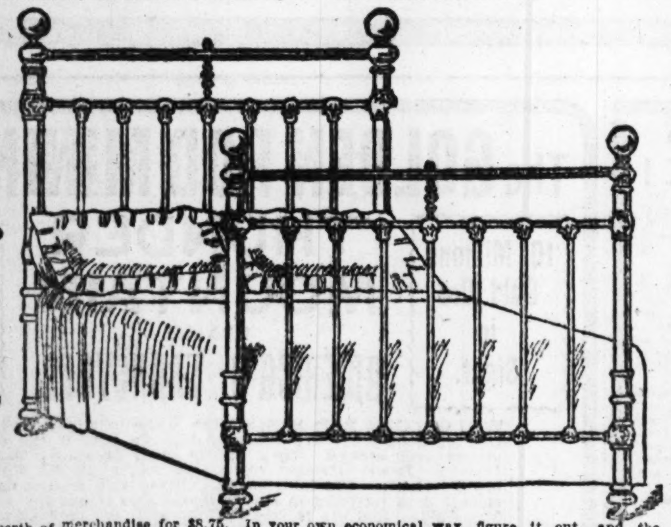
It is a saving worthy of your consideration.



This Parlor Suite, $10.75.

The problem of furnishing a front room or a parlor is not so easily solved. We've a suggestion to make to those contemplating this step: Buy three pieces like the above illustration, and then invest in say about four or five odd pieces (according to the size of your room); get them to harmonize, and you will find it an inexpensive and stylish manner of furnishing the "show" room of your home.

This Iron Bed, Complete With Spring and Mattress, $8.75



An actual $14.00 worth of merchandise for $8.75. In your own economical way figure it out, and the least price you could possibly create for the three articles would be $14.00. The bed is worth $6.00 anywhere at any time, and a durable spring and "perfect" mattress are worth $4.00 each. That would be economical buying. There are those who would readily pay $16.00 for the identical outfit without a murmur.

$2.50 FOR A RANGE THAT WILL STAND THE TEST OF TIME.

The New Imperial Blue Steel Range

The "NEW IMPERIAL" Charter Oak Range embodies the sterling qualities that appeal to lovers of high-class ranges. 'Tis strictly modern in construction, every part being arranged according to the best knowledge of the expert rangemaker and for the sole convenience of the user. Polished is the quality of material used throughout in the construction of the "New Imperial," and nothing better is put into $75 ranges. We stand back of this range with a valid guarantee—a guarantee that protects you from all doubt, a guarantee that assures you that in buying the "New Imperial" Charter Oak you are buying the best range produced.

BLUE STEEL

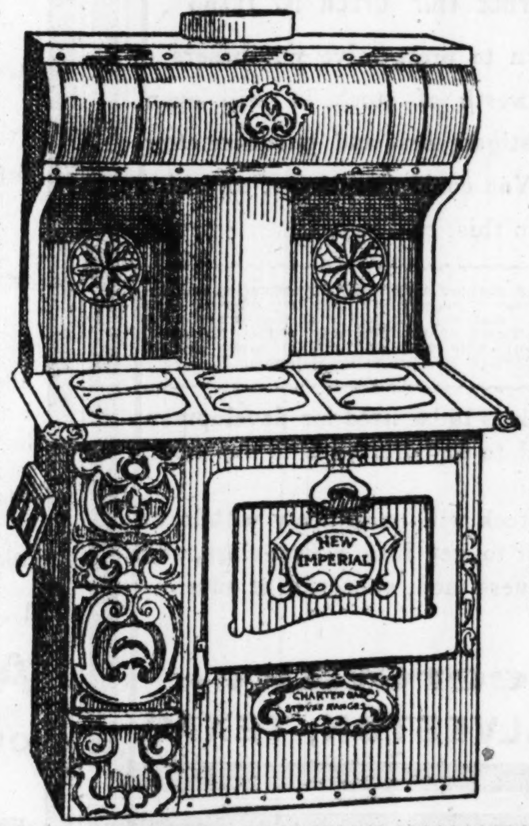
OUR MATCHLESS PRICE,

$35.00



The "NEW IMPERIAL" is larger and of a higher grade than any range sold in St. Louis within $15 of the price. It has six holes, warming closet, improved duplex grate and extra large oven, Measuring 18½ Inches Across the Front.

Do not be misled by any catch-penny advertisements of small-sized japan ranges. Japanning, which is merely an inferior grade of paint, will peel off from the heat, thereby spoiling the entire appearance of the range. Quality Counts, and you cannot put a better cooking or baking apparatus into your home than the New Imperial Charter Oak Range.

PART FOUR. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 5, 1902. PAGES 1—13 B

JOSEPH G. CANNON, LEADING CANDIDATE FOR SPEAKER TO SUCCEED HENDERSON OF IOWA, "FATHER OF THE HOUSE."

Personality of the Old Congressman from Illinois, Who Looks Like Lincoln, Believes in Fighting Trusts and Upholding the Protective Tariff and Is Now Campaigning in Aid of Republican Congressmen.

Congressman Joseph G. Cannon of the Twelfth Illinois district, chairman of the House committee on appropriations, and frequently spoken of as "the watchdog of the treasury," spoke in St. Louis last night in the interest of the candidacy of his friend, Charles F. Joy.

He beamed at his audience over his spectacles, the fringe of whiskers about his chin fanned the gentle breeze, pleasantly or fiercely, as the passages of the speech were pacific or belligerent, and justified the conduct of the Republican party in the past and based the prophesy of its future on what it was said it already had done in the interest of all the people.

The coming of "Uncle Joe," as he is familiarly called, is especially interesting, as the retirement of Speaker Henderson from the congressional race in Iowa, will make it necessary to select someone else for speaker if a Republican house is elected. The man most conspicuously mentioned for Speaker Henderson's successor is Congressman Cannon. In the fiftieth Congress he narrowly escaped landing the plum. His wariness is said to have increased since then.

Congressman J. B. Cannon addressed 1500 persons last night in Liedekranz Hall, Easton and Vandeventer avenues. Smith P. Galt was chairman of the meeting. The vice-presidents were Hon. James Rollins, Gen. B. C. Farrar, Capt. Isaac N. Mason, Eugene McQuillan and Archibald Carr.

The nester of Congress was presented by Chairman Galt after a brief and spirited address. As Mr. Cannon arose and faced the audience a colored drum corps came crashing into the hall and monopolized all the limelight until the members had made a triumphal march around the room, passing the speaker's stand and winding up at the rear with a farewell blast.

Mr. Connon's address was punctuated with the forceful witticisms and the vigorous left-hand gestures with which his constituents in Illinois are so familiar. He traced the progress of the country from the time of Abraham Lincoln and said that in all that time the Republican party had never taken a backward step. He said that the country was only saved from ruin in Cleveland's first administration by a Republican Congress; that when Harrison and McKinley were in charge it not only walked and ran, but leaped under the impetus of protection.

MISSOURI AND CLEVELAND.

Referring to Cleveland's administration, he said that Missouri went "—— bent for Cleveland," but later on whenever anyone mentioned Cleveland's name before the Missouri dlegation at Washington the air grew lurid with expletives immediately.

Mr. Cannon referred to Congressman DeArmond as "the man with the incisive tongue, steeped in gall, who habitually drank frapped nitric acid, never diluted, except in sulphuric acid."

TRUST FLEA ON DOG'S TAIL.

He termed the Democratic party the party of obstruction. "To cure the dog's tail of the trust flea," said he of the Democrats, "they would cut the tail off just behind the canine's head."

He asserted that the Democrats had been cutting the traces of the wagon of progress for years, and ofttimes shooting the horses, yet when the Republican party had pulled the load out of the slough, the obstructionists had willingly sat under the vine and enjoyed the benefits with those who had pulled most of the load.

"It is the highest compliment our Democratic friends could pay us," he vociferated, and the audience roared.

Mr. Cannon spoke pithily on the trust question. His remedy, he said, for that question was constitutional amendment and competition.

In his eulogy of Congressman Joy, he spoke of the latter's efficient service in securing the aid of Congress towards the coming World's Fair as a member of the arts and expositions committee and said that his resolution would insure more favors from Congress.

Mr. Cannon was followed by Hon. Dennis Flynn, congressional delegate from Oklahoma, who addressed the audience for a half hour on issues of the campaign.

Following is a character sketch of Congressman Cannon written after an interview with Mr. Cannon at the Union League Club in Chicago Thursday:

By W. A. CARPENTER.

The man most mentioned for speaker of the next House of Representatives, "Uncle Joe" Cannon of the Twelfth Illinois district is out working, not for the speakership, but for the election of a Republican Congress.

"First catch your hare," he says, "then make your pie."

In other words, first get your Republican House, then elect your Republican speaker.

"All the men mentioned for speaker, I take it," said Mr. Cannon, as he sat with one leg dangling over a chair arm, "are working as hard as I am to get the right men elected. That being true, we shall not only have the right presiding officers in the House, but the right kind of legislation on all the great matters of public concern."

The man whom presidents and cabinets consult more frequently than any other member of Congress had just eaten breakfast. His after breakfast cigar was badly mangled from much biting. His slouch hat was on one side of his head, a blue serge sackcoat, without lining, rather short for the 5 foot 10 of its wearer and rather thin for the nipping fall weather, showed, as did his black string tie, more love for comfort than for appearance. Once, as he talked, he rested on the edge of the table, leaning back both hands behind him as props.

Ungainly, like Lincoln, he is supposed to resemble in general gnarliness scarcely less than Senator Shelby Cullom, to whom Congressman Cannon relinquishes all title to the Lincoln prototype; drawley in speech, confidential in whispers, with hand beside the nose when the climax of the joke that must never be repeated is told, ruggedly profane, but not picturesquely so; no fuss, no feathers, no frills, but abounding in common sense and good nature and knowledge of humanity in all its moods—red of face, gray of hair and beard, craftly though placid of eye, trying to look like the mass, but if a class all by himself; soft words allaying suspicion that the politician predominates over the statesman, a suspicion that the soft words also arouse—there is "Uncle Joe" all things to all men and always in command of the situation when the situaeion is commandable.

Just now he does not think it commandable through much speech directly bearing upon it. You gather this from what he does not say. The speakership and what he would do were he to succeed Henderson he lets almost wholly alone. Mr. Cannon is [illegible] self-laudation—that is unusual for a man in public life. He is said to hold that if anyone has done anything of value for humanity, humanity is bound, sooner or later, to find it out and fix the credit. He is also alleged to have hinted that few persons are continued 26 years in Congress who are wholly without merit.

"Uncle Joes" theme is anybody but Uncle Joe.

BEGAN WITH THE PARTY.

"The Republican party and I started in about the same time," Mr. Cannon said. "Naturally we came along together. I was denied the advantages of a liberal education, so when I got into Congress I had to take up the study of political economy and other questions a public man is supposed to understand. I began as a free-trader, as free as the freest of our Democratic friends. The world was my county and there was no restriction to be placed on trade or its avenues. But now I am a protectionist, as rank as the rankest. I am like Topsey, I grow'd.'

"You would not dispose of the trusts by knocking the protection foundation from under them?"

"I would certainly not destroy one evil by introducing another, as the Democrats would have us do by adopting free trade," he replied. "I would preserve the protective principle, but I would eliminate the evil of the trusts nevertheless. The interstate commerce law seems to be applicable to such trusts as are national in the scope of their business. The Northern Securities Co. and the so-called Beef Trust are being prosecuted under the interstate commerce law.

"It has been demonstrated that where theer is a trust whose workings are confined to a state it cannot be reached by state law or by interseate commerce law. If a law is required to make it possible to get at such a trust I am in favor of amending the Constitution so that we can grant plenary power to the federal government in these cases.

THINGS HE HAS DONE.

"Uncle Joe" has had several narrow escapes from being speaker. He has been held back, many of his friends feel, by the fact that it is next to impossible to settle on a man who can take his place at the head of the House committee on appropriations. He was a candidate for speaker in the Fortieth Congress when Carlisle was chosen. He was on the committee that made the Reed House rules which have governed legislation and expedited it erer since. He is credited with being the author of the House five-minute rule that has made him one of the great American condensors of speech.

The father of the House, as Mr. Cannon is sometimes called, because of his early entry on public service, and his long continuance at the work, and not on account of his age, for he is only 64, has all the energy of a man of 40. He has only recently reached his maximum fighting power. He has a nice, easy, caressing voice up to the point where the emphasis comes. Then he talks through his teeth, and his soft, kindly blue-gray eye takes on a steel glitter.

"I voted the $20,000,000 to pay Spain. I have voted every bill appropriating money to carry civilization to the Philippines. I did it because it was right, because we are going to help the Philippines and going to help ourselves by helping them. Those islands are ours (teeth firmly shut and steel glitter in eye), and by God, sir we are going to keep them."

There is fine mixture of gentleness and firmness of caution and daring in the make-up of Congressman Cannon. The acts demanstrating his caution and his daring were those preceding the war with Spain.

HOLDING UP M'KINLEY'S HANDS.

"It was with President McKinley, those days before the war," Mr. Cannon said, when asked how he came to perform the greatest public act, perhaps, in his long and useful career.

"I was opposed to war if it could be avoided. President McKinley had been through one war and he knew what war it for. As Sherman says, "War is hell." But, when the Maine was blown up I saw, as others saw, that war could not longer be avoided. This act in the harbor of Havana was virtually a declaration of war on Spain's part. It was necessary to declare ourselves to the world. We had the money in the treasury and so my bill, appropriating $50,000,000 as a national defense fund and placing this fund in the hands of the President to be used by him as he should direct, while without precedent, was suggested by the circumstances, and was not entitled to rank me as a genius of statesmanship. It has been spoken of as one of the greatest international bluffs. If it was a bluff it was instantly made good, and its effect was instantaneous and world-wide."

HIS SENTIMENTAL SIDE.

Congressman Cannon admits he has made a little money, as one will, in the practice of law, in good investments and in the practice of economy. He has a few small farm properties and a little bank stock in a Danville bank. Mrs. Cannon, who was the supplement to the "gnarled and rugged ok," a very gracious, refined woman, died three years ago. The sentimental side of Congressman Cannon always showed itself when wife, children or home were mentioned. He has two daughters and grandchildren, but loving as they are and as proud as he is of them, they do not supply the vacant chair with its former occupant. Mrs. Cannon was a leader in Washington social affairs.

The sentimental side of Mr. Cannon showed itself in the early years of his life. Capt. Robert Harison of Lebanon, Ind., sat in the house gallery when Congressman Cannon was speaking on the naval bill. He laughed as the chairman of the committee on appropriations pulled up his elbow and began to saw the air with his awful left.

It was while in the small store, on the small salary, that Mr. Cannon had his first attack of heart throb. He attended the country spelling bees, where he and a girl, the daughter of a widow, were usually the champions. Admiration ripened into love at a country dance, when the girl told young Cannon that her mother was going to Utah and she feared she would be sold to a Mormon elder.

Poor as he was young Cannon made up his mind to rescue the girl from being a fractional part of a wife and made her a whole one. But she and her mother had moved away ahead of the schedule time and he was too late. Thirty years later George Q. Cannon, delegate from Utah to Congress, showed Congressman Cannon a petition from the women of Utah protesting against the Edmunds law against plurality and stating that they were happy under Mormon religion. A name caught Congressman Cannon's eye. The handwriting was familiar. The given name was the name of the girl he had loved or thought he loved as a boy. Delegate Cannon said the lady was one of the most advanced women in the territory, a doctor and a teacher of Mormon doctrines—a Mormon wife.

"What number is she?" Congressman Cannon asked.

"Third," Delegate Cannon replied.

PERSONALITY OF CANNON

Whiskers under the chin, clean shaven upper lip, high cheek bones, red cheeks, plain, roomy clothes, a black string tie and boots.

Saws the air when speaking, first holding the forefinger of one hand in the palm of the other and pulling hard, but being unable to separate them.

After he gets them apart, rolls up his sleeves and swings his left hand.

Forefinger fiercely whacks palm as point is nailed.

Voice, calm and soothing, becomes harsh. Teeth are clenched and deep tones tell that the opposition is wrong, knows it is wrong and has only a moment of time in which to admit it and repent.

SMOKE CONSUMING DEVICE

Poor Machinist of Philadelphia in Fair Way to Become a Rich Man.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—William S. Hughes, a machinist of this city, has perfected a smoke consuming device. It is the one that was personally tested by Cornelius Vanderbilt on the Manhattan Elevated a few nights ago. From a poor machinist Hughes will possibly become a rich man. He is past middle age and has worked as a machinist since boyhood. His spare moments he has devoted to perfecting his smoke-consumer.

"It has been a long wait for success," said Hughes today. "I had no money to put the machine on the market. If there are sales of the device, I, of course, will receive royalties. Mr. Vanderbilt has charge of the device for me."

Hughes says that the device saves fuel and makes a perfect combustion of black smoke. The double arch can be put into any locomotive firebox and boiler in three hours.

NICOLAUS TRIAL POSTPONED

It Will Not Take Place Until After Butler Case, Owing to Mr. Folk's Request.

Circuit Attorney Folk announced Saturday morning that the Henry Nicolaus case would not be tried next week, for which date it was set.

The defense filed an affidavit for continuance, and because of the possibil[illegible] that the [illegible] case might go over in[illegible] [illegible] his desire to few days to prepare for the Ed Butler case at Columbia the week following, Mr. Folk requested of Judge Ryan that the Nicolaus case be reset. It will occur at a date subsequent to the conclusion of the Butler trial.

Nicolaus is charged with bribery in connection with the passage of the Suburban bill in the House of Delegates. He was seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday afternoon at the office of Altheimer & Rawlings, brokers, who are business associates of Mr. Nicolaus.

"Are you ready to stand trial?" Mr. Nicolaus was asked.

"Now, I beg to be excused from making any statement," was the reply.

"Did you see Ellis Wainwright while in Europe?"

"Really I have nothing to say. I have "I have to see my family. I have not had time to think about these things." not seen my lawyers since my return, and I have other business engagements right now."

"Have you anything to say about the charge against you?"

NATIONAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Comptroller Ridgley Makes Abstract of Reports From 4601 Institutions.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Comptroller of the Currency Ridgeley today made public an abstract of the reports of the 4601 national banks of the country at the close of business Sept. 15, 1902. Following are the principal items:

ERNST TESTS 45 VOICES

Choral Symphony Society Director Needs a Large Chorus for a Much Larger Orchestra.

Director Alfred Ernst of the Choral Symphony Society plunged into the thick of his winter's work at the Odeon yesterday afternoon by passing on the vocal abilities of 45 applicants for position in the chorus. These were mostly young ladies, all of whom are members of local singing societies or church choirs.

Each of these applicants was heard separately by Mr. Ernst, but those undergoing the ordeal of voice-test had the others for an audience meanwhile.

The director found 40 fit and their names were duly inscribed on the rolls of the chorus which now numbers 368 voices, the largest number so far enrolled in the nearly quarter century of the society's existence.

Council Reports $15,000 Appropriation Favorably.

At Friday night's session of the City Council the bill appropriating $15,000 as a special fund to aid Circuit Attorney Folk in prosecuting the boodlers was reported favorably from the committee on appropriations.

Members of the Council say it will be passed at the next meeting, Friday evening of next week.

The same bill is peacefully slumbering in the House of Delegates. It will come to them anew, however, as soon as it passes the Council.

It is possible that the House may take some action on the bill at Monday night's meeting. This, however, is not considered likely.

The disappearance of the carpet from Clerk Judge's office may be presented to the House Monday night. "Sonny" Mack has not yet effected its return to its accustomed place.

HOW THEY DO THINGS THERE

Returned Resident Tells of the Good Times and Declares That Every One Is Prosperous.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 4.—A place where there are no poor people and where, consequently, there is no opportunity for charitable works, is something quite beyond the ken of most parts of the world, but that is the state of affairs at Juneau, Alaska, whence Mrs. Wythe Denby has just arrived on one of her frequent visits.

"You see," said Mrs. Denby, speaking of Juneau, where she has lived for the last four years, "the people who go out there are mostly well to do and engage in some profitable business. Most often they are [illegible]nnected with the mines, around which [illegible]erything centers. In the case of the la[illegible]ring men they are usually miners, and [illegible]ere is plenty of wor[illegible] [illegible]lly poor peopl[illegible] mines at good wages. So there is no chance to engage in any charity work such as is done by women in most other cities.

"Juneau isn't a large place, only about 2500, but we have the pleasantest society there, because, as I said, it is usually nice people who go there. Some delightful dinners are given, and there is no lack of delicious viands for them. People in the East sometimes think we are too far from the markets to have good things to eat, but they are mistaken, because everything comes to us. Only we have to plan longer ahead, perhaps, especially in the matter of fruits. But delicious vegetables are raised by market gardeners there, and the prices are not at all high—that is, for western prices.

"With the exception of theaters, concerts and lectures, we really have all the essentials of civilized living. We do miss those things, however. There is a theater there, but it is only patronized by the miners and their families—the better classes never dream of going there. But there is the usual round of social life, receptions and teas and dinners and card parties, quite like any other city, and one meets the pleasantest people.

"Then there are good shops, where one can buy just about everything, and there are even good dressmakers and hairdressers, these constituting a sort of floating class, for they remain for a while and then move on. Most of the ladies come back to the states once or twice a year and do their shopping.

"We have been living recently outside the city, near the mines of which Mr. Denby has charge, but even there we have electric lights and running water, and all the material things that make life run smoothly.

"We do not have cold weather there, you know. The Japanese currents comes down past our shore and tempers the climate. The mercury rarely ever goes below zero. In the winter we sometimes have the taku winds, w[illegible] come down from the [illegible] and blow [illegible]ly for a day or t[illegible]

How Prominent Men Develop This Power and Use It to Influence Others — Women, Too, Adepts in This Mysterious Art.

Thousands Taught to Use Their Secret Methods Which Charm and Fascinate the Human Mind.

$1.00—FEE—$1.00
PROF. H. C. GAIL,

The Master Mind and High Priest of This Wonderful Twin Science.
2651 OLIVE ST.

He extends to one and all a cordial invitation to call and test him to your heart's content, and you will depart thoroughly satisfied that there is at least one reliable medium and clairvoyant.

Clairvoyance is both an art and applied science, and, like every other profession, has its impostors, who, under the advertised name of clairvoyant or medium, delude a confiding public. This city has hitherto been the prolific hot-bed of a host of noxious, dangerous superstitions and quackeries. PROFESSOR GAIL has for years been a scientific student and practitioner of a genuine clairvoyancy.

HE IS THE ACKNOWLEDGED LEADER OF ALL PHYSICAL AND OCCULT SCIENCE; he has been called upon to demonstrate his powers before every scientific society in the world, and he has always had the recognition and approval of the most sincere scientific investigators. He invites every man or woman who is skeptical of his clairvoyant powers to his office, where, without any dark cabinets, paraphernalia, cards or mechanism of any kind, he will prove that he can tell you just what you want to know, and that he can also bring about conditions that will produce health, happiness and the successful completion of domestic, as well as business, ambitions.

If you do not know what a true scientific occultist and psychic can do, consult PROF. GAIL. He can see all that is in store for you, in the future, as well as what has been your fate in the past. He convinces his callers by telling them their every fear, hope, wish, trouble and ambition, in complete detail, giving names, dates and actual facts concerning your life and circumstances which you know to be absolutely true.

PROF. GAIL has been before the people for years, and today stands pre-eminent in his profession, without a stain upon his reputation and character.

PERSONAL MAGNETISM QUICKLY DEVELOPED.

Personal magnetism, will power, stamina—call it what you will—has from the creation of man been the subtle force that has brought wealth, fame and renown to those who were fortunate enough to possess it.

This strange, mysterious influence is inherent in every human being. By the late methods any intelligent person can develop a wonderful magnetic personality, and learn how to read the character, secrets and lives of others in a few weeks' study at his own home. You can use this marvelous power without the knowledge of your most intimate friends and associates. You can use it to obtain lucrative employment, to secure an advance in salary, to win the friendship and influence of others, to obtain a greater share of happiness from life. You can be respected, honored and become a leader in your community.

If you are not fully satisfied with your present condition and circumstances; if you long for greater success or more money; if you are not able to influence others to the extent you desire, you are advised to learn more of this marvelous power. It is the magic wand that rules the world. It triumphs over obstacles and brings success in business and social life. It opens to your vision the greatest secrets of life. It is that marvelous, subtle, unseen power that enables you to control man or woman and to banish ill-luck.

IT IS THE KEY TO A HIGHER LIFE.

It sways the minds of millions and regulates the destinies of nations. All truly great men and women possess personal magnetism and use it. The rich man is rich because he utilizes this invisible force; the poor man is poor because he lacks magnetism or the knowledge of its use. The salesman, the statesman, the lover all profit by the use of this marvelous force.

DO YOU WISH TO POSSESS THIS KEY

To the vaults of happiness, friendship, wealth and fame, or will you plod along, vainly hoping that luck or chance may open the door for you? Why not consult PROF. GAIL? He can and will assist you.

He gives dates, facts and figures, reliable and important advice and information on all business undertakings, warns you of coming dangers, averts trouble, sickness, etc.; guides you aright in all affairs of life, marriage, divorce, love, law and speculation; tells if friends are true or false; the future plainly revealed, lovers united, troubles healed, names of friends and enemies, and does give the name of your future husband or wife, with day of marriage, and is positively the only medium who does this correctly; locates and diagnoses diseases, reunites the separated wife or husband and secures for you the hand and heart of the one you love in marriage; brings you success and good luck in all undertakings; gives you lucky days, weeks and months and years, and tells all about your future family and domestic life; gives excellent and reliable advice on all things pertaining to married life; teaches clairvoyancy and develops mediums in from one to six months, so you can tell everything, including names.

All business confidential and attended to in person.

Office hours—9 a. m. to 8 p. m. daily and Sunday.

"Imitation Is the Sincerest Flattery."

PROF. W. J. MARTIN,

2346 OLIVE STREET, S. E. CORNER OF JEFFERSON AVENUE.

Over 37 years a Resident of St. Louis. NO SIGN. ONLY NAME ON THE DOOR.

WITHOUT ASKING A QUESTION AND BEFORE YOU SPEAK ONE WORD HE TELLS YOU EXACTLY WHAT YOU CALLED FOR, YOUR NAME IN FULL, WHOM AND WHEN YOU WILL MARRY (IF EVER); IN FACT, TELLS YOUR FULL LIFE FROM CRADLE TO THE GRAVE.

"TRUTHFUL IN HIS PREDICTIONS; RELIABLE IN HIS ADVICE."

No matter what troubles you may have with yourself or others, come and he will guide you. He advises you with a certainty higher than human power.

PROF. MARTIN IS RECOGNIZED BY THE PRESS,

Medical fraternity and scientists generally as the foremost medium in the country, and should not be classed with card readers, fortune tellers, astrologers and similar humbugs.

Prof. Martin, the brilliant star of his profession, acknowledged by the press and public of two continents as the most remarkable medium and clairvoyant, is permanently located in St. Louis, and may be consulted daily and Sunday. Prof. Martin's past record and strictly honorable dealings are sufficient guarantee for his future work, and have won him the good will of the press and people.

HONEST, FEARLESS AND CAPABLE.

He is the foremost medium of the day. He fully understands the responsible position he is placed in by the remarkable gift he is endowed with, and he will try his best to help those who need help and advise those who need advice, and do all in his power to show all his honest callers plainly and in forcible language how to gain happiness and prosperity.

HIS REVELATIONS ARE MOST WONDERFUL

and acknowledged to be of the highest order, not made to satisfy idle curiosity only, but intended to give those who seek the truth a permanent benefit. He does not cater to the superstition of the ignorant, credulous people. If you are in doubt that he can and will perform all he claims, feel yourself invited to call, and he will give you a more substantial proof of his marvelous power than you have ever before received from mortal.

YOUR WISH AND OBJECT IN LIFE CAN BE ATTAINED.
A SECRET YOU SHOULD KNOW.
THE POWER TO CONTROL.

If marriage, sickness, deaths, changes, travels, divorces, separations, lawsuits, business transactions, wills, deeds, mortgages, lost or absent friends interest you; if you desire to be more successful; if you desire to have your domestic troubles removed, your lost love returned, your bitterest enemies converted into stanch friends—in a word, whatever may be your troubles, suspicions or desires,

CALL ON THIS GIFTED MAN

And he will send you away happier, wiser and bolder than before.

He may be consulted daily on all affairs of life. Prof. Martin's work is entirely different from other mediums and self-styled clairvoyants. No darkened rooms, or cabinet, but everything done in the broad, open light of sober sense (and you in possession of yours). He positively refuses to accept a fee in advance for readings or special work until he is through, and not then if you are not perfectly satisfied. Prof. Martin has thousands of written testimonials from leading citizens of the United States. If you doubt his ability, call and he will give you positive evidence in your own case.

IT'S NOT WHAT HE HAS DONE FOR OTHERS, BUT WHAT HE WILL DO FOR YOU.

Prof. Martin desires that it shall be distinctly understood that these testimonials have been given without solicitation and with the request that they be published or not, at his discretion:

City Jail, St. Louis, Mo., June 29, 1899.

Prof. W. J. Martin—Dear Sir: You no doubt will be surprised when you receive this epistle, and more so when you see from whom it comes. Professor, I called on you some few months ago and had you give me "what you called a reading." Little did I think that any one on earth could tell one of his past, present and future. Allow me to say that you have told me my past, present and future correctly up to this date. Professor, when you were telling me my past and present I came to the conclusion that it was mind reading and nothing in it. I will say my visit to your office was idle curiosity and to make fun of your nonsense, as I at that time termed it. Professor, how I wish I had paid more attention to what you revealed to me, you today are the most wonderful man I ever saw. I cannot understand how any one but "God Almighty Himself" could tell a person what is going to happen to him or her in the future. Will bid you good-by. I remain. Yours truly,
FRANK B CALLAWAY.

P. S.—Had I followed your instructions in regard to the future, this murder would have been avoided.

Dear Sir—After witnessing your wonderful feats I cannot help but express my astonishment at your marvelous reading of the uncertain future. Heretofore I was prejudiced against anybody having anything to do with the occult, but through the influence of a friend I decided to consult you for curiosity's sake, but to say that I was mystified and pleased expresses it but mildly, and as your most important prediction has already been realized with wonderful accuracy I assure you that I am ready to speak a good word in your behalf to all. I am satisfied you are without a peer in your profession, and cheerfully bear this testimony to your wonderful ability to read a human being, and wish you the success you so justly deserve. Yours truly.
GEO. M. HAMILTON.

One of the greatest wonders in this city is Prof. Martin, the clairvoyant. To read his advertisements one would think he professed to do the impossible, but he claims nothing he is not able to fully demonstrate and prove to the perfect satisfaction of all who call on him. The power he possesses is remarkable. You can call it what you please, attribute it to what you please, or denounce it as much as you please, the fact still remains that he is possessed with a remarkable gift and does these wonderful things.—Indianapolis Union, June 19, 1897.

Prof Martin, the much-talked-of clairvoyant, now in this city, is undoubtedly the leader of his profession. His success has certainly never before been equaled in Cleveland by any one in his peculiar line of work, and his honorable methods in dealing with all have made him many warm friends, both among the believers and unbelievers of the higher forces.—Cleveland Plain Dealer, Jan. 27, 1898.

I have much pleasure in testifying to the wonderful powers of Prof. Martin. I have on previous occasions interviewed persons bordering on the supernatural, but have never witnessed anything to equal the work done by Prof. Martin. It is beyond description and its genuineness is not doubted. Most truly yours,
DR. C. H. PFUNTNER.

Prof. Martin—Dear Sir: Since the complete realization of your marvelous predictions in my behalf, I deem it nothing but proper to add my testimonial to your mysterious power of forecasting future events. When I first met you I had some doubts as to your predictions, but now I am happy to acknowledge that in every particular they were true. Your advice has saved me much time and money and I think will be of continuous benefit to me. My sincere wishes for your future success and high appreciation of the science you possess are with you. Sincerely yours,
Milwaukee, June 1, 1892. LILLIAN RUSSELL.

Prof. Martin.
Dear Sir: I cannot say what others think of the spiritual or prophetic powers possessed by you, but it is with pleasure, I assure you, that I verify the truthfulness of the predictions, even in the smallest details, that you made for me two weeks ago. They were of such a nature that at the time I did not think they could possibly come true, but every event predicted for me was positively accurate, and I will cheerfully bear this testimony to your marvelous ability to forecast future events.
Sincerely yours, MORRIS WINKLER.

DOWIE'S RIVAL DENOUNCES HIM

"Savior" Chrismas Accuses "Elijah" to His Face.

CALLS HIM A PLAGIARIST

SAYS HE GOT ZION IDEA FROM OXBOW HEAVEN.

End of World Is Near, He Says, and Dowie's Place Will Be Among First Habitations of Men Destroyed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—"Dr. Dowie, Elijah II, general overseer of the Christian Catholic Church in Zion, is a plagiarist," said one of Dowie's visitors, a visitor who called to criticise, not to applaud.

Furthermore, this visitor says, only eight more years will hold old earth together, and then will come the judgment day.

While Dowie has been amassing riches in Illinois, the Rev. W. C. Chrismas has been obtaining a comfortable livelihood out of similar work away north, in Manitoba. Recently the fame of the "Elijah" penetrated even to his northern fastness and he came south to see for himself wherein lay the power which has wrested shekels without number from the religious enthusiasts of Zion.

Mr. Chrismas has now gone back home, a wiser, if a sadder man, but before he went he saw Dowie and gave him a piece of his overflowing mind, afterward repeating his forceful criticisms to a Post-Dispatch correspondent.

"Why, he is nothing but a plagiarist," he said. "He has stolen all my teachings, gathered them together under a high-sounding name and founded a cult of his own on the very ideas I have been expounding for years. I should not mind so much if he was a true prophet, teaching the gospel as I have taught it, but he has added errors without number and laid claim to powers he cannot perform."

It would indeed appear as though Chrismas had grounds for his criticism of the doctor, for either great minds think alike in a marvelously detailed manner or John Alexander Dowie has copied many of the Canadian prophet's pet tenets.

Thus, while Dowie has constructed at Zion a city which is to be the sole refuge of the wicked when the last trump shall sound, Chrismas has what he claims is an equally effective fire-escape at Oxbow, in the Canadian Northwest Territory. Then both men lay claim to supernatural powers as healers and foretellers of the future.

To be sure, Chrismas has not yet ventured into the dangerous field of weather prophecy, but then Dowie has also marked his moderation by not yet announcing himself the personal savior of mankind, but, with minor differences such as these, the two cults are the same. The two men arrogate to themselves similar powers.

Chrismas Is an Englishman.

Mr. Chrismas is an Englishman by birth who, finding the stolid islander little inclined to take him seriously, emigrated to the Canadian shores, where for eight or nine years he has been a voice crying in the wilderness. He wears a Vandyke beard, long flowing locks, which straggle over his shoulders, a rumpled frock coat and no tie.

As a rule he chooses half lights in which to sit, believing, it is said, that thus he resembles the historic paintings of Christ, with whose mission to mankind he claims to be intrusted.

While in Chicago he showed his affinity to Dowie by foretelling, for the sixth or seventh time, the early destruction of the world.

"Eight years more," he said, "has this old world to live, and then the final crash between the powers of light and darkness will wipe things material away and leave the spiritual alone remaining.

"For 20 years I have studied prophecy. It is a study I love and I find that earthquakes, famines, pestilences, wars and rumors of war will be more severe in the last days. And what do we see today, skeptics laugh at the biblical account of the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah by fire and brimstone, yet within the past few months they have witnessed a far greater miracle in the overwhelming disaster in Martinique. Sodom and Gomorrah were important towns for early days, but it is doubtful, relatively important as St. Pierre.

"Then the famines of days gone by were as nothing beside those which have recently called forth the charity of the world and carried off their millions of victims in India and Russia."

Thinking of insurance policies the correspondent asked for the day and hour when the world would end. Mr. Chrismas grew oracular.

"It will be in 1910," he said, "sometime in July, I think. But warning will be given. The world will end just seven years after the Jews are restored as a nation and an agreement is made with them. That event may be expected almost any day now, and it will be brought about through the instrumentality of England, whose people are the descendants of the ten lost tribes of Israel.

Bitterness in His Reference to Dowie.

"Dowie has proposed," he added a moment later, as though by way of comment—and a note of bitterness was noticeable in his voice—"Dowie has proposed," he repeated, "to buy Jerusalem. He says it is to that end he desires to amass riches, and to that end alone, and it is here he shows the cloven hoof and enables righteous men to point out the iniquity of his ways.

"As a matter of fact, neither Dowie nor any one else will buy Jerusalem. It is already bought. For many years the Rothschilds have held first mortgage on the Holy Land, which expires and will be foreclosed either this year or next. This will mark the beginning of the end."

Like Dowie, it will be seen Chrismas anticipates an early commencement of the millennium, but unlike him, he does not hope to have a mainsay in bringing it about.

DRUG CLERKS OF ST. LOUIS HAVE A THRIVING SOCIETY

Officers of St. Louis Drug Clerks' Society.

The St. Louis Drug Clerks' society is one of the oldest organizations of its kind in St. Louis, having been in existence more than 25 years. At present it is making unusual efforts to extend its membership by taking in every drug clerk of good moral character in the state. The orgainzation is chiefly known to outsiders through its annual river excursion in the summer months and its annual ball in the winter.

As a matter of fact the social feature is among the smallest of the objects of the society. It was also organized for the acquisition of pharmaceutical knowledge in all its branches. It aims to give all possible encouragement to schools of pharmacy and pharmaceutical organizations. Its bureau of employment has wrought much good, both to the employer, desiring faithful and capable employes, as well as to the clerks seeking profitable and desirable situations.

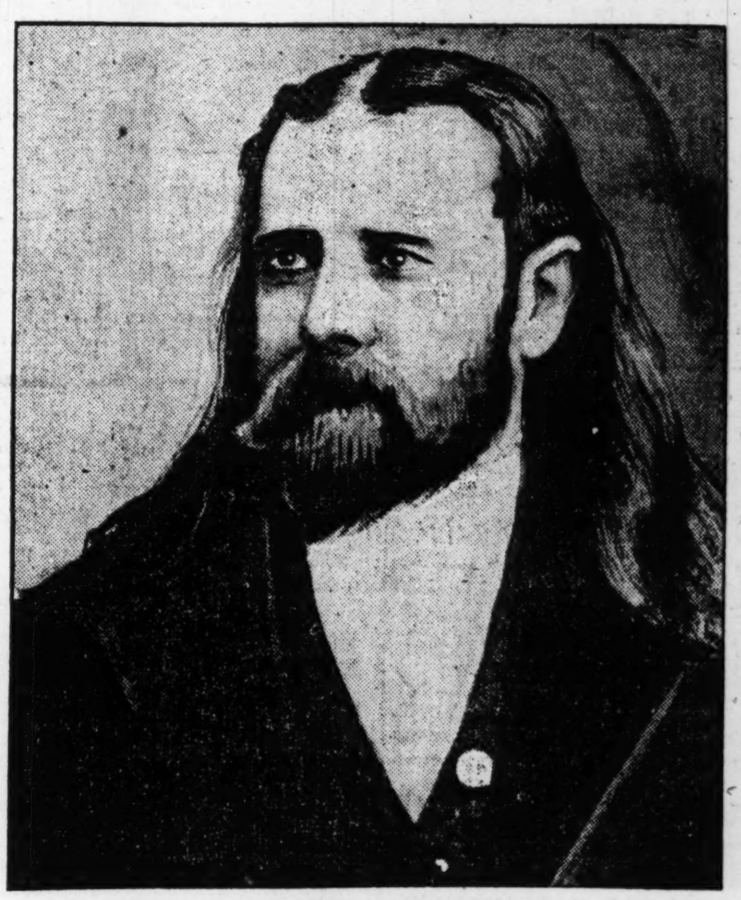
At the next regular meeting held at Bowman's Hall Oct. 9 the feature of the evening will be a discussion on the drug clerk, his condition and what can be done for his advancement, to which all interested in pharmacy are invited.

PROF. OSLER GIVEN A BANQUET.

Lectured on "William Beaumont, the First Great American Physiologist."

Prof. Osler of Johns-Hopkins University, Baltimore, lectured at the Odeon last night before the members of the St. Louis Medical Society and visiting physicians on "William Beaumont, the First Great American Physiologist."

After the lecture a banquet was served at the West End Hotel. Plates for 75 persons were laid. The members of the reception committee were Drs. Luedeking, Moore and Keefer.



REV. W. C. CHRISMAS.
He declares that Dowie is a plagiarist and stole his creed.

Both point to the volcanic disturbances of the present year as proof of their assertions, and both claim that the cities they have founded will be the sole refuges for afflicted mortals.

Chrismas goes further and details the scene which will mark the end. The people of England and of this country being sprung from common stock, he agrees with Dowie, must alike be descendants of the Israelites, and therefore, he concludes, the present good feeling between the two nations will continue and grow greater till at the next great war the Anglo-Saxon races stand shoulder to shoulder, matched against the world.

"I am the Savior," he declared, not a whit abashed at the blasphemy he was uttering. "I can save every one, but I can do nothing unless you are willing."

Then he passed on to extoll the virtues of his own particular Eden up at Oxbow, Canada.

"Dowie talks," he thundered, "of his Zion, a beautiful place to ask anyone to go to.

"Why, it will be among the first of men's habitations to feel the weight of divine displeasure. It will wither away in a twinkling. It will be utterly consumed, and the place thereof shall know it no more. But at Oxbow—here is the place appointed. There you would be safe from all harm, and the destroying angel would pass you by."

SMOKE CONSUMING DEVICE

Poor Machinist of Philadelphia in Fair Way to Become a Rich Man.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—William S. Hughes, a machinist of this city, has perfected a smoke consuming device. It is the one that was personally tested by Cornelius Vanderbilt on the Manhattan Elevated a few nights ago. From a poor machinist Hughes will possibly become a rich man. He is past middle age and has worked as a machinist since boyhood. His spare moments he has devoted to perfecting his smoke-consumer.

"It has been a long wait for success," said Hughes today. "I had no money to put the machine on the market. If there are sales of the device, I, of course, will receive royalties. Mr. Vanderbilt has charge of the device for me."

Hughes says that the device saves fuel and makes a perfect combustion of black smoke. The double arch can be put into any locomotive firebox and boiler in three hours.

SEWED UP HIS HEART.

NTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 1.—A rare ngular surgical operation may sav Henry Myrick, a 15-year-old he was stabbed in the br whose face Myrick slapped in a quarrel. The knife blade entered just below the left nipple, touching the end of the heart.

When the actors were called to attend Myrick he was apparently in the throes of death, with a low pulse and icy cold hands and feet.

He was at once put on the operating table. Then an operation was performed that is rare in the history of surgical science. The chest of the negro was opened, the wound in the heart sewed, the blood sack opened and the blood allowed to flow. The organ was then sewed up and the negro is now resting quietly.

TO SAVE "INCUBATOR BABY"

Eminent Specialists From Vienna Coming to Chicago to Treat the Armour Child.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 4.—Dr. Adolf Lorenz, professor of orthopedic surgery in the University of Vienna, and his assistant, Dr. Friedrich Mueller, have started from the Austrian capital, according to a cablegram received tonight, and will reach Chicago next week, to operate upon little Lolita, daughter of S. Ogden Armour.

The child's thigh bones have been diseased at the socket since birth, and only recently a grave operation was performed in the hope of making her sound, and it was supposed to have been successful. The child is locally known as the Incubator Baby, having been the first child of a millionaire or wealthy person in Chicago to have been placed in an incubator. The fee the Vienna surgeons will charge is expected to be almost staggering.

CAMPBELL IS COMING BACK

Broker Wanted in Connection With Two Checks Will Return Week After Next.

Broker James Campbell, wanted in connection with the two checks for $20,000 and $25,000 respectively, said to have figured in the passage of the ten-year lighting contract bill, will return to St. Louis week after next.

Thursday at 10 a. m. he will attend a meeting of the Frisco Railroad in New York City.

As a subpena issued by the grandjury awaits Mr. Campbell, interesting developments are expected. He is expected to tell what he knows about the two checks made payable to Ed Butler and signed by him, which were cashed the same day the lighting bill passed the Council.

John P. Newell, Mr. Campbell's private secretary, made the following statement Saturday:

"Just what day he will return to St. Louis I cannot say now, but it will be week after next. He is now on his way form Savannah, Ga., to New York, where he will attend the Frisco meeting Thursday. He will then transact some other business there and come home."

There is a point near the famous Stony cave, in the Catskill mountains, where ice may be found on any day in the year. This locality is locally known as the Notch and is walled in on all sides by steep mountains, some of which are more than 3000 feet high.

Five hundred and thirty-two tons of cigarettes were exported from Egypt in the year 1901.

There are more than 5000 postmistresses in England, and the postoffice department employs altogether about 30,000 women.

RUPTURE

It behooves the human family to secure, if possible, the removal of any obstacle to the full enjoyment of health, and where mistaken delicacy is allowed to sway the mind the most dreadful consequences in cases such as rupture must be endured until the end. Comparatively trivial at first, rupture often develops into the most horrible conditions, and, where treatment is too long delayed, the sufferer is apt to be hurried into an untimely grave. With most people who are suffering with rupture one of the greatest characteristics observed is that the patient lacks nerve, while there are a few exceptions to this it nevertheless is found true in a very large percentage of the cases brought before the medical profession throughout the country. The affliction has a tendency to cause this peculiar condition; therefore, a great deal depends upon the solicitation of close friends of the victim of this disease as to the disposition shown by the individual afflicted toward having the disease treated. When you advise a friend to take treatment for rupture you should exercise the greatest care in selecting some one who understands its treatment. You would be doing your friend a great injustice to recommend doctors who know less about the disease than the patient does. This peculiar disease has been treated many, many times by many so-called specialists, whose greatest desire is to experiment and at the same time receive a considerable remuneration in the style of fees for the time thus spent. The evil consequences of delay marked in multiplying disorders as the result of rupture, and the more aggravated and obstinate nature of the rupture itself, should determine recourse to Dr. W. A. Lewin's treatment. As soon as the rupture appears is the best time to employ the treatment under which it is then removed without much trouble. To delay is always dangerous, but to those who have been so inattentive and careless as to neglect proper treatment, always available under the Lewin method, hope is yet brightly beaming. Call upon him or write for pamphlet on the subject of rupture. Address Dr. W. A. Lewin, No. 604 Washington avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

They Will Not Divulge It, Because They Want to Protect Animals Until Government Rescues Them.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 4.—In a beautiful valley in the very heart of the Rocky mountains in Colorado, a herd of buffalo, embracing the finest specimens now in existence, has lived unmolested for at least 20 years.

Game Commissioner Harris is one of the very few men who knew of the existence of the herd. He has kept the secret for 20 years, and cannot be prevailed upon to reveal it.

A great bull of enormous bulk, believed to be the largest buffalo on the continent of North America, is at the head of the herd. A few old mountaineers who have seen this lordly buffalo have told Mr. Harris of its strength and beauty.

The valley consists of about 40,000 acres, in one of the most inaccessible regions of the state. Owing to excellent pasturage and untroubled life the herd is in prime condition. The only entrance to the valley is through the smallest of passes, almost hidden by a dense growth of pines. It would be difficult for a horse and rider to get through, though the buffaloes could get out if so inclined.

Mr. Harris is determined that none shall learn of the little herd in the hidden valley until the government has set aside all of the land about there for a great preserve. So when computations are made about the number of buffalo surviving in America Warden Harris remains silent concerning the practically unknown herd in the Rockies. He has never told his secret to any one for fear that hunters would find their way to the valley and kill the little band.

REGAN TO MEET TOMMY FELTZ

Brooklyn Boxer Has Retrograded Into a Bantamweight for West End Club Purposes.

Johnny Regan of Brooklyn will once more retrograde into the bantamweight boxer. He has been matched by President Haughton to box 20 rounds next Thursday night at the West End Club with Tommy Feltz, weight 115 pounds.

Feltz is now on his way here from Savannah, and is expected in the city today. Feltz recently came to life at Savannah, where he won from his ancient enemy, Danny Daugherty, in four rounds.

Feltz and Regan have fought twice, once to a draw and the second time to a decision in 20 rounds in favor of Regan.

THE KNOWING ONES

Are Many in St. Louis.

Hundreds of our readers know all about Doan's Kidney Pills. They have heard their neighbors discuss their merits and they have indorsed them publicly themselves. Read what this citizen says. Can you ask for better proof?

J. D. Pettell, carpenter, of 3861 Garfield avenue, says: "I injured my back while lifting and afterwards was subject to attacks of dull aching across the loins for two years. I knew from the backache and from the excessive action of the kidney secretions that my kidneys were at fault, but I was at a loss to know what course to pursue to get relief. An advertisement about Doan's Kidney Pills led me to go to the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. for Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of one box stopped the dull aching and corrected the action of the kidney secretions. Since then I have on more than one occasion emphatically recommended the use of the preparation. I would be only too pleased to continue my indorsement."

WOMAN'S WILL IS BAY DLIXE DUMP

MRS. FANNY SPEED OF LOUISVILLE PUZZLES HER HEIRS.

ESTATE VALUED AT $400,000

Written by the Testatrix Without Advice or Assistance and Its Meaning Is Decidedly Vague—Its Probation Delayed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—The will of the late Mrs. Fanny Speed will not be admitted to probate until Oct. 22, because of the conflicting bequests, which the court will have to straighten out. The will was drawn by Mrs. Speed without advice and she has clearly made a bad mess of it.

The value of the estate is estimated at $400,000 and the two cluases which cause the trouble come after a long series of bequests and read:

"The rest of my estate divided between my relations J. W. Henning, Sam Henning, Lulie Henning—children of my brother, James Henning—the children of —Marie Hilliard grand children of my brother—James Henning the names Byron, Minnie, Isaac, Edward Hilliard. I want no mistake made—They must have the portion that would their mother's with $5000 —five thousand—more to them.

"The other half of my estate given to the Board of Education of the Kentucky Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church to form a part of the educational fund of said conference."

The heirs-at-law claim the estate was disposed of by the will before the bequests were made to the church.

Here is a sample of the bequests made in the will proper, and the codicil:

First, ten thousand dollars ($10,000), for a new church when the trustees of Trinity M. E. Church on Guthery and Third street build a new church.

Six thousand dollars for a parsonage, and for the six thousand I want the trustee to give the house now used as a parsonage on Six street 395 No. for a deaconess home. I give one thousand dollars ($1000) to the Preacher's Aid Society of the E. Methodist-Ky. Conference. Church extension society of M. E. church, 1000 one thousand dollars to the Woman's Foreign Missionary of same church, one thousand ($1000) to the Woman's Home Missionary Society of M. E. church, one thousand dollars ($1000) Haren Home in Savannah, Ga.; property of the Woman's Home Missionary Society; one thousand dollars ($1000) to Fannie Speed Rieley, daughter of Rieley, now of Baltimore—named for me while he was pastor of Trinity church, Louisville, five hundred dollars ($500). The house and lot on Eddy street, now occupied by Julia Green, I give to her, not subject to her husband, Milton Green's, debts, and to be a home for Mary Taylor, her aunt. To the colored orphan asylum five hundred dollars.

Country Home Nov. 3, 1900.

I this day add to my will the following —things which I write in by own hand written.

I give to my cousin Lizzy Downey—one thousand dollars—I want Mr. Sam Henning to have our country place Cold Spring —book case and safe go with the house at what valuation—it is worth. Also the also—my old horses carriage and all the farming—wagons—or anything in that line that may be on the place when I leave it.

NOONAN DEFIES OPPOSITION

Declares in Letter to Delegates That He Is a Candidate for Judge of Criminal Correction Court.

Former Mayor and former Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction E. A. Noonan announces in a letter sent to every delegate to the approaching Democratic city convention that he will be a candidate for nomination for judge of the court of criminal correction, despite all opposition.

Mr. Noonan, in an interview, says that there has been an attempt by "a certain clique" to sidetrack his candidacy, and that he is determined not to be hoodwinked or allow his friends to be cajoled "by a small handful of men who are trying to run politics and everything else connected with the affairs of this city."

His letter to the Democratic delegates follows:

St. Louis, Oct. 4, 1902.

My Dear Sir—I will be a candidate for the nomination for Judge of the court of criminal correction before the Democratic convention that meets in this city on the 8th inst.

Nothing on earth will swerve me from this determination.

You know my services to the Democratic party and to the people as a whole. My judgment, based on a wide and intelligent investigation of the situation is, that I will be triumphantly nominated and elected. I hereby ask your assistance. Respectfully, (Signed) E. A. NOONAN.

LORILLAND WINS $25,000

Plunged on Ancke to Win the Fifth Race at Gravesend Track.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Pierre Lorillard, son of the late tobacco king, proved that he was a "chip of the old block" by a plunge bet on Ancke, his filly, to win the fifth race at the Gravesend track today.

Like his father, he never stopped betting until the bookmakers cried enough. When the filly won he was $25,000 richer than he was before the race was started.

The race was only a selling affair, but Mr. Lorillard was overjoyed to win it for several reasons.

REV. C. M. SHELDON DECLINES.

Refuses to Make Congressional Race on Allied Populist Ticket.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 4.—Rev. Charles M. Sheldon today filed with the secretary of state a formal declination of the nomination for congressman at large on the Allied Populist ticket. Mr. Sheldon had previously refused the nomination, but in some way his name had been filed with the remainder of the ticket, making his latest action necessary.

Most of the nominees of the Allied Populists have declined, and it is probable that another convention will be held.

DR. COFFEE Curing Blindness.

Wonderful Stories of People Who Have been Blind from Five to Twenty Years Being Restored to Sight by Mild Medicines at their Own Homes.

FREE—80-Page Book Will Be Sent to Every Reader of the Post-Dispatch.

Five years ago Dr. W. O. Coffee, a noted oculist of Des Moines, Ia., announced the discovery of remedies that when dropped into the eye would absorb cataracts, scums, scars, films; cure granulated lids, paralysis and all weak and diseased conditions of the eye.

The remarkable fact about this discovery is that the patients can cure themselves at home of all forms of eye diseases without going to a doctor.

Dr. Coffee has just published the third edition of his noted book on "The Eye and Its Diseases," which has wonderful illustrations of the eye, showing just how all the different diseased conditions look. It explains how he cures these conditions at home; how to prevent diseases of the eye and keep them healthy; how to prevent old sight; and it explains many other subjects of importance about the eye.

He Is Curing Ten Thousand Patients a Year at Their Homes with These Mild Medicines.

Dr. Coffee cured Henry C. Laub of Denison, Ia., of cataract of thirty years standing.

He cured Mrs. T. J. Blackburn of Des Moines, Ia., of blindness after 27 physicians had failed.

He cured A. J. Palmer of Melrose, Ia., who was totally blind from films and ulcers.

He cured Mrs. Emily Betts of Knox City, Mo., of cataracts and paralysis of the optic nerve.

He cured Mrs. Louisa Baichtell of Sac City, Ia., of cataracts and inflammation.

He cured Mrs. Lucinda Hammond of Aurora, Neb., of cataracts on both eyes.

He cured Geo. G. Brown, Brownsville, Maine, of cataracts on both eyes.

He cured Miss Mae Jenkins of Russell, Ia., of ulcers, inflammation and blindness.

Dr. Coffee's book tells the story of thousands of blind people being restored to sight. If you know of any person whose eyes are weak or blind write Dr. Coffee today. Address

MISS HICKER STILL CHAMPION

Defended Her Title With Brilliant Success on Brookline Golf Links Yesterday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Miss Genevieve Hecker successfully defended her title of national woman golf champion of America against Miss Louisa A. Weltz of Boston on the links of the Brookyn Country Club this afternoon, by a score of four holes up and three to play.

It was brilliantly done. The pretty New York girl is the second to accomplish that feat, the other being Miss Beatrix Hoyt, also of New Pork, who was victorious in 1896, 1897 and 1898.

MRS. EDNA SCOTT-BOWEN,

Secretary of The Shakespeare Literary Club,

CHICAGO, ILLS.

449 Cleveland Ave., CHICAGO, ILL., April 9, 1902.

Five years ago when my first child was born it nearly cost me my life. I had four doctors and they used their best skill to save me. To be sure I did not die but my life was worth little for my health was broken. Inflammation and ulceration sapped my strength and robbed me of life's happiness. I was in despair when fortunately one of your Birthday Almanacs fell into my hands. It gave me new hope for I thought: "Why cannot Wine of Cardui do for me what it has done for others?" I began taking it at once and speedily improved. Within two months I was like a new being. My troubles had disappeared. I felt no pains any longer where before every bone had ached and every spot felt sore. Last year I was blessed with a little daughter. I took Wine of Cardui nearly four months before she came and felt well repaid. My parturition was easy and almost painless. I am the happy mother of two children, enjoy perfect health and give the credit to your great medicine.

Edna Scott-Bowen

No matter how strong a woman is she needs reinforcement at the critical period of childbirth. Wine of Cardui is the best preparation for this anticipated shock and strain to a woman's system. Nothing enables a mother to so quickly regain her health after baby comes as this remarkable tonic taken two or three times a day. Wine of Cardui is good for every woman of every age. It stops the drains and builds up the womanly organs and makes the functions healthy and regular. Periodical suffering and bearing down pains give way before this astonishing tonic. No woman can afford to be without this successful remedy in her home when the Wine of Cardui treatment means so much to her physical welfare. No one could praise any medicine higher than Mrs. Edna Scott-Bowen recommends Wine of Cardui. This Wine cured her of terrible female suffering which was becoming more and more unbearable as doctor after doctor failed to bring relief. Her life seemed hardly worth the living but she finally tried Wine of Cardui and secured relief. Over 1,000,000 suffering women now cured can bear this same testimony. Wine of Cardui will cure you just as it cured Mrs. Edna Scott-Bowen. Go to your druggist today and buy a $1.00 bottle. Take it in the privacy of your room and the relief it always brings will be yours. This is the same offer we made to Mrs. Scott-Bowen months ago. We make it to you now.

MARION-SIMS HAS A FAST ELEVEN

First Try-Out Against East Siders Showed Good Material in the Team of Medics.

The Marion-Sims Medical College eleven had its first try-out of the season at East St. Louis yesterday, when it met the High School alumni team of that city. In two periods of but 10 minutes each the medicine men were unable to find time to score, though they pushed the East St. Louis players hard and had the ball in the enemy's territory throughout the game.

The ground was wet and slippery and the Marion-Sims backs had small chance to show speed.

Capt. Le Cron, Bailey, Stuttle, Caldwell and Heuman did great work for the Medics. Coach Caldwell is satisfied with the showing made by the eleven and thinks he will have the fastest team in the city by the close of the season.

The line-up:

Marion Sims.	Positions.	East Sides.
Caldwell	Left end	Hisrick
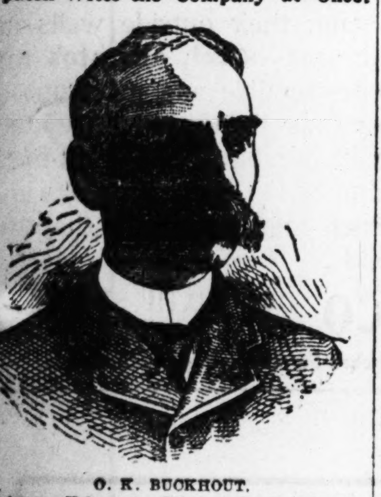
Campbell	Left guard	Sheely
Lindsay	Center	Lauman
Miller	Right guard	Lauman
Heuman	Right tackle	Adams
Blake	Right end	Sheeline
Stuttel	Quarter	Sharer
Campbell	Left half	Egman
Bailey	Right half	White
Le Cron	Fullback	O'Leary

Copper Cures Consumption

New Treatment for Consumption Indorsed by Member of British Tuberculosis Congress—"Antidotum Tuberculose" (the Copper Cure) Marvel of the Medical World—Hope for All, No Matter How Bad Off.

Benefits Congressman Dingley's Son and Cures Others of Quick, Galloping and Fast Consumption in Their Own Home—Any One Can Receive FREE Specially Written Books Which Explain Exhaustively the Cure and Prevention of Consumption by "Antidotum Tuberculose" —Let Every Reader of The Post-Dispatch Write the Company at Once.



O. K. BUCKHOUT.

Chairman Kalamazoo Tuberculosis Remedy Co. (Ltd.); Member of British Tuberculosis Congress; Member International Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Consumptives need not worry about their future any more, as the long-looked-for cure for consumption has at last been found, and a cure is now just as sure as in the simplest disease. To satisfy yourself of this you have only to write the Kalamazoo Tuberculosis Remedy Co., 38 Main st., Kalamazoo, Mich., of which the chairman is Mr. O. K. Buckhout, a noted member of the British Tuberculosis Congress and also of the International Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, composed of world-famous men who have made consumption—its cure and prevention—a life study. This cure is something entirely new and is called "Antidotum Tuberculose," or the Copper Cure, and is the only discovery we know of that absolutely kills all tuberculosis germs which cause consumption, as, unless this is done, the disease cannot be cured. As the name of the remedy tells, its chief ingredient is copper, which metal has at last been found to be the deadly enemy of the consumption germ. "Antidotum Tuberculose" is the original copper cure.

You can tell if you have consumption by the coughing and hawking, by continually spitting, especially in the morning, when you throw yellow and black matter, by bleeding from the lungs, night sweats, flat chest, fever, weak voice, peculiar flushed complexion, pain in chest, wasting away of the flesh, etc. Find out how the Copper Cure kills the germs, then builds up the lungs, strengthens the heart, puts flesh on the body and muscles on the bones until the consumption is all gone and you are again a strong, healthy, robust man or woman.

Don't doubt this, for the very same discovery benefited A. H. Dingley, a son of Congressman Dingley of Dingley Tariff Bill fame, who went west and south for relief and didn't get it, and came back with death staring him in the face, and was benefited by Antidotum Tuberculose after all else had failed. It cured John Devries of Kalamazoo of galloping consumption; Adrian de Die, 1638 S. West st., of quick consumption; Paul de Smith of Dalton, Mich., and many cases which wasted away to skeletons.

So don't give up hope, and don't spend your money in travel. Attend to it right away, for consumption spreads to other members of the family. If you have consumption or fear you are predisposed to it write tonight to the Kalamazoo Tuberculosis Remedy Co., 38 Main st., Kalamazoo, Mich., and they will send you illustrated and scholarly books free of charge telling you fully how the Copper Cure will cure you in your own home in a very short time.

U. OF P. DEFEATED THE STATE EVEVEN

2500 Persons Stood Under Umbrellas to See the Game—Score 17 to 0.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—Twenty-five hundred persons under a mushroom field of black umbrellas watched Pennsylvania defeat Pennsylvania States this afternoon by the score of 17 to 0 in the first critical game of the season.

Although the result of the game is one that would seem to show a vast superiority on the part of the quakers, the supporters of the red and blue almost had heart disease throughout the entire game on account of the way State was able to advance the ball.

But the Quaker team managed to hold them at critical times during the first half, and, when they got the ball themselves, waltzed all around their opponents, sending first Gardiner and then Kennett over for touchdowns and going to their dressing room trying to figure out how many more they would make in the second half.

But in this half State again got the ball and again started to smash the weak Pennsylvania line for long successive gains. Five, six and ten yards were ripped off by big fullback Smith and right halfback Dean until the ball was State's on Pennsylvania's seven-yard line for a first down.

Just here the fortunes of the Quakers were propitious. As State came hurdling at the line, leftend Richardson threw himself in like a streak, striking the State man in the side with his shoulder and sending the ball rolling 15 yards back. Quick as a flash the other end, Metzgar, collared the leather and started through the mud for a touchdown.

Pennsylvania added another touchdown by Mitchell before the game was over. Two goals were kicked, the third being muffed on the punt out.

The line-up:

Pennsylvania (17).	Position.	State (0).

TENPIN LEAGUE TO OPEN SEASON

At the regular weekly meeting of the St. Louis Tenpin League Thursday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: M. A. Phillips, president; G. C. Dust, vice-president; John Sturtz, secretary; J. F. W. Lauman, treasurer. Mr. Louis Marks was appointed chairman of the Junior division, and Mr. E. S. Collier secretary. As members of the committee on eligibility, the president appointed Mr. Charles H. Everly chairman, Edward Grassmuck and J. F. W. Lauman. Several amendments were made to the playing rules, and a rule regarding pin judges was adopted. The latter stipulates that in all scheduled games rolled in the league a pin judge representing each contesting club be present and officiate, provided that upon the consent of any two contesting team contestants one pin judge may act for both contesting teams. A committee consisting of J. F. W. Lauman, Martin Kern and J. Pflueger was appointed to arrange with the alley owners on whose alleys games will be bowled to provide and donate to the league for their exclusive use a specified number of sets of new A, B, C league pins, of even weight, to be used as provided for in the rules adopted by the board of management.

The league season opens up Monday, Oct. 6, with a match game in the Senior division between the Enterprise and World's Fair teams at the Palace alleys. The first game between the juniors will take place at the Palace alleys Tuesday, Oct. 7, between the Ideals and Federal teams.

Twelve teams have been assigned to the first or senior division, and six teams to the junior section, or a total of eighteen clubs.

One hears a great deal about the glaciers of Alaska, and it is satisfactory to know that Uncle Sam possesses a few more important ice rivers of his own. But few people are aware that there are in Montana some of the finest glaciers in the world, even rivaling those of the Alps.

ST. L. UNIVERSITY ELEVEN DEFEATED

Score of 5 to 0 for West Ends Came in Second Half.

St. Louis University's football eleven met its first defeat at the hands of the West Ends yesterday afternoon at Sportsman's Park, score 5 to 0.

The score came in the second half, when Cowgill was pushed over for a touchdown from which no goal was kicked. St. Louis University objected to the score being allowed.

The West Ends had about a 10 pounds average weight advantage. For the first half the fast work of Delaney's men kept the weight from telling, and only after half of the second period had expired were the West Ends able to tally.

Twenty-minute halves were played. Moorshead refereed and Moloney of St. Louis University umpired. The game was marred by continued squabbling over petty points.

The line-up:

St. L. U.	Positions.	West Ends.
Leahly-Moriarit	Right end	T. Henry
Fitzporter	Right tackle	Maddock
Little-Davis	Right guard	Corrigan
Heib	Center	Muench
Maslanka	Left guard	Cowgill
Pennington	Left end	Schroeder
Dillon-Meier	Quarter	Bartire
Pechman	Right half	Sparks
McKeown	Left half	Walsh
Withnell-Butler	Fullback	Schneider

AUTOS WILL RACE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

St. Louis Automobile Club Will Have Charge of Events at Fair.

The St. Louis Automobile Club, the leading organization of its kind in St. Louis, will have charge of the automobile races to be given in connection with the St. Louis Fair next week.

G. Herbert Walker, the broker, is president of the St Louis Automobile Club. Fourteen entries have already been received for the 10-mile endurance race to be run next Friday.

This will be a championship affair, open to gasoline, steam or electric machines. James P O'Neil, H. S. Turner, G. Herbert Walker, Horace Rumsey, Jesse French and other prominent young St. Louisans will have machines in this contest.

At the request of the members of the automobile club, the Fair Association has decided to give a one-mile dash for gasoline, electric or steam machines on next Wednesday. This contest will bring out the fastest machines in this city and will doubtless prove one of the most interesting contests between horseless vehicles ever witnessed in St. Louis.

The first race of Fair week will be decided next Tuesday. It will be for machines in the 10-horsepower class. Tues-cycle races were announced this morning cycle races was announced this morning by Secretary Hachmeister. The list follows:

Tuesday, Oct. 7—Automobile race, five miles, for steam, gasoline or electric machines; not more than 10 horse-power. First premium, silver plate and ribbon. Second premium, $10. Third premium, $5. Starters: John C. Higdon, J. J. Howard, J. D. P. Lewis, T. K. Cooper, H. S. Turner, G. P. Dorris, George Jeck; Jesse French, Sam Breadon, A. C. Halsey, H. S. Rumsey, L. D. Cabanne, all of St. Louis.

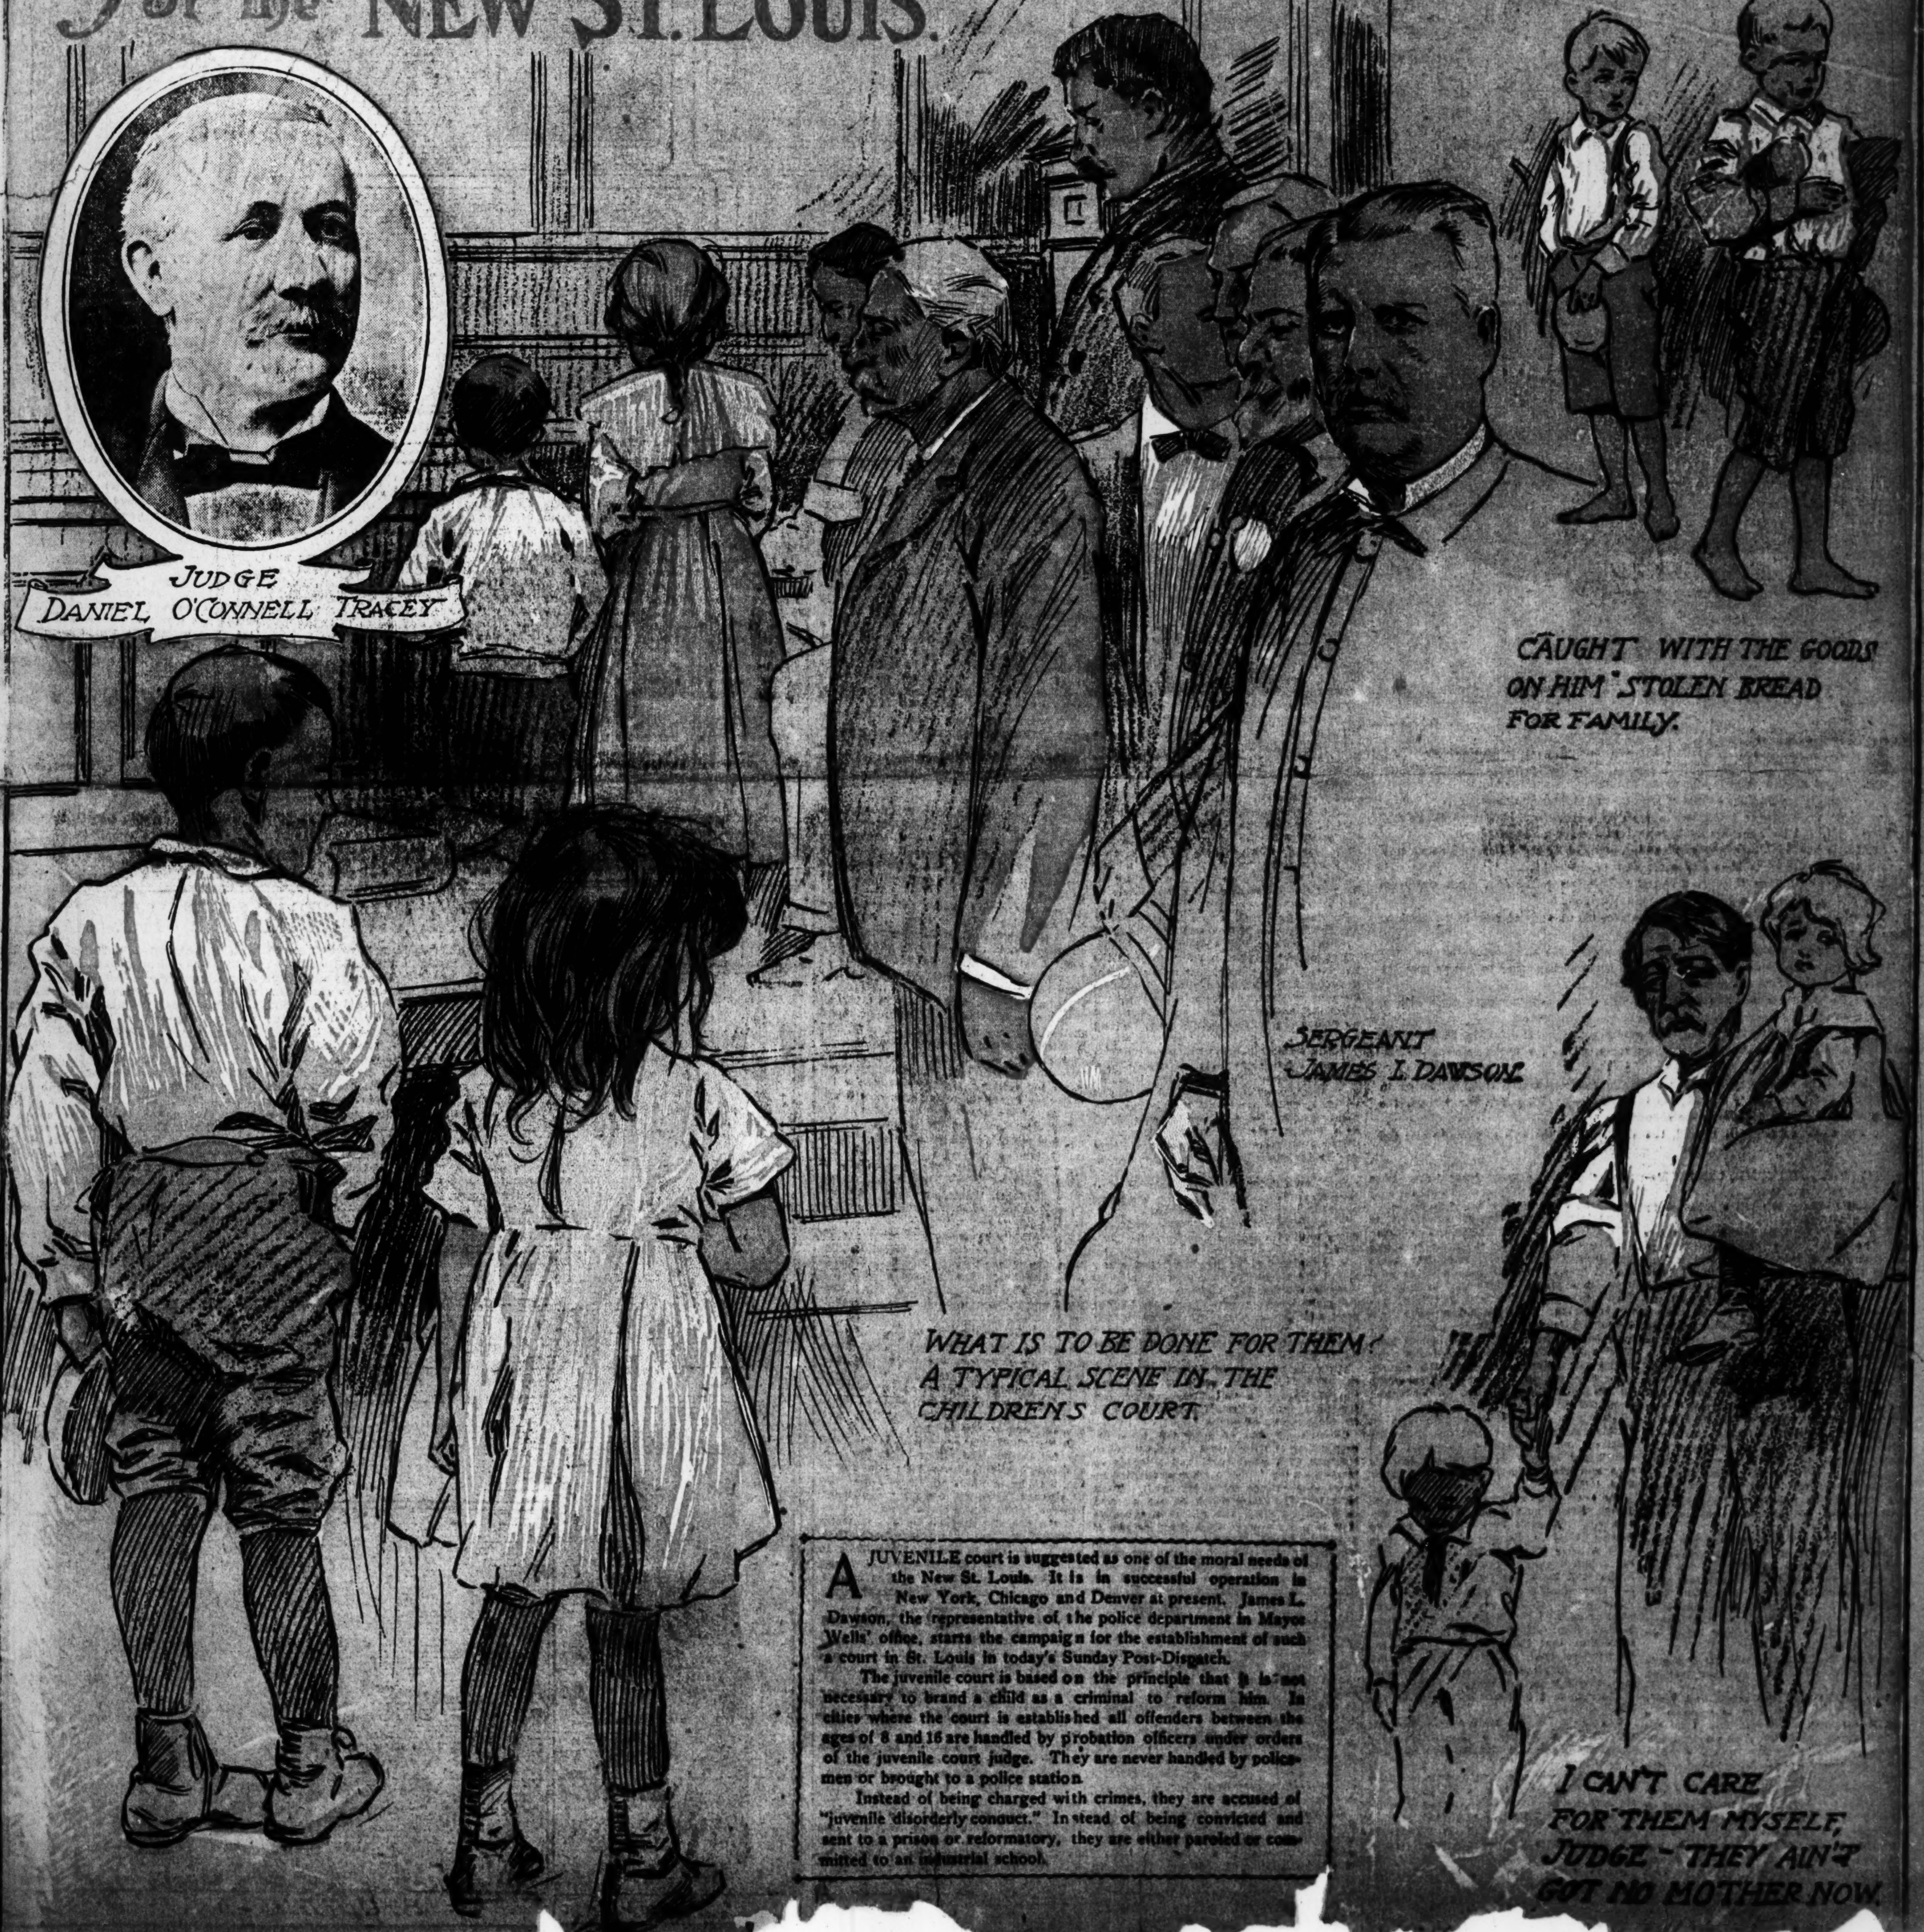
Sunday POST-DISPATCH Magazine

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 5, 1902.

A JUVENILE POLICE COURT for the NEW ST. LOUIS.



JUDGE DANIEL O'CONNELL TRACEY

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS ON HIM" STOLEN BREAD FOR FAMILY.

SERGEANT JAMES L. DAWSON.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE FOR THEM? A TYPICAL SCENE IN THE CHILDRENS COURT.

I CAN'T CARE FOR THEM MYSELF, JUDGE — THEY AIN'T GOT NO MOTHER NOW.

A JUVENILE court is suggested as one of the moral needs of the New St. Louis. It is in successful operation in New York, Chicago and Denver at present. James L. Dawson, the representative of the police department in Mayor Wells' office, starts the campaign for the establishment of such a court in St. Louis in today's Sunday Post-Dispatch.

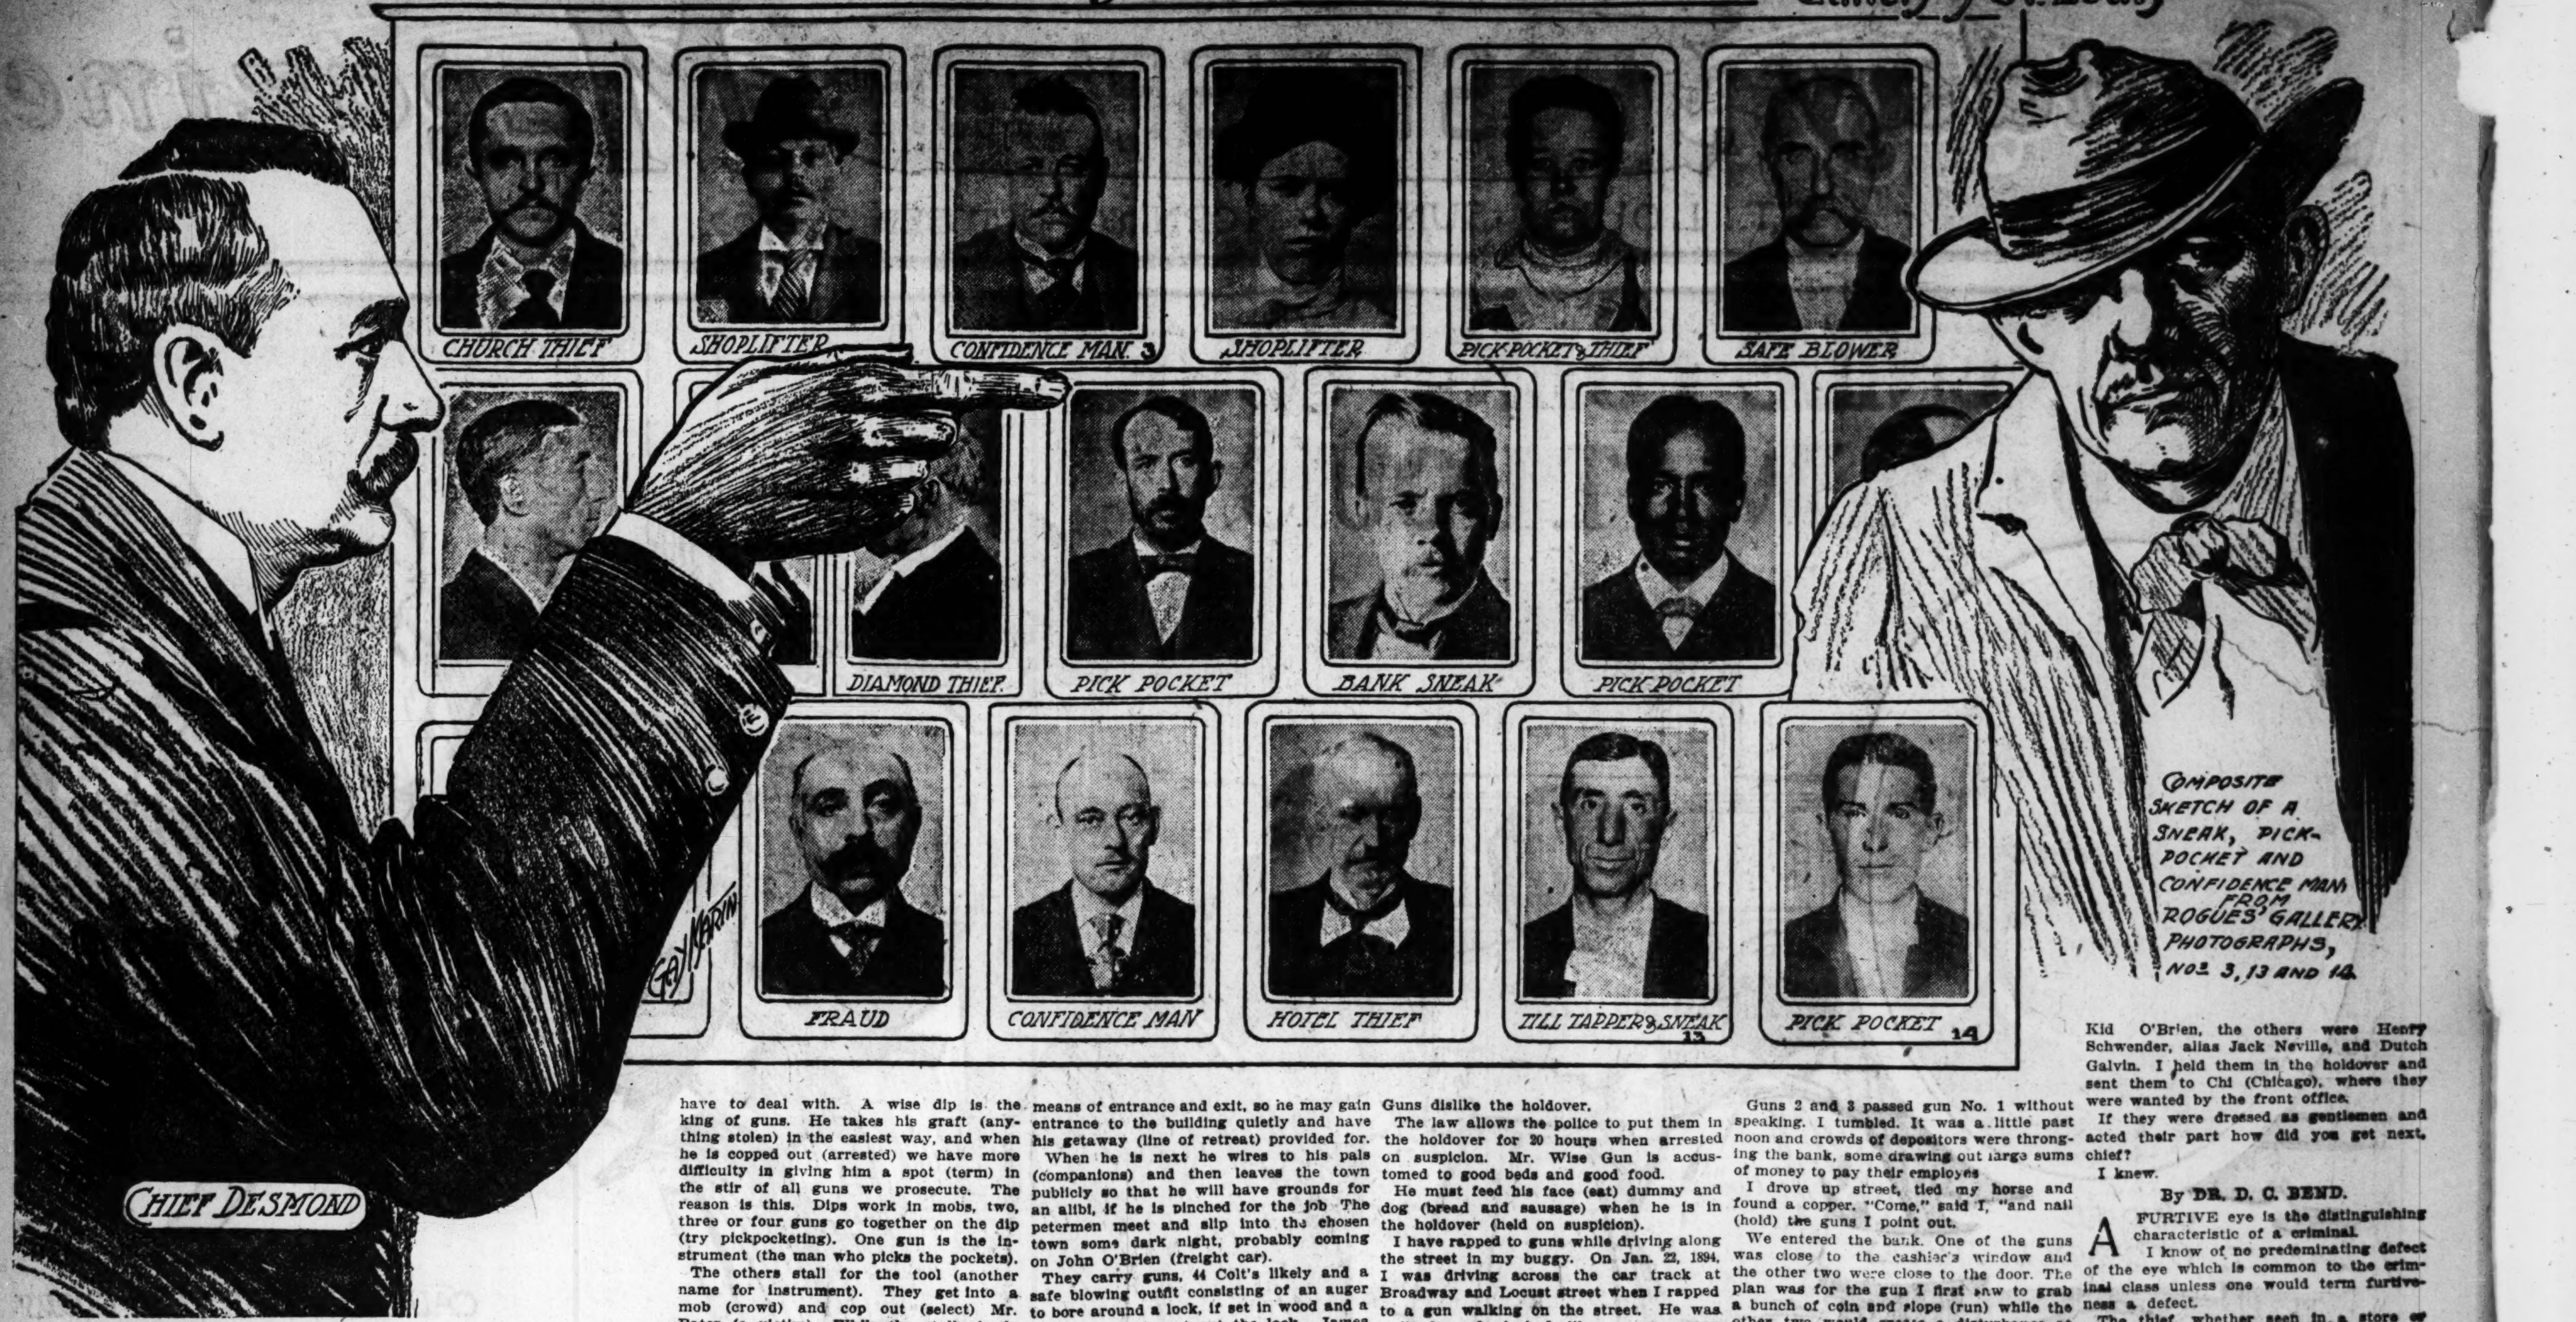
The juvenile court is based on the principle that it is not necessary to brand a child as a criminal to reform him. In cities where the court is established all offenders between the ages of 8 and 16 are handled by probation officers under orders of the juvenile court judge. They are never handled by policemen or brought to a police station.

Instead of being charged with crimes, they are accused of "juvenile disorderly conduct." Instead of being convicted and sent to a prison or reformatory, they are either paroled or committed to an industrial school.

HOW TO PICK OUT A THIEF

By CHIEF of DETECTIVES DESMOND

Photographs From The Rogues' Gallery of St. Louis



Chief Desmond Says the Good Detective Knows a Criminal When He Sees Him—The Furtive Eye Hints of Evil.

HOW does a good detective know a criminal when he sees him?

"By intuition," says Chief of Detectives William Desmond.

"A good officer recognizes a thief by his manner. He knows, that's all," says the chief, and he declares that beyond that assertion he cannot go.

St. Louis has her "secret service" and is guarded by Chief Desmond's men in a manner that few citizens have any conception of.

When a well-known thief is arrested and proven guilty of a crime the press informs the public of the fact.

But of the hundreds of crooks who are recognized and warned to be good or leave town by Desmond's men they never hear.

Chief Desmond protects the town by interviewing the thief before he has committed the crime and no criminal will operate when he has cause to believe that the Argus eyes of the front office are forever upon him.

Chief Desmond has men everywhere—on the street, near banks, express offices, in hotels, at the stations, wherever there is property to protect.

Following the dictum that when "in Rome do as Romans do." Chief Desmond has used the thieves' own dialect in describing their ways—for the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Thieves have a language of their own and can converse without detection in the presence of the average citizen who is their prey. They are the wolves, the citizens the lambs, the detectives the shepherds.

In some eastern cities, it is said, the shepherd and the wolf combine to raid the flock.

By WILLIAM DESMOND, Chief of Detectives.

A GOOD officer can tell a criminal by his actions.

How? Well, he just knows, that's all. The "wise elbow" (detective) or copper (patrolman) raps to (knows) a gun (thief) the moment he sees him. I have operators (detectives) who can stand at Broadway and Olive streets and "call the turn on" (identify) every gun who passes. The gun may be "ringed" (disguised) as a yeggman (tramp thief) or he may have on all his glad rags (well dressed) with a top skypiece (silk hat), slag and super (watch and chain) and look like he had just stepped off of the Knickerbocker rattler (Knickerbocker passenger train), but they can call the turn on (recognize) him as a gun immediately. Perhaps the gun is peter man (safe-blower) or maybe a moll buzzer (pickpocket, who robs women) who has never been mugged (photographed), yet the elbow will bawl him out (show him up) just as readily as he recognizes a cheap sport by his loud clothes and talk.

A gun carries the hall mark of his trade in his manner from the time when he makes his first nick (stealing) to the hour when he is put in the stiff wagon (hearse).

The indefinable manner which the professional crook is cursed with proclaims him a gun just as surely as the stripes indicate that he is a prisoner when we land him in the stir (penitentiary).

I can stand on a corner and rap to a gun, but I cannot tell how I call the turn on the crook.

Come with me on the street and I can show you how easily it is to recognize a gun, but I cannot tell you how I do the trick, I know, that's all. The gun's action, his appearance, all proclaim his identity. The phrenology spiel (talk) makes me weary.

That yap (loud assertion) made by wise guys (smart men?) that a criminal is marked by nature or habit is all bosh. Lombroso and his ilk may harp (discuss) the criminal ear, or nose, or mouth, but send one of them out after a wise gun and see how long it would take them to land him in the front office (detective headquarters). Let 'em look for a dip (pick-pock [illegible] with marked ears and the "criminal [illegible] and I'll bet the gun would take their super from their jerve (vest pocket) while, if they saw him at all, they would be admiring his fine phiz (face).

Certainly if the phrenologist wants to butt (loaf) around the tenderloin (slums), he might rap to some yeggman who had just lighted (got off) of John O'Brien (a freight train), because that push (crowd) have their faces seared by hitting the booze (drinking). The wise gun is of different mould. He does not monkey with the nickel movement (cheap whisky), nor take dope pills (opium). He dresses well, follows the late fashions, and looks more like a professional man than the mouthpiece (lawyer), to whom he has to cough up his dough (pay money) to keep him from the stir.

Wise guns don't wear a high sign (a distinguishing mark) to put the bulls (detectives) next. Even a harnessed bull (uniformed officer) would tumble (detect) to a gun who acted or dressed in peculiar togs (clothes).

The average gun, however, has one facial defect that is noticeable. It is the "restless eye." A gun's eyes will turn him up (betray him) if he comes face to face with a wise elbow (good detective) who looks him square in the eyes. The gun's lamps will do a hot foot (rove) all over the shop (glance this way and that).

His glims (optics) tip him off (betray him) at once. I look every suspect brought to the front office square in the eyes; more than that I sit with my back to the window so that the light falls on the pick up's (prisoner arrested on suspicion) lamps, and if he can make a front (stand the scrutiny) I suspect that he is on the level (honest).

Ben Kilpatrick, the train robber, had grit (nerve) and a fine pair of lamps. He stood my gaff (questioning) longer than any gun I ever saw.

Kilpatrick was a gun with bowels (character). He'd never turn stool pigeon (informer) nor squeal (give up) a blokey (comrade) to save his life. Any mob (crowd) would be stuck on (proud of) Kilpatrick.

The guns who give us the most trouble are dips (pickpockets), moll buzzers (pickpockets who rob women), hoisters (shoplifters), hotel men (hotel thieves), heels (sneak thieves), petermen (safe blowers), and strong arm m [illegible] (highwaymen).

The [illegible] hest guns we have to deal with. A wise dip is the king of guns. He takes his graft (anything stolen) in the easiest way, and when he is copped out (arrested) we have more difficulty in giving him a spot (term) in the stir of all guns we prosecute. The reason is this. Dips work in mobs, two, three or four guns go together on the dip (try pickpocketing). One gun is the instrument (the man who picks the pockets).

The others stall for the tool (another name for instrument). They get into a mob (crowd) and cop out (select) Mr. Bates (a victim). While the stalls jostle him or push a paper against his face the instrument frisks (searches) his strads (trousers) for dough and lifts (takes) his super (watch) from his jerve (vest pocket). He may nip (cut) his sparkler (diamond stud) with nippers which hold the stone in a pocket. After Mr. Bates is touched (robbed) the tool passes the leather (pocketbook) and other goods (plunder) to one stall who gams it (runs away).

Then Mr. Bates makes a holler and the tool is pinched (arrested), he is clear of the goods. Many dips are good stalls, but there are few wise tools. When a stall strikes a town he bums around a hop joint (opium house), and inquires for a good instrument. Innocent remark, not likely to attract the average man's attention.

But the guns get wise and pretty soon Mr. Dip is mated with a tool and the graft is pulled off (stealing begins).

The moll-buzzer and hoisters work in the big shops. The moll-buzzer tails (follows) a women who is busy shopping and watches her put her leather in the split (her pocket). Then he pushes rudely against her and up comes the leather, while he is making apologies.

Hoisters work in much the same manner, pressing against the counters always in a mob of shoppers. They hoist (steal) whatever they fancy and slip it in a pocket which occupies nearly all their outer garment. A skirt for a hooker (female thief) or a long overcoat for the gun.

Wherever there is a murder (a large gathering) one may find dips and moll-buzzers.

Hotel men (hotel thieves) register at some high-class hotel and watch for a chance to sneak into rooms for plunder.

They dyke out (dress) fashionably and carry outsiders (nippers) to turn the keys with.

When apprehended by the house elbow (hotel detective) they make a huffy spiel (appear angry) and make a bluff about suing the house. A wise elbow raps to that spiel and throws them out unless he has the goods on them. When they are copped dead to rights off they go to the boobie hatch (police station).

Petermen are dangerous guns. They are the mad dogs of the world of graft, and the aristocrats as well. They are not out for petty larceny (small game), but hunt for big bunches of dough.

Generally a trio of petermen work together. One of them comes to a town, takes lodgings at a good hotel and proceeds to frame up a lay (select a place to rob) where there is a chance for a big graft. Then he enters the place which he has planned to touch up (rob) and makes a purchase if it is a store or sends a draft or two if a jug (a bank). He get next (finds out) where pete (the safe) is located and takes a mental inventory of the doors and windows. He wants to get wise to all the means of entrance and exit, so he may gain entrance to the building quietly and have his getaway (line of retreat) provided for.

When he is next he wires to his pals (companions) and then leaves the town publicly so that he will have grounds for an alibi, if he is pinched for the job. The petermen meet and slip into the chosen town some dark night, probably coming on John O'Brien (freight car).

They carry guns, 44 Colt's likely and a safe blowing outfit consisting of an auger to bore around a lock, if set in wood and a compass saw to cut out the lock. James (a crow bar), Dan (dynamite), or oil (nitro glycerine), some puff (fine gun powder), some string (fuse), and a fine drill.

They separate after they get into the town and meet at the crib (place) selected for the crack (place to be robbed) after midnight. If the moon shines they wait for Oliver (moon) to duck his glim (to set).

Then to work. They may be able to open the outer door with an outsider (a pair of nippers), but if the door is of wood an augur and saw are used to cut out the lock. Iron barred doors are cut with a steel saw and soon the peterman face pete. Two guns do the blowing, the third one plays outsider (lookout) and protects the guns at work.

The construction of the safe determines the method of attack. Some combination safes can be opened by drilling a hole over the tumblers in the time lock and exploding a small lot of powder. Powder can also be blown through the door jam of the safe with bellows.

Modern safes are blown by pouring oil (nitro glycerine) in them through holes drilled near the locks. Again a safe with a thick door can be blown by pouring oil in the top and allowing it to seep down through the different layers of the door. After the petermen get the explosive in the safe they insert the string and light it and get out of the way.

Poof—the door flies off or open and the graft is ready for the reaping. Gold, silver and banknotes are cramed into a bag and the petermen are off. Woe to the elbow or Dick (country constable or watchman) who interferes. Petermen fight for the thousands they have won like tigers. They shoot quick and to kill.

After they make their getaway the graft is split (divided) and Mr. Peterman hies to a city where he may live in a respectable neighborhood and have a wife and children who are ignorant of their husband and father's manner of reaping their livelihood.

Crooks say that St. Louis is a bad town for guns. Perhaps they are right. Some very wise operators are under my command. They know the home talent, and foreign guns are spotted (recognized) as soon as they strike town. If they dodge elbows at the station the downtown men are very apt to rap to them.

Once spotted they are sewed up (hemmed in) for keeps. The elbow stops the gun, makes him spiel (talk), and Mr. Gun, knowing that he is nailed (detected), and will be pinched (arrested) if a job is pulled off, hastens to duck (quit the town).

If the operator suspects he is a lamaster (fugitive) he brings him to the front office, and I put him in the holdover (cells in basement of the Four Courts) until I wire around the country to see if he is wanted. Guns dislike the holdover.

The law allows the police to put them in the holdover for 20 hours when arrested on suspicion. Mr. Wise Gun is accustomed to good beds and good food.

He must feed his face (eat) dummy and dog (bread and sausage) when he is in the holdover (held on suspicion).

I have rapped to guns while driving along the street in my buggy. On Jan. 22, 1894, I was driving across the car track at Broadway and Locust street when I rapped to a gun walking on the street. He was well dressed, looked like a prosperous business man, and apparently there was no reason to suspect him. But I knew he was a gun.

His manner betrayed him, yet he acted no different from a hundred men passing along the street. I decided to tail him up. I drove slowly and at Broadway and Pine I saw him connect (join) two other guns. They spieled (conferred), and split (separated). I tailed along after the two who walked together.

They walked down Broadway to Chestnut street and then to Fourth street. In front of the Continental Bank I saw the gun I had first rapped to.

Guns 2 and 3 passed gun No. 1 without speaking. I tumbled. It was a little past noon and crowds of depositors were thronging the bank, some drawing out large sums of money to pay their employes.

I drove up street, tied my horse and found a copper. "Come," said I, "and nail (hold) the guns I point out.

We entered the bank. One of the guns was close to the cashier's window and the other two were close to the door. The plan was for the gun I first saw to grab a bunch of coin and slope (run) while the other two would create a disturbance at the door while their pal made off (escaped) with the derby (a good haul of money).

I didn't wait for them to pull off the graft. At a signal I nailed the gun near the window. The copper nabbed (held) the other two.

The guns got wrathy (mad). They put up a spiel (claimed that they were business men) and threatened to sue me and the city for damages. Their hot air (vain talk) didn't bilk (fool) me.

I and the copper took them to the Chestnut Street Police Station and then to headquarters where they were all mugged (identified).

The gun I pinched was Tommy, alias Kid O'Brien, the others were Henry Schwender, alias Jack Neville, and Dutch Galvin. I held them in the holdover and sent them to Chi (Chicago), where they were wanted by the front office.

If they were dressed as gentlemen and acted their part how did you get next, chief?

I knew.

A FURTIVE eye is the distinguishing characteristic of a criminal.

I know of no predominating defect of the eye which is common to the criminal class unless one would term furtiveness a defect.

The thief, whether seen in a store or street, can be observed shifting his eyes anxiously, to the right or to the left. He has the "restless eye" that indicates a guilty conscience.

He may have escaped with his booty and be safe from pursuit, but he must carry his conscience with him, and under its sting he fears all men, and casts his eye about to see if he is followed.

I have seen men on the street that I felt were guilty of crime, because I observed that they were cursed with the furtive eye.

The fact that a man becomes a thief is an indication of a mental defect, and this defect is indicated by the defect in his vision which I term the furtive eye.

NEWSBOY BY DAY; LAW STUDENT AT NIGHT

MORRIS BARON, a 17-year-old newsboy who sells the Post-Dispatch at the corner of Broadway and Olive street, will make his mark in the world. His greatest, and in fact his only ambition, is to become a lawyer. He doesn't want to sell newspapers all his life, and to prevent that he is today laying the foundation for a thorough legal training.

Morris has been selling the Post-Dispatch for seven years. He is thrifty, bright and ambitious. He has several boys on his staff who sell newspapers and periodicals for him so that his income is considerable more than a great many of his customers. He doesn't wear a Panama hat, his trousers are not turned up at the bottoms, but he could buy and sell some of the flashily attired young bloods who purchase his papers and haggle over a cent change.

This young newsie left school four years ago, although during his schooldays he sold newspapers after and before school hours.

About six months ago Morris revealed his ambition to one of his customers, a prominent attorney for the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., and that gentleman immediately took him under his wing—if lawyers have such a thing—and interested several other lawyers in young Baron's behalf. The result was that Morris soon had a corps of legal demonstrators, the equal of which is found in few law schools. Morris visits the homes of these lawyers three or four times a week. They furnish him with the proper books and coach him as to the foundation of the Blackstonian art. He is now studying English literature, ancient and modern history, grammar, Latin, geometry and higher mathematics. As soon as the night schools are opened he will be a regular attendant.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch photographer secured two good and characteristic pictures of the young man. One in his newsboy togs selling the Post-Dispatch and the other in his legal habiliments as he was "boning" Kent.

BLIND NOVELIST WRITES WITH PINS

C. ALBERT FAIRBANKS of Worcester, who has been blind for [illegible] years, or since he was two years old, has published a novel. The heroine is drawn from a girl playmate of his. She is a graduate of Wellesley and is now a school teacher.

Although he never saw the girl whose character is depicted in his first work Mr. Fairbanks writes entertainingly of her from descriptions given by friends. Her character he knows well, having been her constant chum.

Eight months elapsed from the time he began the novel until he wrote the last word. The book contains [illegible] pages and is entitled, "Helena, or the Bend of Hope." It was written by the Braille system of pin-[illegible] which Mr. Fairbanks learned at the [illegible] Institute, Boston. It was then trans [illegible] to a friend, whose copy was the manu [illegible] used by the publishers. [illegible] great desire, to become an established American author. With this object in view he has begun a second work which he hopes to publish in one year.

He is publishing his first book himself, but is likely to sell it in a few days. A publishing house has offered him a good price for it.

Mr. Fairbanks is a pianist as well as an author and has composed several pieces of music. He appeared in a concert in Worcester last winter, giving two original pieces.

When asked how he was able to describe the persons, flowers and landscapes treated of in the novel, Mr. Fairbanks replied that he listened to conversation wherever he was. In the street cars some of the characters in the book were chosen.

Mr. Fairbanks declares that he can detect a person lying [illegible] voice alone. He [illegible] has demonstrated [illegible]

TWO ST. LOUIS GIRLS ON A WESTERN RANCH.

GENEVIEVE HUSSEY AND MARIE PUJOL GOING FOR THE MAIL

THE ERSKINE-JONES HOME RANCH.

Rode Broncos, Used the Lariat and Rifle and Lived in a Rude Cabin for a Summer.

IF society were to take it into its head to give a female wild west show it would not have to send for Annie Oakley or any ranch-bred girl. It has the talent right here in St. Louis.

There are lady lariat throwers, lady broncho busters and lady sure-shots with the deadly Remington in our very midst. Cowboys on the plains doff their hats when these St. Louis girls take to the saddle. A pitching cow pony is as sure a seat to them as an upholstered drawing room chair.

They talk of the NE, YE outfit and of roping and branding as if they were common West End topics. It all comes of a summer spent on a ranch in eastern Montana.

The ranch is owned by two Washington University graduates, Edward Jones and Samuel Erskine. These young men are in the cattle and horse-raising business. The Missouri river is the eastern boundary of their pasturage. They have a ranch house that is quite unusual in its extent and luxurious appointment. It is built of adobe and contains eight rooms. There is a kitchen, a dining room, a living room and five bedrooms. The cowboys have a bunkhouse which is as good as some ranch houses.

Jones and Erskine were the least bit lonesome away out there on the plains. They grew tired of looking at clear skies and sage brush, at cowboys and at cattle. They wrote home that the adobe house was prepared to entertain. This was about the beginning of the summer vacation.

In a few days a lively party sat on the observation end of a sleeper going West. In the party were Miss Genevieve Hussey, Miss Lucille Erskine and Miss Marie Pujol, chaperoned by Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Samuel Erskine's mother. Their idea of a ranch was something about like the Country Club in Joseph Lucas' place out Normandy way, something just in the street car line.

They were landed out among the sage brush on the platform of a one-story station. On each side of the railway was a short row of one-story frame buildings with square fronts. Two-thirds of these buildings were saloons. One-fourth were restaurants.

The members of the party had dined on the train. They were ready for the democrat wagon that came to meet them and was soon plowing its way through the sand of the trail toward the ranch about 20 miles from the railroad. The Country Club never had anything like the supper of sage hen and antelope that was waiting for them and the outfit cook was a proud man when their approving words were passed to him through the kitchen door. Cloth napkins were used the first evening as a mark of extreme regard.

Ranches are a long way from laundries in Montana and paper napkins are considered quite the proper caper, to be dispensed with after a friendly footing is reached.

All the cowboys put fresh handkerchiefs about their necks and greased their high-heeled boots when the ladies came, and saw to it that their hats had four dents in the top of exactly similar size. There never was quite so many excuses made for riding into camp.

The young women who had seen Col. Cody's show in St. Louis and watched Buck Taylor hang onto the bucking bronchos only by means of a rope tied about the pony amidships, were timid about taking the saddle. But out on the ranches the only means of locomotion is the cow-pony, and it was not long before a "pitchin' hoss" was as much to the liking of the girls from St. Louis as any other kind. They followed the herd, they learned to rope cattle, and shared in the excitement of branding calves and colts and new stock.

They shot sage hens and now and then killed a coyote. Once or twice they went antelope hunting. Their greatest experience was had when the whole outfit was called on to head off prairie fire. They won't forget that experience right away.

It was a short summer for the St. Louis girls and a break in the monotony of the St. Louis boys who entertained them. There is not a great deal of variety in ranch life.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., FATHERED THE STREET FAIR AND BELLEVILLE, ILL., PERFECTED IT

THE Street Fair has taken the place of County Fair in the middle West.

The street fair is a county fair, generally, as truly as the county fair was a country fair, but the street fair is so much that the county fair was not, that the county fair must be conceded a monopoly of that name.

Somewhere over in Indiana several towns claim the distinction of priority, a genius planned a street fair a few year ago, and it was given, and it went, as they say in Terre Haute—Indiana. By the next autumn there were a number of "shoots" on the parent stem, and the street fair of the middle West had been started on its way and there was no way of telling where it would stop.

There was only one way in which the new street fair reminded one of the old county fair. It was so entirely different.

For the street fair was a carnival. It came with a rush and there was something doing every minute.

The streets were lined with gay booths and filled with gay people. One could not turn in any direction without finding something novel and interesting. There were entertainers at every corner and at nearly every booth. Acrobats were performing high over the street, performances were being given on elevated platforms. Camels and elephants burdened with merrymakers were being guided through the throngs by dusky attendants. Side show shouters were filling the air with their importunings. There was a glare of color and a blare of sound. It was as if a circus and a midway plaisance had been dumped down in the streets.

For a few years the spread of the street fair was rapid. A few men made it their profession to spread the fame of the street fair. One of these came to Belleville in 1898 and told the gentlemen of the Commercial Club all about the street fair and the result was that the first street fair in the immediate vicinity of St. Louis was given in the fall of that year in Belleville.

It was an unparalleled success. More people attended it in one day than had ever attended the county fair in a week.

The next year it was given again and the success of the first year was repeated. Last year a modification of the street fair was given at the county fair grounds by the Elks.

This year a street fair is to be given again by the Red Men. It will be held the week beginning Oct. 6.

In many places there has been combined with the street fair a reproduction of the flower festivals of the Pacific slope. The first two years at the Belleville fair flower parades were given, which were very beautiful indeed. All kinds of vehicles were decorated with different flowers.

Carnival companies have sprung up, patterned with wore or less fidelity after the midway plaisance of the World's Fair. These carry a certain number of features which are free. Performances are given in the streets to attract and hold the crowds and whet their appetites for other things.

Always there is a midway. Generally it is advertised as a very moral department of the street fair. There dancers with all sorts of Oriental names whirl dizzily on platforms to the vast delight of the crowds who once viewed with correct solemnity the fat pumpkins and the big ears of corn.

LORD ROSSLYN ASKS $1,250,000 TO DIVULGE HIS SECRET GAMBLING SYSTEM

LORD ROSSLYN, the young Scottish nobleman who has come to America to appear on the stage, in the course of a chat, gave some interesting details of his eventful life.

"Yes," said he, "this is my first visit to New York and to America, and I am sorry I did not come before. The climate here is so invigorating that work becomes less of a toil.

"I have been greatly touched by the cordial reception [illegible] I have received in theatrical [illegible] ware that British brethren as I find is the case. The profession here seems to be a collection of thoroughly 'good fellows,' and altogether my lines have been cast in pleasant places.

"The part allotted to me in the forthcoming production is a small one, but I hope to merit a much better one later on. I love the life of the stage, and some day I hope to have a house of my own.

"I am at work on a play dealing with romantic love in the days of Charles I and Cromwell, [illegible] have not permitted [illegible] to th[illegible] I was much hampered in my efforts to develop my collieries by frequent strikes. In order to secure, as I thought, a lasting peace, I introduced the sliding scale of wages, being the first colliery owner to adopt that scheme. I vainly endeavored to gain the co-operation of [illegible] operators, and, on their refusal to [illegible] proceeded alone."

"Is your fai[illegible] 'system' which yo[illegible]arlo unshaken?"

"W[illegible] now deceased Italian, who practiced it with unvarying success."

"You are reported as having said that your success would have been greater had the capital at your command been larger."

"On a capital of only $500 we won $1000, but the expense of the e[illegible] up $3000. Had our resources b[illegible] could have made large[illegible]"

"What capital do [illegible] sufficient?"

"That depend[illegible] ted [illegible] francs is the stake limit, $20,000 would be sufficient."

"What would be the ratio of winnings?"

"One thousand louis a day, and 250 respectively."

"Do you intend to try again?"

"No. I have given up gambling altogether, and the inclination for it has entire[illegible] left me."

"Would you sell your table of calculations, [illegible] what price?"

"[illegible] syndicate desired to work on my [illegible] should demand a share of t[illegible] would ask $1,250,000 for the sec[illegible] I would [illegible] the money.

"How did I become so heavily in debt of the money-lenders when my estate showed so large a surplus?

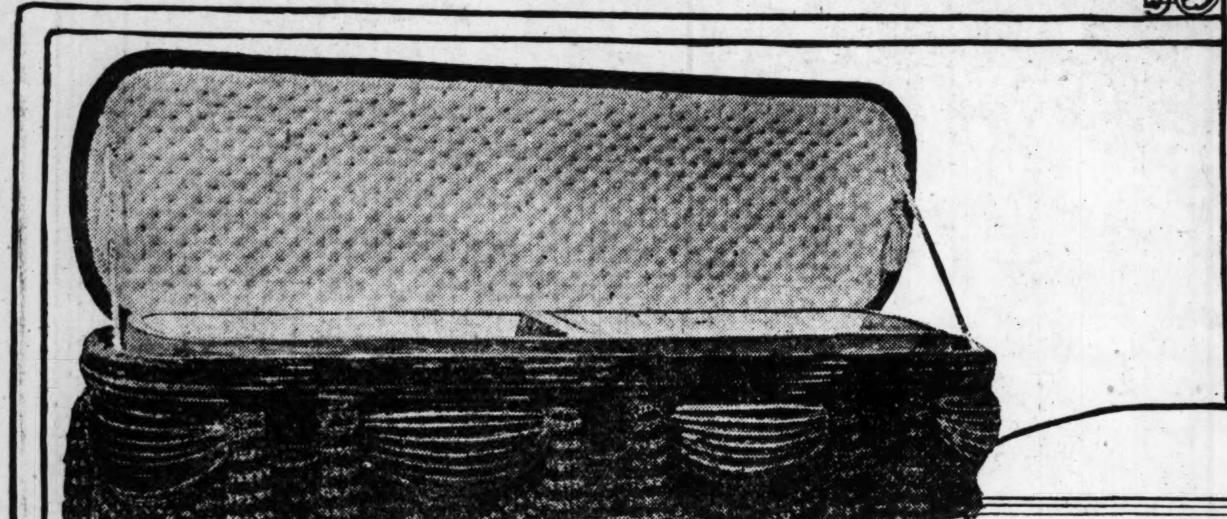
"In one week, during 1893, my losses on the turf aggregated $90,000, and in the same week I paid $25,000 for Buccaneer, one of the most promising horses of the time. Instead of postponing payment until my family solicitor could raise the money on a 5-per-cent mortgage on my collieries, I rushed to Sam Lewis, the celebrated London money-lender.

"[illegible]om him I received $115,000 in exchange [illegible] three months' bill for $150,000. Had I left the matter to my lawyer I would have saved nearly $35,000 on that transaction alone.

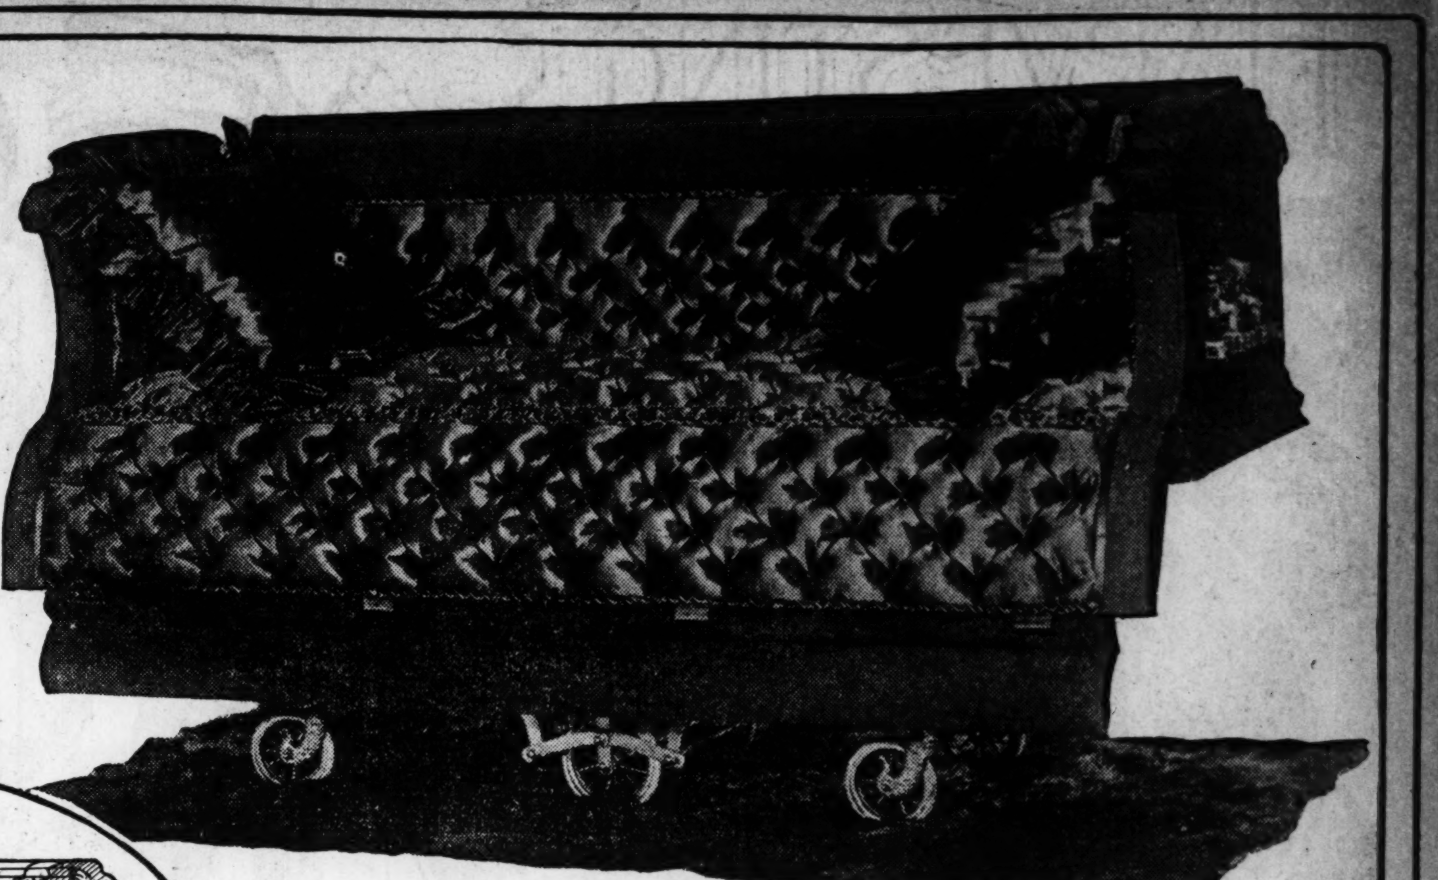
"Was there not some defect in your early training?"

"Well, I was never taught the value of money, and, until I succeeded to the title and estates, I handled very little cash. While I was in the 'Blues' (the Royal Horse Guards) the paternal allowance was only $100 a month, but my father paid all my bills. Had he given me a larger allowance, with the understanding that it was the absolute limit, it would have been infinitely better for me.

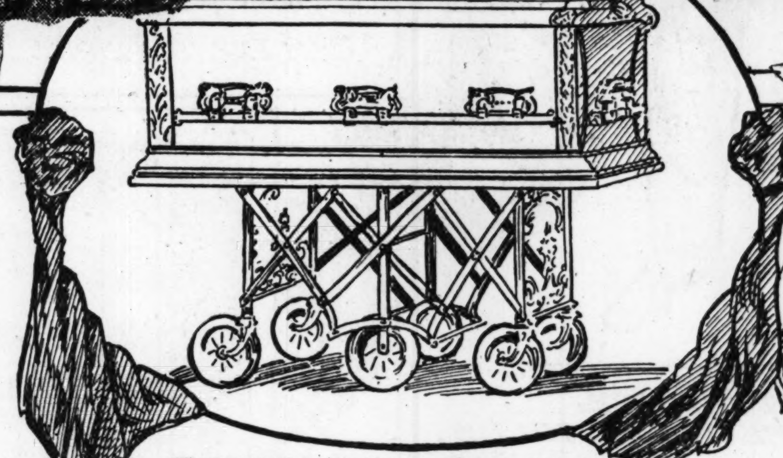
MORE BURIAL CASKETS MADE IN ST. LOUIS than in any other place in the world.



HERE IS A THOUSAND DOLLAR COPPER LINED CASKET.



FOLDING COUCH CASKET OPEN.



FOLDING COUCH CASKET CLOSED.

FRED'K. D. GARDNER, OF ST. LOUIS. THE CASKET KING.

U. S. Army Heroes Are Buried in St. Louis Metal-Lined Caskets Shipped in Train-Load Lots Sometimes.

ST. LOUIS leads the world in the manufacture of burial caskets.

Twelve per cent of th coffins and caskets used in the United States are made here.

Forty per cent of the demand is still for the old-fashioned coffin with the bent sides and natural-wood finish.

The total population of the United States is about 70,000,000. The death rate is 12 to the thousand. The total number of deaths each year is, therefore, not far from 840,000. Ten per cent, or 84,000 burials, are in potter's field.

The number interred by undertakers is not far from 756,500. This is the number of caskets annually required. St. Louis supplies 100,000 of them, or 1900 a week.

The coffin manufacturing cities of the country come in this order: St. Louis, Chicago, New York, Cincinnati, Memphis. There are seven coffin factories here.

The largest coffin house in the world is situated in St. Louis. So is the largest manufactury of hearses, funeral wagons and ambulances for the use of undertakers.

By FREDERICK D. GARDNER the Casket King.

ST. LOUIS burial caskets are sold in every state in the Union, and in every country in the world. The other day a St. Louis casket enclosed the clay of the President of Chili.

The seven factories here do an annual business of $3,000,000. St. Louis has been the center of the industry for 20 years.

The largest coffin house in the world, which is located here, is 33 years old. Distributing facilities had much to do with making this the manufacturing center. Only in places and countries remote from the factory are large stocks of the higher grades of funeral goods carried. So it is desirable that a factory be centrally located and on many lines of railroads.

Special orders are usually placed by telegraph. One St. Louis coffin house makes the claim of being able to fill an order out of stock in five minutes. It is three minutes from the Union Station. On a close connection the telephone would be used, and the train held a minute or two.

Express companies find the transportation of burial goods profitable. They are especially accommodating when caskets are to be furnished.

The largest express bill ever paid for a single shipment of casket and burial cases was paid by the United States government during the Spanish war. A St. Louis firm shipped an express trainload of metal-lined, hermetically sealed caskets to Chickamauga. There were 500. One St. Louis house is under contract with the government for metal-lined, hermetically sealed caskets for use in the tropics. It supplied those in which the soldiers were brought home from Porto Rico and Cuba. It is supplying those in which the soldiers are being brought from the Philippines. This style of casket prevents the spread of contagion.

Double metal caskets—copper within cloth-covered iron—with elaborate solid silver trimmings, are a novelty. There is style in burial goods. Light colored silk plush covered caskets are much in demand for young people, single or married. The richest thing and the newest thing in caskets is the Davenport drop lid slumber couch, trimmed in black satin and broadcloth covered. The suggestion of sleep robs death of its grewsomeness. These caskets, when folded, look like others. They cost $800. The other day a silk plush and hand-tucked, satin-lined casket was made to order for the wife of a former high city official. This casket cost $10,000. This is about as high as anyone may go in cloth-covered caskets. A copper inner casket is used for this pattern. Bronze caskets cost about $1000. Aluminum costs $1500. The average wholesale price of the coffins and caskets turned out in St. Louis the year round would be about $30 each.

Chestnut is the usual wood employed in the construction of cloth-covered caskets. It is hard and not expensive. The natural woods are much used. These are mahogany, in veneer, walnut, oak. Poplar is used for imitations.

Iron caskets are grained in imitation of hard woods. Burial cases are more elaborate than formerly. They are finshed in oak and hard woods. With rubber-tired church trucks, on which caskets are moved noiselessly and easily, and with lowering devices at the canvas-lined grave, with its surrounding of canvas-covered ground, many of those sights which were additions to sorrow are no longer seen. Death has become a lying down to pleasant dreams.

There are demands now and then for a plain coffin, no trimming and no stain, for old-time Hebrews, whose strict religion does not permit elaborate tenements for their clay. But the tendency is toward elaboration. Hearses costing $2000 are not uncommon. The low figure i $500. The newest thing in undertaker's vehicles is a white ambulance for hospital cases. Most undertakers are also liverymen. Ambulances are often required to meet persons at trains.

The great coffin companies keep open night and day every day of the year with teams hitched to wagons and men on hand ready to ship regular patterns or to trim or even make up odd sizes and ship them at night or on Sundays. The leading manufacturers have regular dry-goods stores in which the trimmings and cloths used in their business are kept. One house has a department devoted to the manufacture of burial robes and funeral garments. Fully $100,000 is spent yearly for cloth by St. Louis casket manufacturers. There is a great deal of art in the upholstery of caskets. St. Louis has developed many deft hands in this kind of expert labor.

One St. Louis factory finds it necessary to maintain four lumber yards that it may have at all times a sufficient supply of dry lumber and a place to store the large lots it is able to buy below market rates for cash and thereby make its initial profit. This one manufactory carries $500,000 worth of lumber all the time.

There is $1,000,000 invested in the business of casket-making in St. Louis. About 20 carloads of glass are used and $100,000 worth of varnish and paints. Fully $750,000 is paid out for labor. Eight thousand persons are employed in the work.

For the foreign trade, untrimmed caskets are made up and "knocked down." Tops, sides and ends are packed separately. Screws are used in putting these caskets together. No mechanical skill is required.

MONEY MINE IN A CELLAR

THE raising of mushrooms is a very easy and profitable business that can be successfully conducted by any intelligent boy or girl. Of course this line of money-getting is only within the reach of those having the use of a cellar, where they will be at liberty to do as they please in regard to regulating the temperature, etc.

The best directions for mushroom culture are to be found in a special bulletin published by the department of agriculture, and, if followed carefully, there is no reason why success should not be obtained.

Make your mushroom beds on the ground, facing them with 10-inch boards placed on edge, and utilizing for soil fresh stable sweepings, mixed with one-fourth garden loam.

Preliminarily the sweepings and the loam must be turned over daily for a week or so until the extreme heat is out of them, and then they may be built into the lead eight inches deep, packing them solidly. Leave the mixture until the heat subsides to 90 degrees and then plant it with pieces of brick spawn, the size of a walnut. You can purchase the mushroom spawn from any seedsman.

Make holes for the spawn three inches deep and six inches apart. Cover the bed thus prepared with two inches of garden loam, and over it put four inches of hay or straw, and the first mushrooms may be expected to appear within six or eight weeks after the planting. Then the straw should be removed, and the crop may be gathered daily.

It is a fact that firstrate mushrooms are always in demand at 40 or 50 cents a pound, and there is money in producing them, commission dealers, restaurants, hotels and fruiterers purchasing them at a high price if they are of a satisfactory quality.

RAILROADS ARE BUILT IN TIERS OVER A GOLD MINE AT LEAD, S. D.

Burlington and Elkhorn System Have Fight at the Site of the Famous Homestake Shaft, Near Deadwood.

LEAD, S. D., Oct. 2.

Special Correspondence of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

RAILWAY men say that at no other point in the world can be seen railways in tiers as they are shown in the accompanying photograph. The scene is at Lead, S. D., the site of the famous Homestake gold mine, one of the heaviest producers of gold in the world.

Standing on the surface track is shown a train on the Burlington line, while immediately above is an Elkhorn line train. Across the sky, high above all, looms the lofty trestle of the Homestake Mining Co., connecting its old and new shafts, mills and crushers across the gulch. A train of ore cars pulled by a small steam locomotive is in view, and beyond it one of the compressed air engines that the Homestake uses can be seen.

That the railroads appear in tiers is the result of a fight between the Burlington system and the Elkhorn railroad, the latter a part of the big Northwestern system.

Both roads had entry into Lead, the metropolis of the Black Hills, the Burlington over their own tracks, the Elkhorn using the tracks of the narrow-guaged Fort Pierre & Black Hills road to get into the town.

One day the Burlington road stole a march on their rival and purchased the narrow-gauge, thus throwing the Elkhorn out of the field and forcing them to give up the lucrative business of the Homestake mine.

To build another line into Lead was thought impossible, since the only two gulches leading into the city were now occupied by the Burlington; but the Elkhorn engineers finally located the "high line" from Deadwood, bringing their road by a succession of graceful curves and easy grades over the very tops of the mountain and entering Lead immediately over the Burlington depot, their own depot being situated in the heart of the city.

A CHARLESTON MYSTERY

Strange Object In White, With Flaming Eyes and Cloven Feet, Seen in Cemetery by Several Persons.

CITIZENS of Charleston, S. C., are much exercised over a strange phantom which they say has suddenly made its appearance in their fair city. During the past week or 10 days reports have come in from various outlying districts which do not tend to allay the fears of nervously disposed persons.

"I missed a late car to my home in the suburbs the other night," averred a merchant, in speaking to a reporter for the News and Courier, "and was forced to walk or spend the night at a hotel. I started out in the best of spirits. In order to take advantage of a short cut and thereby save a considerable distance I decided to go through the edge of a certain cemetery. I was in no particular hurry to get home, but I kept up a tolerably fair pace through the city of the dead.

"I was ambling along at a pretty good clip, bounding over tombstones and hopping over mounds of earth, when suddenly my attention was drawn to something down in one of the dark corners of the cemetery, where the thick foliage did not admit the moonlight. A great white something slowly arose up out of a grave and suddenly sank into the ground again, at the same time emitting a fearful, blood-curdling groan, such as might be wrung from a strong man in excruciating physical agony.

"I candidly acknowledge that I hurried on. I didn't have any business hanging around in a cemetery at such an hour of the night, with my wife uneasy about me at home. I protest I was not at all frightened, and but for my wife being all alone at home I am sure that I would have investigat

Colonial Lake a few nights ago," declared a bookkeeper for a wholesale house, "but there is evidently something wrong around here. I was on my way home about 12 o'clock. The night being rather sultry I sat down on a bench at the pond to get a breath or two of fresh air before moving further. I was never more keenly alive to my surroundings in my life and, on my word, I had swallowed nothing stronger than ice tea in the past 24 hours.

"For a brief period I had all the whole lake to myself, but all of a sudden I found that I had all the company I was looking for. An enormous object, with blazing eyes, and attired in a long robe of pure white, dropped out of the darkness some dozen rods from the bench on which I was sitting. For a moment it stood irresolute, its blazing eyes emitting sparks of fire and a thick volume of white vapor sizzling from its mouth. And if my memory serves me right the thing had cloven feet and tail. Almost as suddenly as it appeared it disappeared in the gloom. I might add that I lost no time in recommencing my journey home."

A farmer residing in the Red Top section came to Charleston with a remarkable account of the doings of a "varmint" of some kind in that portion of the county.

"For several nights now," said the agriculturist, "some invisible beast has been playing havoc among my stock and poultry. Night before last I was awakened by a big racket in my back yard. Hastily arming myself with a stick of stove wood I hurried out to ascertain the cause of the disturbance. Two or three cows were huddled up in a corner, and hogs, chickens and mules were making a determined effor to add as much as possible to the confusion.

"Without an instant's warning a big white ghost or something hurled itself from the branches of a shade tree under which I was standing and lit square on my shoulder. Before I could recover from the surprised shock the thing vanished. It's all very strange and I don't know what to make of it."

Many other reports of the monster have been received in Charleston, but as yet no definite information concerning it has been obtained. The appearance of the apparition, if apparition it is, has been accounted for in some quarters by the liberality of the political candidates in the dispositon of liquor, but those who claim to have seen it state in most emphatic terms that they are not among those who prey

The Greatest Fruit Belt on Earth Extends From Cuba, Mo., Along the Line of the Ozarks.

SOUTHWEST MISSOURI, once a rock covered and almost barren section of the great state, is now one of the largest fruit producing sections of the United States, and its products are known from coast to coast as the finest fruit grown.

Every available inch of the Ozarks not planted with wheat and corn is covered with peach and apple trees and the entire country now appears as one vast orchard, the trees fairly groaning under their burden of ripe, red fruit.

APPLES, apples, apples. Everywhere, great red, ripe and luscious apples. Hanging in clusters on the bending boughs, turning their shiny red sides to the bright sun seeking the color-giving rays of the yellow orb that beams down on millions of trees that grow and thrive in the rocky soil of the state that is known as the "Land of the Big Red Apple."

This is the sight that meets the gaze of the traveler as he speeds swiftly in parlor coaches through the heart of the Ozarks. Growing on the hills, in the midst of rocks, and in what appears to be sticky, red clay, are the apple trees that have made Missouri famous as a fruit-growing country.

Mile after mile, as far as the eye can reach, stretched out in perfect rows that form a red line across the horizon, are trees that know not the hand of cultivation, but which respond to the touch of nature and produce without the aid of man an apple that is superior to any that is grown in any other part of the United States.

It is a common expression among the fruit-growers in that part of Missouri that "we set out the trees and nature does the rest."

This statement is well founded and easy to believe after an examination of the manner in which the trees are planted and when the condition of the soil is considered. A thin coating of black dirt covering a bed of rocks that nest upon many solid layers of red clay is the soil that characterizes the Ozarks. Into this soil, many feet below the rocks and deep into the red clay, sink the roots of the trees that bear abundantly even in the hottest and dryest fruit seasons.

The rocks and the clay act as a reservoir, and when the rains sink through to the clay the moisture is retained, thus affording food for the roots which keep the trees green above ground regardless of the climatic conditions.

The great industry is as yet in its infancy and the farmers throughout this section of Missouri have only within the last three or four years awakened to the vast possibilities of the natural resources of their land. Where wheat and corn were grown in fairly profitable measures, orchards have been set out and the farmer's income has increased to such an extent that many are now in affluent circumstances.

As it takes from five to seven years to grow an orchard that will bear plentifully. The first years are merely experimental years. Last year and this year have carried the growers beyond the experimental stages, and the fruit business has begun to assume the aspect of a large and well-regulated industry.

The fruit farmer has little to fear regarding the loss of a crop. The "bitter rot" is dreaded most of all ailments of the apple, and this is prevented by the copious application of a spray composed of lime and water, and which is applied directly to the apple.

This dry or bitter rot is a tiny floating spore which fastens to the surface of the apple, and cannot be detected until its ravage has begun. It spreads out in a circle, and soon envelopes the whole apple. The spray saves many fine orchards, and the past few years have been of such a nature that bitter rot has existed in only one or two sections. By many growers it is not considered serious enough to deserve attention, and the tree and its fruit are left to battle the germ without assistance. Wet weather is the direct cause of the floating spore, and in dry weather when all vegetation is in need of moisture the apple thrives, its roots drawing on the deep beds of moist clay and its leaves and fruit free from the rotting elements that are generated by the wet weather.

While the "big red apple" of Missouri is known the world over, and is eagerly sought by [illegible] fruit dealers all over the [illegible] Missouri [illegible] known and even more profitable than the apply. For many years the "Alberta" peach has been grown in Missouri, and has been transplanted to many sections of the United States, but nowhere does it thrive and flourish as it does in its native soil, the rocky sides of the barren Ozarks.

The fruit belt extends from Cuba, Mo., directly along the line of the Ozarks and practically the only industry in Cuba, Lebanon, Springfield, Mountain Grove and West Plains is the cultivation of apples and peaches. In these towns one sees nothing but wagon after wagon load of bright red apples being taken to the cold storage houses, evaporating plants and to the numerous packing houses where the apples are put up in barrels ready to export to Europe and other foreign countries.

In 1900 the United States exported to Europe 600,000 barrels of apples. In 1901 Europe received 1,600,000 barrels of the same apples and as the fame of the United States apple spread the orders to the commission brokers became voluminous.

Statistics show that a third of the apples thus shipped to Europe were Missouri grown, and, in 1901, every barrel of Missouri apples brought on the docks at Liverpool $5.75. These same apples sold in Missouri and in the United States in general for $4.

The drouth of last year affected the apple market, and when the information regarding the drouth went abroad buyers from every city in the United States flocked in numbers to the Ozark region, and hardly an orchard that bore any fruit at all was left unsold, so great was the demand for the apples on the trees. In these instances the buyers made the purchases outright, and packed their own crop, thus relieving the farmer of all trouble, and leaving him with a satisfactory bank account.

Buyers are not so plentiful this season, as the crop is large and of fine quality, and the price is not what it was last year. The bulk of the yield is being put into cold storage, as it has been demonstrated that the Missouri apple will keep for three and four years in a frigid temperature.

While Missouri now leads in the apple and peach production of the middel West, it does not signify that the state has always been a leader. On the contrary, it indicates the exact state of affairs and shows that the apple and peach have formerly been grown in small family orchards of 50 to 75 trees. The great demand for the Missouri fruit has lead to the development of the commercial orchard of from three to five thousand acres supporting 75 and 80 trees to the acre.

The average yield of apples is three barrels to the tree. These apples sell in St. Louis for $1.50 per barrel and in many instances for a higher price. The apple that is the best grower and the best seller and one that presents a handsome appearance is the "Ben Davis." This apple grows to an enormous size and is a brilliant red. Its keeping properties are well known, and it finds a ready sale with exporters. Other apples that made Missouri famous are the Mayflower, Grimes' Golden, Champion and the Jonathan. These apples are the late fall apples, and the juicy and sweet apple known as the Maiden Blush is the early season apple.

There are other features to the apple business besides packing and storing them for future use. Thousands of gallons of cider are made annually and each year the dried fruit enterprise increases. On nearly every orchard there is an evaporating plant, and the profit in this line is great.

After the choicest apples are sorted out and packed away the seconds are sent to the evaporator, where girls, with the aid of especially adapted machinery, pare and core them and prepare them for the dry house. A bushel of apples that could not be sold for any other purpose yields seven pounds of dried or evaporated apples and sell for 50 cents per bushel. The cost of the evaporating is about 8 cents, thus it may be seen that the fruit-grower has every opportunity to extract from nature a rare profit.

Nothing is lost or thrown away in the apple industry. Even the peeling and cores are utilized. These are shipped to the manufacurers of jelly and syrups for flavoring purposes, and during the apple-gathering season the fruit farms are in operation night and day.

While there is but one railroad through the apple and peach country of Missouri, that of the St. Louis & San Francisco railway, every facility is offered the farmer to transport quickly and securely the shipment of fruit. A few years ago the packing and shipping of fruit to St. Louis was considered a great enterprise. Now the product is packed and shipped to Europe in carloads with less trouble than was occasioned when St. Louis was the objective shipping point.

While it is practically true that "nature does the rest" in the growing of fruit, the commercial orchardist does not rely alone upon the willingness of nature and the Ozark climate, but gives special care to the planting of nitrogenous and non-nitrogenous plants to furnish food and to conserve moisture for the trees.

In three years peach trees bear fruit, and an acre of 80 peach trees is said to bring to the grower a return of $350 per acre. Apples net a return of from $200 to $250 per acre of 80 trees after five and seven years growth. While the orchards are growing and receiving care, the grower plants between the rows of trees corn and other commodities that in a measure off-set the expenses of maintaining an orchard through its unbearing period.

Because of the great interest taken in the fruit industry the state government has established at Mountain Grove a fruit experiment station which is under the direct supervision of Prof. John T. Stinson. This station was established in 1899, and the building was erected on 190 acres that were donated by the citizens of Mountain Grove, who made every effort to assist the state in establishing the station. The first appropriation made by the state amounted to $17,000. A second appropriation of $37,600 was made a year later, and the active work of the station was taken up by Prof. Stinson.

The lack of unity among the fruit farmers has always been a serious drawback to the promotion of the fruit industry, and a meeting of the growers was called in Springfield Sept. 2, and an organization known as the Ozark Apple Growers' Association was formed, with G. A. Atwood, one of the best-known fruit growers in Missouri, and who is considered to be an authority on the cultivation of fruit trees, as secretary.

These men have organized for the purpose of bettering the natural conditions, and to secure better prices for their products in the foreign countries.

"A MAN SHOULD QUIT WORK AT 90," SAYS EX-SENATOR JEWETT OF ST. LOUIS, WHO IS 94 YEARS OLD

EX-SENATOR DANIEL TARBOX JEWETT

THE time for an educated man to quit work is when he is 90 if he has saved up enough to keep him. A man, aiming to cross the 100 mark, says this.

Up to the time he was a young man of 90 United States Senator Daniel Tarbox Jewett was a believer in the Russell Sage doctrine that it is better to wear out than rust out. Then Mr. Jewett thought better of it, and, though he kept going downtown and maintaining an office, he notified clients that he was no longer in the active practice of law.

BY DANIEL TARBOX JEWETT,
Nestor of the St. Louis Bar.

I AM A great admirer of Russell Sage, but I am no longer practicing his theory of working actively until you can work no more. I like his rugged character, his poise. They never seem to have been able to get at him much in Wall street

Maybe I began hard work earlier than that old fellow Sage. I was a farmer's son in Pittson, Me. Our farm was two miles east of the Kennebec river. We lumbered in winter. We tilled in summer. We worked all the year round.

My eldest sister lived until she was 20 days over 100 years old. Two of my brothers lived to be 90. So did another sister. I count on living to be 100.

I stopped farm work when I was 17½ and began the study of Latin and Greek in anticipation of beginning my college course. My brother was at Waterville Baptist College (now Colby University). I prepared and entered this school in September, 1826. Two years after the head professor was chosen president of the Columbia College, Washington, D. C. I went with him and graduated in 1830. Dr. W. G. Eliot of St. Louis was a classmate of mine. It was through his influence that I located here.

John Quincy Adams was President when I arrived in Washington and Henry Clay was secretary of state. Webster, Benton and Calhoun were in the Senate. I was in Washington in 1844 when the Whig national convention in Baltimore nominated Clay and Frelinghuysen. This gave the first practical test of the Morse electric telegraph in the transmission of news. The telegram said "Clay and Frelinghuysen nominated." I remember persons asking, "Who the devil is Frelinghuysen?"

The government helped Morse some. His [illegible] test was made when the Democratic [illegible]tion was held. Polk and Silas Wright [illegible]inated. Washington received the [illegible]ntly. Wright wired back, de[illegible]. The convention refused to accept the telegram as genuine and awaited confirmation by the usual means of communication.

Fulton built his little ferryboat on the Hudson the year I was born. It made four miles an hour and set the world agape. I saw pieces of it, the paddlewheels and boxes. Ocean steamships were in operation when I was in college. They crossed the ocean in 15 days and the world wondered afresh.

The propeller, now universally used for ocean-going steamships, was invented the year I graduated by John Ericsson, a Swede, the inventor of the Monitor later and of the caloric engine, on which he worked 20 years. He had designed a locomotive in 1829 in competition with George Stephenson for the Liverpool & Manchester Railroad Co. Ericsson's body was taken home to Sweden in 1889 on a United States cruiser, driven by one of his propellers, first applied in naval use on the Princeton and adopted because, being submerged, it was not likely to be injured by the enemy's shots.

I saw Jackson inaugurated in 1829. I went to some of his levees, as I did to those of Adams. Sixty-eight years later I saw McKinley inaugurated and went to the inaugural ball.

Jackson was on the platform when I graduated in 1830. That year before I went by stage from Washington to Baltimore to see the first passenger railroad in the United States, now a part of the Baltimore & Ohio. The road ran from Baltimore to Ellicott Mills, 12 miles away. There was no locomotive. Horses hauled the cars. The rails were flat strips of iron laid lengthwise on timbers. This style of rails was in use for years.

I was admitted to the bar in Bangor, Me., in April, 1834. I practiced law there until 1850. I had married in 1848 Miss Sarah Wilson, daughter of ex-Congressman Wilson of Belfast, Me. My brother, who had been [illegible]ted second grade minister to Lima, by President Polk, had gone across the Isthmus of Panama in 1845. He went up the Chagres river on a flat boat propelled by poles. He thought the sternwheel steamers we knew on the rivers of Maine would be a better means of locomotion. We decided we would put sternwheel steamers on the Chagres and make our fortune carrying Americans on their way to and from California up and down, 40 miles from Aspinwall or Colon. We got the machinery for the boat and the material and shipped them on a frigate with 30 men from Maine. Then we took a steamer going to California.

We would have made the fortune we dreamed of but for the fact we found out too late, that the river not navigable in summer.

I came West in 1856. I went to Minneapolis and Chicago, and up the Missouri and came here. My old classmate, Dr. Eliot, here, induced me to stay.

I was a partner of Britton A. Hill from 1860 to 1872. Our practice was largely land business. Hill ought to have lived longer than I, but he ate too much. He used to eat three hearty meals a day, and then eat a lobster or two after the theater at night. I have a friend back East who is 90 and likely to live to be a hundred, who has eaten no meat for 60 years.

I used to go across the ferry to Illinois to go to Springfield to court. I was the attorney for a railway that wasn't finished. The engineer sued the road in the federal court. He was an Illinois man. The trials were held in Springfield. Abe Lincoln represented the engineer.

My clients were stockholders of the road. There were five suits. Lincoln won two. I won three.

Judge Treat was the United States district judge before whom the cases were tried. Lincoln was a great chess player. So was Judge Treat. I was a fair player myself. I wandered into the judge's office one day and there were Lincoln and the judge playing a game of chess. I watched them. Finally little Tod Lincoln and another boy came in without knocking. They were barefooted and dirty. It was in July.

"Pa," said Tod, "give me 5 cents."

"You don't want any 5 cents, son," said Lincoln, his eye still on the board.

Tod stood there a moment, his face reddening. Then he swung his arm and up went that chess board into the air, the chessmen flying in all directions.

Automobiling in St. Louis

There Are 230 Machines in the City Now as Against 52 in 1901, and Most of Them Are Used for Pleasure.

AUTOMOBILES are coming to the front in St. Louis, perhaps not as rapidly as in many of the large Eastern cities, but steadily and surely the machines are being pressed into service by citizens of the World's Fair city.

Eighteen months ago the number of machines in use in St. Louis could almost be counted on one's fingers; on the first of last September there were about fifty pleasure autos here, and now there are at least 230 residents of St. Louis owning machines.

Compared with New York and Chicago it is generally conceded that this city has been rather backward in adopting the horseless vehicles, but this is explained in a measure by the fact that Missourians have to be shown.

Up to five months ago there was no automobile club or society in St. Louis, while in both cities before mentioned there existed numerous clubs formed for the development of the sport then more than five years old.

On the first of last June the Automobile Club of St. Louis was incorporated and this infant organization now has a membership of 150. The club meets every two weeks in the University Club rooms, and the following are its officers:

The list of committees follows:

Membership committee—John Ring, Jr., chairman; J. J. Howard, L. G. McNair; house committee—John S. Carter, chairman; Walter McKittrick, Geo. W. Hellmuth; committee on exhibitions, runs, tours and contests—A. W. Neidringhaus, chairman; Horace Rumsey, E. H. Steedman; laws and ordinances committee—Geo. B. Leighton, chairman; H. S. Turner, O. L. Halsey.

The members are: E. J. Banker, Dr. M. E. Breed, Ephron Catlin, Thomas K. Cooper, T. W. Crouch, H. J. Cantwell, John S. Carter, L. D. Cabanne, Thos. W. Day, S. P. Dorris, Dr. J. G. Ehrhardt, S. E. Freeman, H. W. Gildehaus, Dr. F. G. Glasgow, A. C. Halsey, O. L. Halsey, G. W. Hellmuth, J. C. Higdon, Max Hellman, E. P. Hilts, J. J. Howard, T. C. Highlayman, F. F. Howard, Geo. B. Leighton, Eugene Lewis, Perry Lewis, E. K. Ludington, Edward Mallinckrodt, Jr., Walter McKittrick, L. G. McNair, A. W. Neidringhaus, Clarkson Potter, Dr. O. Paquin, O. F. Pearson, A. Peteler, John Ring, Jr., V. P. Ring, Horace Rumsey, Dr. E. W. Saunders, F. W. Scofield, Harry Scullin, A. F. Shapleigh, Harlowe B. Spencer, E. H. Steedman, A. T. Simpkins, A. T. Simpkins, Jr., Dr. E. M. Senseney, A. D. Scott, Semple S. Scott, H. S. Turner, Jr., Douglass Turner, Dr. Jules F. Valle, G. H. Walker.

Among the most enthusiastic auto-drivers in St. Louis is Dr. Senseny, secretary of the club. Said Mr. Senseney to a reporter for the Sunday Post-Dispatch, when asked how the auto compared with the horse for a physician's use:

"To one who understands operating an automobile intelligently it is as far ahead of the horse conveyance as the electric street car is in advance of the old horse car and I for one would as soon think of returning to the horse as to walk when possible to ride."

"How about the cost of keeping a machine?" queried the reporter.

"Well," replied the doctor, "I was one of the first St. Louisans to purchase an automobile, and in the 18 months I have owned the machine it has cost me about $75. It has a gasoline motor and the cost for supplies and repairs will average from $2.50 to $8 a month. When I used horses their keep cost me at least $15 a month, to say nothing of the cost of repairs to carriage, harness, horseshoeing, etc. With my machine I can not only travel much faster, but with less inconvenience than the old way."

There are several expert women drivers in St. Louis, who operate their machines through crowded thoroughfares with perfect ease and safety. Among the most prominent fair chauffeurs in the city are Miss Lillie Lambert of the West End Hotel, Vandeventer and Cook; Miss Ida Crouch, 4001 Delmar boulevard, and Mrs. Frank Evarts of 3405 Hawthorne boulevard.

Miss Lambert, who is now visiting in Massachusetts, is considered by many to be the best auto driver in St. Louis, not barring the male contingent who pride themselves on expert manipulation of the horseless carriages.

Most of the machines piloted by ladies in St. Louis are of the electric motor variety, and while not so fast as some other machines, are considered perfectly safe and easy of operation.

John French owns what is considered by many the fastest machine in St. Louis, and is supplied with a 40-horsepower engine.

Mr. French is now confined to his home from the effects of injuries received in an accident in Philadelphia about three weeks ago, when a street car ran into a machine which he was driving.

Said O. L. Halsey, who is said to be one of the best informed automobile exponents in the West:

"I believe the business in St. Louis is just now taking a good hold, and from now on the business will pick up rapidly. The people of St. Louis have gone through the experimental stage in automobiling, and are paying more for vehicles now than a year ago. Our streets are being improved, and soon St. Louis will furnish as good conditions for driving machines and as many of them in proportion to population as any city in the country."

Besides the machines being used in competition to the street railway in carrying passengers across the Eads bridge, there will be several business autos in use in St. Louis in the near future. Among these will be three or four large covered vehicles, to be used for delivery purposes by department stores.

At the coming St. Louis fair there will be automobile races, and some interesting events will be pulled off under the auspices of the St. Louis Automobile Club.

RICHES FOUND IN A ROOT

GEORGE F. LANGWORTHY of Weaver, near Niles, Mich., has raised on one-third of an acre of land a crop that he has sold for $18,000. In making this wonderful crop he has done little more work than he would have put into the cultivation of an acre of berries.

Langworthy has put his third of an acre in ginseng, none of which had until recently been raised in Michigan. It is commonly supposed that the odd plant, the root of which is sold only to the Chinese, who use it for medicine, will not grow under cultivation, and must be hunted for in the mountains of West Virginia, and in a few other spots in the United States.

The Michigan farmer has demonstrated that ginseng grows splendidly there, and that while his only market is 1000 miles away, and the ultimate destination of his crop is China, 10,000 miles distant, his venture has been most protfiable. Undoubtedly his success will result in the wholesale growing of the plant.

Ginseng brings from $18 to $20 a pound, and more than 300,000 pounds of it is shipped annually from the United States. The Chinese think it good for every ill from toothache to consumption.

There are two members of the Langworthy family, father and son. They live alone in a little two-room shack at the edge of a lonely country road—a house the outside of which would startle most women into absolute horror if they saw it. But it is not intended for a woman's occupancy, and ginseng can be dried just as well over a rusty cook stove as above a modern furnace. Ginseng roots are in every corner, and literature concerning them is on every table and shelf and window sill.

George Langworthy is much like his home in more than one respect. Ginseng pervades his every fiber, and he has read concerning it and thought about it and worked with it in the field until he knows possibly more on the subject than any other man in Michigan.

The 50,000 plants in the Langworthy garden are all in beds, each three feet wide and 32 feet long, and surrounded by boards to keep the earth in place. There is a one-foot path at the side of each for convenience in weeding. Because of the absolute necessity for shade, for the ginseng in its wild state never grows in the open, the beds are covered at a height of seven feet with lattice work in half-inch spaces. The ginseng plants are hurt by neither snow nor cold and the ground often freezes below the bottom of the roots without injury to them.

Ginseng grows principally from seed. In Mr. Langworthy's garden the individual seeds are planted an inch below the surface in average sandy, pine soil. The latter is then covered with two inches of well-rotted leaf mold, which serves as a top dressing for the ground during the life of the plant. The seeds are held by most growers to be valueless for germination, for some unknown reason, until 18 months after their harvest, but in the Langworthy garden they are planted at once, in the latter part of August or the early part of September.

They lie in the ground through the winter, and in the late spring a few plants come up. The vast majority do not germinate until the seco[illegible] those that mak[illegible] the fir[illegible]

BISMARCK'S OLD PHYSICIAN SAYS FASHION RULES THE DOCTOR, NOT SCIENCE

BERLIN, Sept. 28.

Special Correspondence of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

IN the medicine of the day fashion and "method" reign supreme, while medical history is almost forgotten and practitioners studying it are ridiculed as cranks.

Fashions in medicine, one of the oldest of sciences, sounds almost paradoxical. What, make a science in which prevention, protection and love of mankind should go hand in hand with reason and morals subject to the whims and fads of the epoch?

Yet it's done all over the world. I am not referring to the hereditary war between clyster and cupping, or to Xrays, microscope and spectral analysis either. But before sitting in judgment on the doctor a la mode, who models his recipes in accordance with new ideas, up today and down tomorrow, let us glance at the various illnesses actually created by fashion.

It will be found that almost every new sort of clothing interferes with the balance of our organism and calls for medical action of some sort. Take the corset for instance

Originally invented to hide the deformity of some hunchbacked woman, it got to be the cause of many of the nervous and intestinal ills from which the female sex is suffering today. But do you suppose for one moment that in ante-corset days all women were full-blooded and endowed with nerves of iron and a ditto digestion?

These diseases existed before the corset was ever thought of, and would continue to worry womankind even if the corset was abolished by law and the law respected.

Some of these doctors a la mode strike me like nickel-in-the-slot machines. You drop your fee in the ever-itching p[illegible] mention your disease, and presto! comes the name of the "method," drug, health resort or medicinal spring that will cure it—pardon, that alone is capable of curing it. A sandwich or candy automatum, regulated by the drop of a five-cent piece, can't work more promptly.

For centuries man praised God for planting in faraway South America a tree the bark of which cured intermittent fever, malaria, etc. But now, they say, we can do without this prize. Antipyrin is making the tour of the world and quinine must take a back seat, for antipyrin allows a doctor a la mode to regulate temperature at will.

But of course the appetite comes with the eating. Knorr's laurels stirred up the whole inventive fraternity, and after antipyrin we got phenacetin, kairin, salipyri[illegible] [illegible]febrin, lactophenin, pyramidol, and [illegible] migranin, etc.

[illegible] after we had reduced temp[illegible] fo[illegible] years and had crowe[illegible] breasts with [illegible] concluded one fine day that it was all wrong and that a sick person is better off if his high temperature is not interfered with, for high temperature means increase of vitality, and every layman ought to know that vitality, when it asserts itself, should be backed up rather than suppressed.

"To err is human," you say, but I ask, "Is it right, is it lawful, is it moral, to subject sick people to experiments of that sort?"

And the worst of it. The quinine-antipyrin episode has not taught to the physician a la mode a lesson—far from it. He continues to wear his mantle short today and long to[illegible] to administer phenacetin in [illegible] and lactophein in the even[illegible] [illegible]an expects these so-[illegible] the test of tim[illegible] drugs. If, b[illegible] la mod[illegible] them were of the "most encouraging character."

Take a look at the catalogue of any successful chemical factory. There 10, 20, 30 doctors assert that they had "wonderful success" with "eulaktol," "piterazih" or "sozosodol," where just as many or more swear by protargol, itrol or argentan. And besides, there are plenty of testimonials from grateful patients indorsing these cure-alls. It is as if sufferers and physicians vied with each other which of them might succeed in making the most absurd and unscientific statements.

Indeed, [illegible]dicine as practiced by the physician [illegible] is an industry rather than a sc[illegible]

Not so [illegible] was the fashion "to s[illegible] must be a "specialist[illegible] nowadays. [illegible] spring on colleagues with the request to send them patients next summer.

It pays, too, and the work is easy enough. Plenty of patients allow themselves to be sold on delivery three or six months after date.

Another brand of physician a la mode is the fellow who imitates a great light of medical science in some outward respect, advertises himself as his pupil and announces a new curative method "founded on the discoveries of the great X. X."

Medicine is classed as an exact science, but I pity the patient who falls into the hands of a physician before the latter correct his school-wisdom by practical experience. The story that one of the masters of the surgical craft advised his coachman, suffer[illegible] accide[illegible] to go at once to a ph[illegible] o joke.

Walrus Hunting the Greatest Game of the Icy North

A Great Catch—Walrus Skulls and Narwhal tusks.

"Elephant of the Sea" Sometimes Turns on His Enemies and With Mighty Roarings Sells His Life Dearly.

By HERBERT S. BRIDGMAN, Secretary of the Peary Arctic Club.

HUNTING with Peary means the pursuit of the mighty walrus, "the elephant of the sea," and the ferocious Polar bear, "the tiger of the North." It means the stealthy attack through the icy waters, the flight over the floes, and always the struggle to the death with tremendously powerful and savage foes.

Members of an Arctic exploring expedition do not hunt for sport alone. The big game of the land of perpetual ice furnish much that is needful beside food for men and dogs. If a kill be missed it means something more than the sportsman's chagrin over a blundering shot.

The rifle has made walrus hunting much more certain than it used to be, but the rifle without the Eskimo and his harpoon wouldn't accomplish much. In fact, the native can do more with his primitive weapons, which count for about 30 per cent, and his skill, which counts for about 70 per cent, than can the highly civilized white man with a modern magazine rifle and a reputation as a big game hunter. But taken together the combination is pretty deadly for the walrus.

When it comes to hunting the Polar bear the dogs are more important than the Eskimo or the white man, although it is true that a rifle or some sort of effective weapon is necessary to finish the big brutes.

To the novice walrus hunting is mighty exciting sport and the danger of it seems so great that the odds appear all with the big tuskers. But the deadly certainty of the ending—and that is the capture of the walrus—shows that the odds are against the sea monster. Nevertheless there is a constant peril, for if a wounded walrus turns and attacks the boat in which are the hunters before a bullet has reached a vital point it is likely to be the end of the hunters. Those mighty tusks have enormous power behind them, and it is merely play to smash a whaleboat into bits.

For a full week we cruised in Inglefield Gulf and each day two or three boats hunted walrus with excellent success. A light fog spread over the surface of the gulf during the forenoon and through it we could see the tops of the distant foothills and more distant ice caps as the Diana lazily drifted about under half steam.

Unusually not until the afternoon would the brown dots, distinguishable only by the keenest and best-trained eyes, be made out on the stained ice pans and bergs. Two or three pairs of glasses would keep watch of them as the Diana steamed to leeward, while others were sweeping the horizon for more game.

Three-quarters of a mile from the quarry a boat was lowered, with two natives in the bow as harpooners and the others astern and amidships. In our boat Ang-ad-loo, surest and most powerful of Eskimo, hurled the barb, while Tung-wee lent him aid, while on the stern sat the "professor" with a rifle, and Fred with an old Queen's arm musket loaded with a murderous slug.

We rowed as far as possible under cover of a protecting berg, only making the dash when concealment was no longer possible. On a mild and sunny afternoon the walrus are almost always sure to be asleep and they sleep soundly, so that it is possible to get close without disturbing them. And besides, they are hunted so little that they are not especially wary.

Cale, the grizzly carpenter of the Diana, acted as coxswain, and his lithe strength gave the lie to his gray hair and lined face.

"Sh! Vast pullin'," he commanded as he threw all his weight onto the long steering sweep and sculled head on toward the pan, not more than 150 yards dead ahead. With oars apeak we looked over our shoulders to see the tawny monster that was to be our prey. Huge and powerful he looked. There were three of them, fast asleep in the lonely Arctic sea.

Ang-ad-loo and Tung-wee braced their stocky legs against the sides o fthe boat. Ang-ad-loo [illegible]ced a harpoon in his hand while we [illegible]athlessly. If he should [illegible]

Swiftly we bore down upon the three. Ang-ad-loo drew himself back and with all his strength hurled the harpoon. It sang through the air until it was buried to the head in the shoulder of the nearest walrus. Ang-ad-loo never misses.

The grim silence of the white North, broken only by the grimmer crashing and crunching of ice, gave way to the wrath and dismay of the three great beasts. Furious, hoarse cries that seemed to make the berg tremble, came from them as they lashed about, turning this way and that for a few seconds. Then, with marvelous agility, they began sliding backward into the water.

Constantly that hoarse roar came from them with a sound like nothing else on the earth; in its waters or in the heavens above. And none could tell whether it was the wounded creature or the unharmed ones that made the greatest racket and commotion.

Almost before the harpoon had buried itself in the walrus' hide Ang-ad-loo and Tung-wee were throwing over drags, lines and all the hamper that was to be called into instant play to check the mighty rush of the wounded giant.

Tung-wee had scarce time to "snub" the stronger oogzork line about the stem of the boat before we were rushing through the water as if we were being towed by an express train. There is a wild excitement in that mad dash through the Arctic seas, when the boat boils through the waters, tortured by the hamper, with the danger of striking floating ice ever before one.

Then men behind the guns gripped their weapons harder, and while the excitement was still making our minds whirl three dark heads arose in the water, for the two kept the harpooned one company. The professor's rifle spoke, but the shot went wide. The three great bodies turned, dripping and flashing in the sun, and they dived again. On and on the boat sped at greater speed, despite the check of the hamper. There was something relentless in this unseen, tremendous power.

"Keep cool!" cautioned the experienced Cale. "He'll come up again soon."

Presently the dark head again appeared, and this time the professor's aim was better. A hoarse cry, something between a groan and a wail, rent the Arctic stillness, and the spouting blood told that the bullet had gone home.

The lines suddenly became slack, and the natives peered anxiously over the side. The very inactivity was full of menace. No one could know how serious was the wound or whether the powerful creature, driven wild with pain, would attack the boat with his companions to aid him.

But it soon became evident that the pace had told on the giant. The effort of dragging hamper and boat, the loss of blood from the harpoon and the first shot had weakened him, and thereafter the chase ceased to be a sport and became a butchery. Lead and steel was pumped into the huge brute until a vital shot was reached. Then a vertical oar gave the signal to the Diana to steam up and take our game on board with tackle and steam winch. The natives removed the thick skin and swiftly divided the spoil.

While we were capturing our walrus, the starboard boat had been through practically a similar experience ,and before we turned in for the "night"—it was in summertime when there is practically no night in the Arctic—we had no fewer than nine walrus to our store.

One boat had been singularly fortunate in finding nearly a dozen walrus on a single pan, and good marksmanship made possible the killing of three before they had time to slide into the water, and a fourth was harpooned and captured.

But not always are conditions so favorable. A week later we hunted walrus in Westonholm Sound in raw, chilly, foggy weather. Day after day boats would leave the ship, pull[illegible]ily and[illegible]usly in the fa[illegible] of wi[illegible] frustof alarm they would slip into the sea. Then the natives would use all their arts of imitation to lure the walrus back within reach, but never did they succeed.

One of our party instisted upon wearing a straw hat in cloudy weather, the why of it being a mystery to this day, for no amount of questioning or chaffing could draw the reason from him. The extraordinary Arctic headgear took on additional importance from the fact that never did a boat in which that straw hat was seen succeed in killing a single walrus.

The captain emphatically declared that the straw hat was a hoodoo, and later, in Smith Sound, he positively forbade it in the boat. The fact that every walrus hunted thereafter was killed and captured seemed to justify the captain in the stand he took.

The walrus is not a very good fighter, relatively. His great size, his remarkable activity and his big tusks made him dangerous, but if his love of fight and his pluck and endurance were in keeping with these he would be terribly dangerous. If the massive creatures were as menacing as they look the Eskimos could not hunt them as successfully as they do. Afloat in their kyacks and armed only with harpoon and spear, the natives of the north pursue the big game. They are always in danger of losing their life and hot infrequently terror shakes the courage out of them, but the Eskimo usually succeeds in paddling up to the walrus, hurling his harpoon into the thick hide and in holding on to the wounded, maddened beast until exhaustion or a cleverly thrown spear ends the struggle. When one Eskimo attached to the Peary expedition known as Mat, and famous as a hunter, met the Diana at the entrance of Foulke Fjord, he had captured and brought to hand no fewer than 15 walrus ,all taken within a fortnight with the aid of his native allies.

A week later the Windward hunted over the same ground and her crew was able to capture a dozen walrus while they were swimming about in the water and in broad daylight. Altogether during the summer of 1899 nearly 100 walruses were captured by the Peary expedition between Cape York and Littleton Island. Last summer the work of the Erik and the Diana was even more sanguinary. When we met Peary at Etah on Aug. 4, among his first words were:

"I am out of the woods so far as walrus are concerned. I have 125 catched at Cape Sabine."

Before we left him, three weeks later, we had added 65 or 70, bringing up the available dog foods for the campaign of 1901-2 almost to 100 tons.

The great sport of the Arctic is bear-hunting. The big white animal, the king of the frozen lands, roams unchallenged along the icy shores of two hemispheres. He is truly monarch of all he surveys, and there is none to challenge him save man.

There are rules for hunting the polar bear, but sometimes it is hunted with a steamer, and that was my first experience in Melville. It seems strange to talk of hunting bears wth steam.

The ship's company was scattered and each man not on duty was lazily enjoying that mild July afternoon when the cry of "nanook" metamohphosed the drowsy after-dinner individuals into eager and alert sportsmen. Far off in the distance could be seen the dark spots on the floe.

"There are three of them," said young Capt. Harry, "and you can get them all if you are careful and do not lose your head."

Slowly the Falcon ranged along the floe until the shaggy trio could be seen plainly. One was a huge fellow and the others were of average size. They seemed to be very intent on complimenting each other. We were able to get within easy pistol shot without disturbing them.

Ten rifles were pointed at the three and they were fired almost simultaneously. One of the bears limped a few yards and then stopped. The others had been hit, but they were able to reach the water and swim rapidly away. Evidently they had been hit but not crippled.

Fog was fast coming down, but the crew of the Falcon was loth to give up the prize. In some mysterious way the coxswain was able to feel his way along in pursuit. Half an hour later the two were shot in the water and their carcasses pulled up aboard. Then we went back and captured the third.

THIS vivid narrative of strangely exciting and picturesque sport in the Arctic regions, by Mr. Bridgman, is of peculiar interest at this time because of the homecoming of Peary, who has devoted 11 years in polar explorations.

Herbert L. Bridgman has been the secretary of the Peary Arctic Club since it was formed and has long been a warm personal friend of Peary, whom he accompanied north on the Falcon in 1894. He made the journey to the frozen north, and in 1899 he commanded the party sent forth in the Diana by the Peary Arctic Club to find the explorer.

It was during this cruise that most of the incidents so graphically described here took place.

Prof. William Libbey of Princeton University was a member of this expedition, and he is undoubtedly the "professor" who appears in the narrative.

Mr. Bridgman commanded the Eric, the largest vessel ever sent north for scientific work, which also went forth to find Peary. She sailed from Cape Breton in July, 1901.

It was Mr. Bridgman who, in response to a telegram from Peary, went north some weeks ago to meet the returning expedition and who was the first person to greet the explorer upon his arrival at Sydney, N. S.

GOVERNMENT HAS A GROWING REINDEER FARM IN ALASKA

AND USES ANIMALS IN CARRYING MAILS AND EXPRESS PACKAGES

A DAY or two ago the announcement was made by Rev. Sheldon Jackson, educational agent for Alaska, that the government intends to increase the number of the animals there to 15,000 surprised many people who heard it. It marks the successful culmination of a purely philanthropic and benevolent act on the part of this government.

It is only a matter of about ten years ago that Mr. Jackson first began his campaign for the introduction of the Siberian reindeer. He called attention to the fact that whole villages of Eskimos had died from starvation, principally because of their improvident slaughter of the native reindeer, which had previously existed in Alaska.

His efforts were as first pooh-poohed as impracticable. But Mr. Jackson kept hammering away on the same line until, in 1892 he was allowed to take sixteen reindeer into Alaska. In the following year these were followed by a herd of 175.

This experimental nucleus was increased by small yearly additions until 1898, when a herd numbering 537 head was shipped to Dawson City. This herd marked a new era in the experiment. Previously the work of caring for the reindeer in their new home was given over solely to the Eskimos. At first, lacking proper tuition, they did not get on well with the animals, so it was decided to import Lapp experts to care for and handle the deer in their new home.

This large herd, with the Lapp experts, their families, and dogs, arrived at New York in 1898. And for the time they remained at this port they proved a spectacle of absorbing interest to New Yorkers—the sleek, soft-eyed, docile rein[illegible] contentedly mouthing their quid[illegible] moss and the roly-poly Lapp[illegible]ith their round-faced wiv[illegible]at babies, proving a[illegible] to New Yorkers a[illegible]apers and the othe[illegible] proved disastrous. On their arrival in Alaska they, with their families, became ill, and in some cases the herds were entirely deserted by the Lapps, the deer suffering slightly from that cause. In one case the Lapps, when deserting the herd on account of illness, left their dogs also. When the herd was again taken in hand it was found to be short several head. The sleek and well-fed appearance of the Lapp dogs left no doubt as to the fate of the missing reindeer.

But against all these setbacks the deer have thrived and multiplied beyond the wildest hopes of the projectors of the scheme. There were procured for Alaska in all 997 reindeer. In 1900 there was a total of 3323 head of reindeer in Alaska. Of this number 644 head were in possession of the government, 1184 head belonging to the six mission stations in the district, and 1495 head to Eskimo apprentices. There had been bred in the eight years from the original 997 Siberian deer 3342 fawns. Aside from the satisfactory multiplying of the reindeer, it is said that the fawns born in Alaska excel in quality those born either in Siberia or Lapland, developing into larger and stronger animals than the Siberian deer from which they spring.

At the present day the herd has increased to 5000 head, but the Rev. Mr. Jackson says the demand for the deer as beasts of burden alone far exceeds this supply. After the recovery of the Lapp experts the work of training the Eskimos in the care of the reindeer began. Numbers of the younger men were chosen as pupils, and great results have followed, the Eskimos in some cases exceling the Lapps in the handling and driving of the animals. The work of breaking the young deer was then taken up, and large numbers were trained to harness, and some of the stronger animals were loaned to the mail carriers.

Afterward, in March, 1900, the deer were officially ordered by the government to be used in carrying the mails between Eaton and Nome. The order came without warning to those in charge, so they could not elaborate a system of relay stations, and were compelled to make their first trips, a distance of 480 miles, over a roadless and trailless country, going and coming with the same deer. Notwithstanding this handicap, the reindeer demonstrated their usefulness, making the round trips in an average of twelve days, showing their superiority over dogs.

Since then, with the introduction of relays, the trip has consumed less time. The same winter a reindeer express was started between the mining camps of Nome and York, and while, as far as the use of the deer were concerned, the express was a success, it was discontinued after the second trip on account of lack of patronage.

But the fact remains that the deer have proved their usefulness. They are the arctic beast of burden. Spread, as they are, over a wide expanse of the Alaskan territory, they lessen the possibility of starvation to a minimum and form a means of transportation unexcelled for this frozen region. The reindeer stations proper and the other points at which the animals are herded are Point Barrow, Point Hope, Cape Prince of Wales, Teller reindeer station, Cape Douglas, Gambell (St. Lawrence), Golofnin Bay, Eaton reindeer station, and St. James' Mission.

AUTOMOBILES IN THE DESERT

SIR RUDOLPH SLATIN, on his way from Cairo to London recently, passed through Vienna, and was there interviewed on the prospects in the Soudan. What he said is commented on at length by the semi-official Austrian organ, particularly the part of the interview dealing with the introduction of motor cars, and Austrian manufacturers are urged to send agents to Cairo. Sir Rudolf said in part:

"Excepting for occasional trifling internal disturbances, which are in no sense directed against the government, the Soudan is in a perfectly peaceable condition, with nothing to hinder its agricultural and commercial development. The two most pressing necessities are an extension of the means of communication and a system of irrigation.

"Vast tracts of fertile country and mineral lands are now comparatively valueless because no facilities exist for bringing the products to a market. I believe that the introduction of automobiles would prove highly beneficial. Many parts of the country are already perfectly adapted to such traffic, and where it is necessary roads could be made wit[illegible] expense.

ALL BRITISH PACIFIC CABLE

THE all-British Pacific cable, which many people have regarded as a dream of imperialists, is within three months of completion. Beyond doubt, Canada and Australia will be able to exchange Christmas greetings over their own private wire.

James Kent, general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co.'s telegraph, made the statement that last month he met Mr. Reynolds, general manager of the Pacific cable board, in Victoria, and accompanied him to the Pacific cable station at Bampfield Creek, on the west shore of Vancouver Island, to which point the Canadian Pacific is constructing a telegraph line 109 miles long, so as to give an all-British land connection between the Pacific cable and the transcontinental line of the railway.

The cable has been completed and is now in operation between Australia and the Fiji Islands, a distance of 2500 miles. The balance of the cable left London in the early part of this month on the cable ship Colona, sailing via the Suez Canal, and it is expected the ship will reach Victoria about the end of August.

There she will coal and proceed immediately to lay the cable to Fanning, completing the last link in the all-British chain. INVENTOR OF POSTCARD DIES

DR. EMANUEL HERMANN, Chancellor of the Austrian Ministry of Commerce and the inventor of the postcard, died a few days ago at Vienna at the age of 63.

The first idea of the postcard was suggested by him in an article in the Neue Freie Presse in 1869. In October of that year the experiment was tried by Austria

An Indian issued a card bearing on the correspondence side his name and rank—"Frederick Brine, lieutenant colonel royal engineers," and on these cards he conducted so much of his own correspondence as could be conducted on a card, and induced his friends to do the same, of course, affixing to the cards stamps to defray the current rate of postage for an ordinary letter. Numbers of these card-letters passed through the mail, and, annoyed at the object lesson taught to it, the Indian postoffice directed Col. Brine to discontinue issuing them.

The colonel replied that if he and his friends chose to write their letters on pieces of cardboard, instead of sheets of paper, they would continue to do so, and that the postoffice could not compel the inclosing of a letter in an envelope! The legal advisers of the postoffice held he was right; and the Indian government had to admit that, as numbers of persons found it convenient to conduct their correspondence on cards—though by so doing they saved nothing in postage—still greater numbers [illegible]d use postal cards, which would pass [illegible]ugh the post at half the ordinary let[illegible]ate. And so the gallant colonel won his

THIS BLANKET, COLORED WITHOUT DYES, BUT BY PULLING TOGETHER THE BLACK AND WHITE WOOL, SHOWS WHAT A NAVAJO EXPERT CAN DO.

The Encroaching Desert is Making the Great Navajo Reservation Uninhabitable, and the Indians Threaten Revolt if They Are Made to Remain Upon It.

THE Navajo Indians, who number about 25,000 and have in New Mexico and Arizona the largest Indian reservation in the United States, are starving and threatening to go on the warpath and force the government to give them a better reservation.

The Navajo country is burning up. It gets drier and drier every year. Thousands of the Navajos are not in the reservation at all. They have gone into every point of the compass, driving their flocks to find water. If all the things heard from traders by a staff correspondent of the Sunday Post-Dispatch who recently went through the country are true, the gradual letting in of the desert upon the Navajo country is a story of a great meteorological change which gives a greater plausibility than has heretofore existed to the scientific theory that the cliff-dwellers and other ancients of the Southwest were driven from their homes by an unkind nature withdrawing its rains.

When a Navajo will say his country is too dry for him to live in it, anyone else would say it was afire. For the Navajo has always lived there. He has a tradition that his fathers came from the North; but he was there in Arizona and New Mexico when Coronado marched up from Mexico in 1540, and he was living in the same valleys and amid the same rocks which are his habitat today. He has not moved in three centuries and a half; that is certain. Possibly he has not moved in ten.

So it means something when the Navajo will say his country has become uninhabitable. It means that a great meteorological change has come over a considerable corner of the United States.

THE Navajo is at once the best and the least-known Indian in the United States. He is the one because the blankets he makes carry his name to every part of the continent, and the other because he is lost in the immensity of the great Southwest.

The Navajo reservation lies across the New Mexican and Arizona lines in the north of these territories. Arizona has the big end of it. It is the largest reservation, exceeding in its area some of the New England States; but it is safe to say that not one in every 100 acres in it are anything but desert sand and mountain rock, where the Navajo may not find wherewith to pasture even his undiscriminating goats.

The Navajos have always been the most powerful of the Indian nations in the Southwest. Though scarcely more numerous than the Apaches, they were more powerful for the reason that, where there are Jicarilla, Mescalero and some other sorts of Apaches, a Navajo is always just a Navajo whose tribal house is not even in its nomenclature divided against itself.

I started toward the Navajo country from Mancos, Colo. On my first evening in Mancos I saw two Indians ride into town from the south. They rode lean ponies with big heads. Their bridles were made of heavy silver bars. Their saddles were decorated with bright brass chair tacks. Their saddle-blankets were heavy woolens in bright colors. The men were aged respectively 35 and 25 years. They had long black hair caught around the head by a cloth circlet tied around from the forehead. They wore loose-fitting black blouses of store cloth, corduroy trousers and moccasins. Each of them wore also a string of red coral beads, with a piece of turquoise at the bottom, and carried back of the saddle a handsome blanket in colors.

The Mancos man at my side simply said:

"Navajos come to see Nolan."

A trader from Ute Mountain walked up and engaged the Indians in conversation. I joined them to get a good look at the Indians. They looked wonderfully alike. They had big, angular faces and straight, flat cheeks. They had fine white teeth, alert eyes and long noses. They had good shoulders and fine heads, but their figures looked a little weak in the lower back, and their legs were not the legs of a well-built St. Louisan of 25 and 35 years. It occurred to me that generations in the saddle are not good for the legs of a man or race of men. They were not short, nor lac straightness. They were just lackin muscular girth and ruggedness.

I judged that these were representat of the best of the Navajos, and, after our conversation with them, asked the trader from Ute mountain if this was not true.

"Yes, those are fine Indians. There are a great many of that sort among the Navajos. They are the finest Indians we have in the Southwest. They have pride; they want to be self-supporting. They are intelligent; they know their rights, and they are not fanatical about their wrongs. They are shrewd in trade; the blankets they make represent a great deal of work, and the Navajos ask a good price for them. They get it. There are hundreds of them who own great flocks of sheep; others have big herds of horses, and still others have a great many goats. Their wealth almost entirely consists in such things. They have little need for real money. Their trading is almost entirely done without it. The Navajos deserve a great deal of credit. They are a fine race of people. They have made wonderful strides ever since they were taken in hand. They are unfortunate, though, in their reservation. It is not a fit place for as big and as fine a tribe. It gets drier and drier every year. This year is drier than last year, and last year was drier than the year before. There are great areas where I saw cattle on the range not many years ago. There is no grazing for cattle today. I do not know the reason. The rains have simply failed to fall, and the result has been terrible. There is one big district in there where a good rain—a rain that will make grazing for stock—has not fallen in three years. If white people lived in the country they would have fled from it before this. But a Navajo is the greatest dry-country fellow we have, and, in addition, he is assigned to a reservation, and where else is he privileged to go? The Navajo country may have its rains and pick up again, but I do not believe it will. There may be some temporary improvement, but the desert is overcoming the country as surely as ever a desert grew."

Journeying south toward the Navajo country, we camped one night in an unoccupied house along the trail. While we were eating our supper a giant frame appeared in the doorway. Our driver turned and said:

"Navajo."

The visitor of noiseless approach was some 30 years of age and more than 6 feet tall. He had a big, massive face, and the never-missing circlet around his head. We had picked up a smattering of Mexican and Navajo, and we hurled it all at him in an invitation to come in and eat. His smile thereat was huge and honest, and he sat him down and ate not only without let or hindrance, but with a nicety in table manners that surprised us. After supper he smoked. We called him Joe. We asked him who he was and whither he was d, and he raised a long arm and swung nd from the south to the north.

English:

was plain enough

a herder. He was taking his sheep from the waterless desert on the south to the mountains on the north.

"How many sheep?"

"No sabe."

"Five hundred?"

An affirmative nod and the same face.

"One thousand?"

The same nod and the same face.

"Four billion?"

The same affirmative nod of the head and the face with no ray of understanding breaking upon it.

Yes, that was it. Joe had sheep. He had no idea how many. He just measured them by the space they covered when they huddled together; he never counted. Five hundred sheep and four billion sheep all looked alike to Joe when expressed in those terms.

We saw Navajos and Navajos as we nearer approached their country. Then we saw Vicente.

We had lost the way, and, finally, saw far off on the desert two Indians driving a bunch of ponies. I galloped off to intercept them. Getting close, I was struck by the appearance of one of the men. He was some 35 years old, and he had the head and shoulders and the figure of Mars. He had a black mustache, the first Navajo mustache I had seen. He wore tight-fitting corduroy trousers, a loose black shirt and moccasins. He was red as the glow of the sumach dyed in the frosts of the fall. He was a beautiful fellow, and the grace of him as he reined in his pony was not goodlier to see than the goodness of him as it shone in his face and his splendid eyes.

Vicente was a chief. Vicente had a house and a squaw and children. He had many ponies. He knew every hole and hill of the desert. He would go with us and show us the road until night, but then he must leave us and gallop back to his house, for a Navajo will not travel at night.

Vicente told me all these things. He told the most of it with signs, with many grotesque gesticulations and some queer talk with his hands and fingers. Some of it he told in English and Mexican, such as "me hogan," (house); "me cabayo," (pony), etc.

I saw no more of Vicente after he left us at dusk; but I heard much of him. A trader named Howard told me Vicente was a sort of chief, really the nephew of a chief, and that he was the leader of all the Navajos in the country along the Arroyo de Vaca. He was the most intelligent of them, and had the reputation of being honest and fair. At Gallup, N. M., I saw S. I. Cotton, one of the principal traders south of io line. He asked me con- through the country when I think of him, because we had a laughable experience with him not long ago. You see he is the man Moses up in his country. He can lead the red children out of the desert, and he is the only Indian up there who can do it, too. I wanted several hundred of them on a railroad contract. So I went for Vicente. He rode down here, and I told him that if he would go down on the railroad work for a month I would give him $100 when he came back. I knew if Vicente would go the rest of the Indians would regard the proposition favorably, for they have faith in his judgment.

"Vicente came down. He brought with him a string of Indians as long as a county line. We hired about 300 of them at $1.25 a day, and sent them down the road. In a few days Vicente sent word up to me to give his squaw $5. She came in and I gave her the $5. A few days later he drew a suit of clothes against his time check. Then he got a hat. At the end of the month he walked in here and asked for his $100. I explained to him that the price of the clothes and the hat and the $5 given his squaw would come out of it, and I would give him the balance.

"Vicente couldn't see it. I had promised him $100 when he got back. He was back. Where were the $100?

"Vicente is a good fellow. He is square. But, as truly as I live, I could not make him understand why he could not have the full $100. He went away dissatisfied, and in a few days he rode into the North again, homeward bound with his 300 men. But he had broken the ice—a chief working on the railroad, and the Navajos come to us readily now. They are good workers, and they like to make their money in this way. I send a big gang of them out of here every little while. Some of the bucks take their squaws with them to cook for them. They do not like the Chinese cooking of the average railroad camp in the Southwest."

As we penetrated into the Navajo country we saw more and more of these interesting people. Their facial resemblance to one another is striking. They all seemed to have somet ng to do, and all did the same thing. The ere herders. The women were blanke Between them they divided a li t their country was so dry to see a green field r one and We of it was such that none of the desert tracts were inhabitable.

The Navajo house is what a St. Louisan would be inclined to call a brush pile. It is nothing more than a pile of little pinion trees, with a sheltered hollow beneath. This is one of many sorts of Southwest Indian houses grouped under the general name of hogan.

The Navajo herders have many more sheep than horses and goats. The whole number of sheep on and immediately around the reservation must be very great, though we were told repeatedly that many thousands had been lost by the continued failure of rain. The biggest flocks are in the mountains, where there is water when all the flat is a desert.

The Navajo blanket industry is the support of the Navajo nation. It is for this they have the great herds of sheep. The women do all the weaving. They begin it in youth, and do it into great age, and some of them are so expert that a blanket from their looms sells for $50 in the Indian country. The loom is a rude structure, and the process of weaving is slow. But it is a case where the mills, though they grind slowly, grind exceedingly fine; for a well-made Navajo blanket is an exquisite thing which none are so rich as to exclude from their homes. The weavers work sitting on the ground. In a fine blanket they build not more than an inch of blanket a day. Often they work two months on a blanket, and sometimes a single blanket will be on the loom for three months. They use their own wool in the natural colors in some blankets; in others they use their own wool colored with dyes they get at the trading posts; in still others they use Germantown wool coming to them already dyed. The finest blankets we saw were in natural colors of white and gray and black. They were beautiful. There was nothing about them that was not wholly Navajo. They were thick and soft and large, and they came from the looms of the finest w vers on the reservation.

The Navajos are a cheerful people. They laugh and talk and appear quite content among themselves. The men and women are all a fine- wh the women peculiarly an Indian grandmother of 80 should not have any of the gentle beauty of the average Caucasian grandmother of that age is incomprehensible.

I heard a number of Navajos singing to themselves. They sing their own songs, which resemble a chant. They are content to pass an entire day without talking, though they are not so close-mouthed as some of the other southwest Indians. They are alert in manner to an astonishing extent. They see everything about them. The guides who ate with us watched us continuously, not with the stare of curiosity, but in a quiet, unannoying manner, suggestive of the gaze of a dog or a cow watching you just because you are something to watch. If one of us left the table to go over to the fire for another cup of coffee, the Navajo eating with us would always crane his neck to watch every motion of the man over at the fire. His eyes would follow the hand down for the pot, the pot up from the fire, the stream out to the cup, and the pot down to the fire again. Then he would watch the man walk back to the table, watch him sit down, watch him sugar his coffee, watch him stir it, and then watch him drink. Having seen him safely through this awful ordeal, the Navajo resumes his steadfast gaze at everybody in sight.

The Navajos do not go armed. The few white people who go among them go bristling with guns, but the Navajo pays not the least attention to them unless there is something unusual about the display. I did not see a Navajo with any sort of a weapon. I did not see a drunken one, though I was told there were numbers of them who would drink when they got into the towns off the reservation. The facts that liquor is not taken into the reservation, and that the reservation is remote from the railroads, save the Navajos from the firewater that has almost destroyed some others of the Indian nations.

A Navajo is as much at home in the Southwest as is the horned toad. He likes to blink in the scorching sun. He likes to keep out of the shade. He likes the warm waters that flow from the springs. He has never known anything else. He is satisfied. He does not know what delightful woods, what bright rivers and green grasses abound in some other corners of the United States, and not even a white man, who is much more given to sighing than an Indian, sigheth for t blessings of which he wots not nor

BY WILLIAM DINWIDDIE.

MANILA, Sept. 3.

"I AM done; did all I could do, in honor, as a leader for my country, and fought until we were defeated. From this time on I shall live quietly in private life.'

So says Don Emilio Aguinaldo y Famy, who fought for the independence of his people and lost.

By the gracious amnesty of the President, Aguinaldo is today a free man, resolved peacefully to pursue the life of an agriculturist in his homestead south of Manila, near Cavite Viejo, the seat of all past revolutionary movements. Here he plans to live, surrounded by his friends and more or less fearful of the north or of the stalwart friends of Gen. Luna, whom he so vilely drew into a death-trap on the threshold of his last capital at Cabanatuan.

The closing days of Aguinaldo's long military confinement were rather pathetic, for the little man with the great appealing eyes has eaten his heart out in the silent misery of a lost cause, until upon the day of his release—July 5—when he went out among his people as simple Aguinaldo, pinched of face, thin of body, and with the indelible mark of failure upon his brow.

We have seen in our own country a man blazoned as a hero one day and ridiculed into the mire the next; but in the Philippines was exhibited the profound reverence of a nation for a mere man—a reverence which caused toddling children and full-grown men alike to cross themselves at the mention of the adored word "Aguinaldo." He was to their fervently religious natures another Christ come to save.

Three years ago every street urchin hummed the stirring national anthem, "Viva la Aguinaldo," and fair maidens enthusiastically thrummed it on guitar and piano behind their shell and latticed windows. Today the song that stirred the nation's pulse is forgotten—or, perhaps, buried in the nation's heart; at least it may be safely said that "Aguinaldo" is no longer a name to conjure with, and that an indulgent smile, a sneer, or a look of hatred comes quickly to the faces of many who, in the past, gave him allegiance. Such is fame. "The king is dead! Long live the king!"

After Aguinaldo was captured in the desolate ruggedness of northern Luzon by a carefully planned and daringly executed trick of the military government, he was brought to Manila and ultimately given a house where, after taking the oath of allegiance, he was to be as free as any other citizen of the United States, and this in spite of the soldier guard which constantly lived in the house and barred the entrance.

When the statement was made to one correspondent he jocularly suggested that if this were true he would go up and take Aguinaldo out riding, but to this he received a peremptory refusal. This confinement may have been merely a military surveillance or a protection for Aguinaldo against his enemies, but in our own country we would be apt to call it plain imprisonment.

The house in which Aguinaldo was kept so many m[illegible]ths is a huge dilapidated affair, with [illegible] rooms upstairs and as many [illegible] massive stone wall some ten feet in height except at the front, where the wall is lower and capped by a four-foot picket fence. It is situated in a fashionable district of Manila, but its precise location is a little removed from the principal streets of travel and residence.

Aguinaldo was a free man in so far as receiving visitors was concerned. He gave audiences to his friends whenever he chose, and there was nothing to prevent his sending, through them, any number of private messages and letters. He often quietly refused to receive officials, and the privacy of his life was never broken in upon unless he wished to grant permission.

It was particularly difficult for newspaper men to secure an interview with Aguinaldo; not that he had any feeling against them as a class, but, as he candidly put it, "I have nothing to say at the present time which will do my country or myself any good, and speaking may harm both."

So, month after month, he lived a lonely, taciturn life, brightened for an hour, now and then, by some Filipino friend to whom he felt he could still safely talk. His position was more difficult among his alleged native friends than with the Americans, as many of the former who had been prominently identified with the insurrection, but who were now holding positions of trust under the American government, visited him from time to time in the hope of discovering his true intentions for the future if he should be released.

To visit Aguinaldo while in captivity it was necessary to explain to the sentry at the great iron gate that you desired to call upon this illustrious personage. The sentry passed you on to the sergeant of the guard at the front door, and while you waited for the corporal to find him, you were under the indifferent scrutiny of half a dozen khaki-uniformed soldiers, listlessly kicking their legs beneath a bench, holding bayoneted guns between their knes.

The sergeant smiles and produces a much-thumbed notebook and a stubby lead pencil, requesting that you write your name. Page after page of the little book shows the signatures of Filipinos, written in the careful copper-plate style of the educated native, with here and there the sprawling characters of an American.

The corporal disappears above with the new name, and a desultory conversation regarding the august prisoner ensues:

"No, he ain't so much," says one soldier. "He's a sour little cuss and sore on the whole bunch of Americans," offers another, while a third says: "Well, he's been righ[illegible] sick lately, and it's more'n likely because he ain't nobody now in the show."

"O, rats!" speaks up a fourth, "he ain't caring about independence. Ain't he got $400,000 salted away in Hong Kong? I tell you, what's sc[illegible] him [illegible] he's afeard s[illegible] of L[illegible] [illegible]n in the [illegible] do it when they git the chanct."

The general opinion among the soldiers is that he is not very "hot stuff," though he held himself aloof with such reserve and dignity that they really knew very little about him. One man exclained, "Why, the little son-of-a-gun puts on more lugs than the lieutenant, and does just as he durn pleases about answering when we knock on his door."

Word comes down that Aguinaldo has been taking his siesta, but will be glad to receive us in a few minutes. A wait of a quarter of an hour in the halls gives one an opportunity to make mental notes on this house of detention. The porte-cochere is lacking paint and indicates decay, the tiled steps are broken in spots and dirty, and dusty and neglected in the bare lower hallway; the hardwood floors, which doubtless glistened formerly under the daily polishing, were grimy and marked with the hob-nailed footprints of passing soldiers, while here and there a door of the many rooms built around the central hallway gaped open to glimpses of echoing hollowness.

Through the open back doors under the carriage shed could be seen the only object which suggested a relationship between Aguinaldo and Washington—a wonderfully and fearfully made coach, having all the hall-marks of great antiquity.

Word comes finally for us to pass upstairs to Aguinaldo's living quarters, and another wait ensues in a huge hall, devoid of all furniture except two cheap wicker settees. No hangings on the walls, no vases, no pictures, no ivory panels, no plants, no flowers—not a single ornament or decoration such as one expects to find in every well-kept house of the far East. Even the painted walls, with the frescoes and dadoes of Filipino artists, were faded out blues, badly blotched.

Aguinaldo, his wife, his son, his mother and his nephew were living in three rooms at the front of the house, for the lieutenant of the guard lived in one large room at the rear and used another as an office and general quarters.

The great double door of the front rooms opens softly, and a little man, not more than 5 feet 5 in height, steps quickly out, pauses at the door, carefully scrutinizes you with a calm, judicial air, and quietly says in Spanish, "It's a pleasure to greet you. Will you enter?" He suits the action to the word by stepping to one side of the open door and waving his hand toward the inner room.

Whatever Aguinaldo's mental attainments may be, you are immediately impressed with the great dignity of the man, which never deserts him for a moment during the entire interview, and it is said by both his friends and his enemies that from the time he was a boy, and all through the insurrection, he possessed exactly this same equanimity and calmness of demeanor.

He talks slowly and distinctly, with eyes directly upon you, watching your face as if he would read your inmost thoughts. His face would be called motionless were it not for the trick of talking with his eyes, which brighten perceptibly under mental emotion, or fade into expressionless orbs when the subject bores him.

His gestures are few and far between, confined mainly to the simple raising and dropping of the hands. This characteristic is so totally at variance with the wild vehemence of motion in the average Spaniard and Filipino mestizo that it seems surprising that such intimate association as he has had with the upper types should have influenced him so little.

The more one studies Aguinaldo's face the greater is the impression of general strength. His forehead is high and straight, a peculiarity accentuated by brushing his hair pompadour—which style of hair-dressing, by the way, was affected several years ago by eight out of every ten Filipinos, and today is in such disrepute as to be seldom seen.

The slanting eyebrows suggest the Chinese mestizo, but aside from this the general features are strongly native or pure Tagalog. The nose is rather straight, but broad at the nostrils. The ears are regular and well shaped, with well-developed lobes. The mouth is full in lips, but too short for the heavy square jaw. The chin and jaw are strong, far stronger than those of the average representative of his race, and the teeth are always closely set together, as is the habit of determined men.

Aguinaldo has a truly aristocratic hand and foot; long, delicate, tapering fingers, with narrow, high-curved finger-nails, and aside from the cigarette stains between his first and second fingers they are kept in immaculate order. He wears a No. 5 shoe, though the loose chinelas or slips commonly worn make his foot look larger; his instep arches to an unusual height, and his gait upon these small feet is as graceful as a young girl's.

The photograph of Aguinaldo and Lieut. Johnson, his last keeper, taken together, gives opportunity for comparison of two races, for both have a general similarity of head. The American is 5 feet 9 inches tall, with unusually regular features.

The man who has brought death and sorrow into many an American home and cost our country millions will not talk today of the past or the future, for, as he says, "I may injure my friends, hurt myself and offend your government." What his real plans are for the future even those near him deny that they know. He has received two different offers to lecture in America, but though the inducements are said to be in the shape of a guarantee of $200,000 gold per year, he has so far declined. He smilingly assured the last lecture agent that, while he would not lecture, he would esteem it a great favor to visit him in his home in America, and thus have an opportunity to see the American's great country.

He would, as a courtesy, permit photographs of himself to be made, but not of his wife and family, even though the argument was advanced that American women would be interested in his domestic life.

Only the trivialities of life would he discuss; the mineral water he drank, the difficulty of keeping one's health with so little activity, the slow progress in learning our difficult language, English, and so on.

That the government had given him a cheap and motley assortment of rattan furniture, and that there were hardly the ordinary comforts of life around him he would not criticize beyond a single fleeting smile and quick deprecatory movement of the hand. He had been allowed $4 gold a day for the running expenses of his entire family, and whether he has other income or not does not seem to be actually known; at least he has never disclosed the fact or had a single cent beyond his allowance since becoming a prisoner.

Promptly his eyes brightened with interest when the writer told him of visiting the political prisoners at Guam and of Mabini's health, Ricarte's learning English and Rio del Pilar's sullenness, but beyond the single question, "Will they be released?" he had nothing to offer.

When the writer went further and related how he had traveled outside the American lines for three weeks, under the protection of letters from prominent Filipinos, in search of him after his wild flight to the mountains, his eyes fairly glistened, but not an expression came from him beyond "Did you have any trouble with my people?"

When the writer spoke of having a copy of his "True Relation of the Philippine Insurrection," signed and sealed by himself, which was published in Tarlac in September, 1899, he broke forth impetuously, "Was in published in America? Did the Americans read what I said? I told the truth there, and I have much more I could tell. Can you lend it to me till I can make a copy, for I have not a single one left?"—and then, as if realizing he had let himself escape for the moment, he became again a silent, lonesome, listening man.

His friends say he is a man of great executive capacity; his enemies intimate that Mabini and Paterno, his two ministers of the past, were his brains; but all grant that he is a man of great dignity, slow speech and far-reaching foresight. No one could meet him today without deciding that he is a gentleman with the face of suffering—the brand of ignominious defeat.

AN EXCLUSIVE COURT FOR BAD BOYS AND GIRLS IN ST. LOUIS

A MOVEMENT is on foot among St. Louisans interested in the welfare of children of this city to establish a juvenile court, similar to those now in operation in New York, Chicago and Denver

Sergt. James L. Dawson, who represented the city of St. Louis at the last annual convention of the National Conference of Charities and Correction, has made a study of the subject and has collected a large amount of data bearing thereon.

The primary idea of a juvenile court is to handle offenders between the ages of 3 and 16 years without formally charging them with crime.

"It is not necessary to convict juveniles of a crime to restrain them or correct them," says Mr. Dawson, quoting an authority on the subject.

"No policeman should touch them," he adds, and he has been a policeman for nearly a quarter of a cenutry.

The juvenile court plan is for a probation officer, his assistants or the representatives of this special court to handle the juvenile offenders, also to handle their parents and only to place the state in the role of a parent when the natural parents have been tried and found wanting.

And, further, the juvenile court plan provides that when a juvenile offender is to be placed in the care of the state, instead of his or her parents, that he or she shall be detained in an institution that is not branded with the word "reformatory" or "refuge."

The operations of these courts in the three cities mentioned have been eminently satisfactory. They have not only reduced the number of juvenile offenders, but they have saved money to the state and city in each instance.

In these courts not only are the juvenile offenders prosecuted, if so strong a term may be used, for the more serious offenses which now bring them into the criminal courts in St. Louis, but they are there arraigned for truancy from school or for "juvenile disorderly conduct."

An act of the State Legi[illegible]ture will be necessary to establish [illegible] court in St. Louis. An effectiv[illegible] [illegible]ry education law will also [illegible] make its results as [illegible] [illegible]ver and Chicago, wh[illegible] enforced in conju[illegible]

What the work of a juvenile court would be in St. Louis may be judged from the work of the New York, Denver and Chicago court reports. They show that the work of the three courts is largely similar.

All children between the ages of 8 and 16 that in St. Louis are brought into the police courts, the criminal courts or are committed to the House of Refuge, are in those cities brought into the juvenile court by the probation officers and his assistants.

There is an exception, of course, where a juvenile is charged with murder or other heinous offense.

These juveniles are not charged with any offense. They are merely brought before the judge and cautioned. In most cases they are paroled, and if they fail to show an improvement are committed to an industrial school.

If they show a willingness to reform they are released from the parole and allowed to remain with their parents or in other homes that the probation officers may have found for them.

The juveniles are divided into two classes—dependents and delinquents. The former are children without homes or with homes that are morally unworthy.

The delinquents are the law-breakers. The classes of their derelictions run from mere incorrigibility to burglary and forgery. They are all included in the general term of "disorderly conduct."

If a child is arrested for burglary, forgery, gambling, highway robbery or any kindred offense, he is charged with "juvenile disorderly conduct." Thus no disgrace is attached to his appearance in the court.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey of the Denver court, commenting upon the juvenile court system, says:

"The purpose is to recognise delinquent children not in any sense as criminals, but rather as misguided and misdirected, and needing not for their correction, the punishment dealt out to adults, but rather aid, assistance and encouragement.

"An act committed by a child within the ages referred to, which would technically in law be a crime, ca[illegible]not, when rightly considered, be even th[illegible] [illegible]uch a light. There are exc[illegible] but not to any app[illegible]

"The purpose [illegible] [illegible] officers is [illegible] environments of the child, and if they are such as to cause the future citizen to be not only his worst enemy, but a menace to the public at large as well, the court acting rather as a wise and considerate parent, either removes him entirely from his surroundings that make for vice and evil, placing him in some institution, or at a private home, where his evil tendencies may be corrected; or, if it seems possible, through the agencies the court may bring to bear, the home life of the child may be improved without removing it from the care and custody of its parents, the court permits them to retain its custody and control until it is proven conclusively that they are either unable or unfit to care for and reform it."

A strong argument used in favor of these courts by students of the juvenile problem is the saving in costs that it effects for the state. Judge Tuthill of the Chicago Juvenile Court says:

"Crime costs more in the United States every year than the value of the whole wheat crop and the cotton crop.

"In Chicago crime costs per capita, $7 per year, and in the state of Illinois, as a whole, probably $3 for each man, woman and child.

"There is hardly any item of public expenditure that is not directly or indirectly enlarged by reason of the existence of crime or that would not be diminished if crime could be exterminated."

The Earl of Shaftesbury, in a report to Parliament, stated that most persons begin careers of crime between the ages of 8 and 16.

If the juvenile court can prevent their starting in courses of crime no expenditure will be too great. No matter what an efficient administration of this law costs it is wise economy—a good investment.

Figures from the three cities concerned show that this view is not merely theoretical, but that it has resulted in a marked saving in criminal costs.

An important feature of the work of these courts is in truancy cases. Operating in Chicago and Denver in conjunction with the compulsory education law, the juvenile court judge sits regularly in judgment on children who are truant from school and on parents who permit this truancy.

Regular weekly reports are made to the court by the school. In Chicago a staff of probation officers is charged with investigating and watching each of the cases. In extreme cases, children are taken from the care of parents who fail to send them to school.

In Denver a judge of the county court is the judge of the juvenile court. In Chicago one of the circuit judges is assigned to the work.

St. Louis has one probation officer and a few assistants at present. They were appointed about two years ago under a special statute passed for the purpose. They might work in conjunction with a juvenile court if one is established in St. Louis

INTO the realm of practical education a new "study" is to be introduced. "Store practice" is what it will probably be called, though so little are its details worked out that even this title cannot be said to have been definitely adopted. It is New York city that has brought this fresh idea into being, and it is in the new Girls' Technical High school, that starts this fall and will be in full operation by midwinter, that "store practice" will be established.

Principal McAndrew made a careful study this summer of the avenues of work open for the average New York girl who must wholly or partially support herself after she gets to be 16 or 17. He looked into not only the possibilities, into the fields that might be developed, but he studied the work that girls turn to naturally today.

"We have our own training school right here in the building for our sales girls," said department store manager after manager. "Would we give the preference to girls already taught how to sell, how to figure and write in a business way, how to handle customers? Indeed we would, [illegible]ery time. We have never had th[illegible] oppor[illegible] [illegible]t such girls. [illegible] would take [illegible]hem qu[illegible]ke[illegible] [illegible]ed of all others. [illegible] kind of girls we want. Don't you see it would save all the time and trouble we now to have spend in teaching them ourselves?"

"They say that the salesmen and saleswomen are born, not made," said another department store chief. "I only know that we have to make ours. We would take all of the specially trained girls you could give us, at a moment's notice, and thank you for them."

At that moment the "store practice" course, the "school for saleswomen," was definitely created in Mr. McAndrew's mind.

A department store in miniature is to be the chief feature and the really valuable part of this saleswomen's course. This will be fitted up as completely as will the domestic science laboratory, the dressmakers' department, the commercial rooms (for clerical work) of the school.

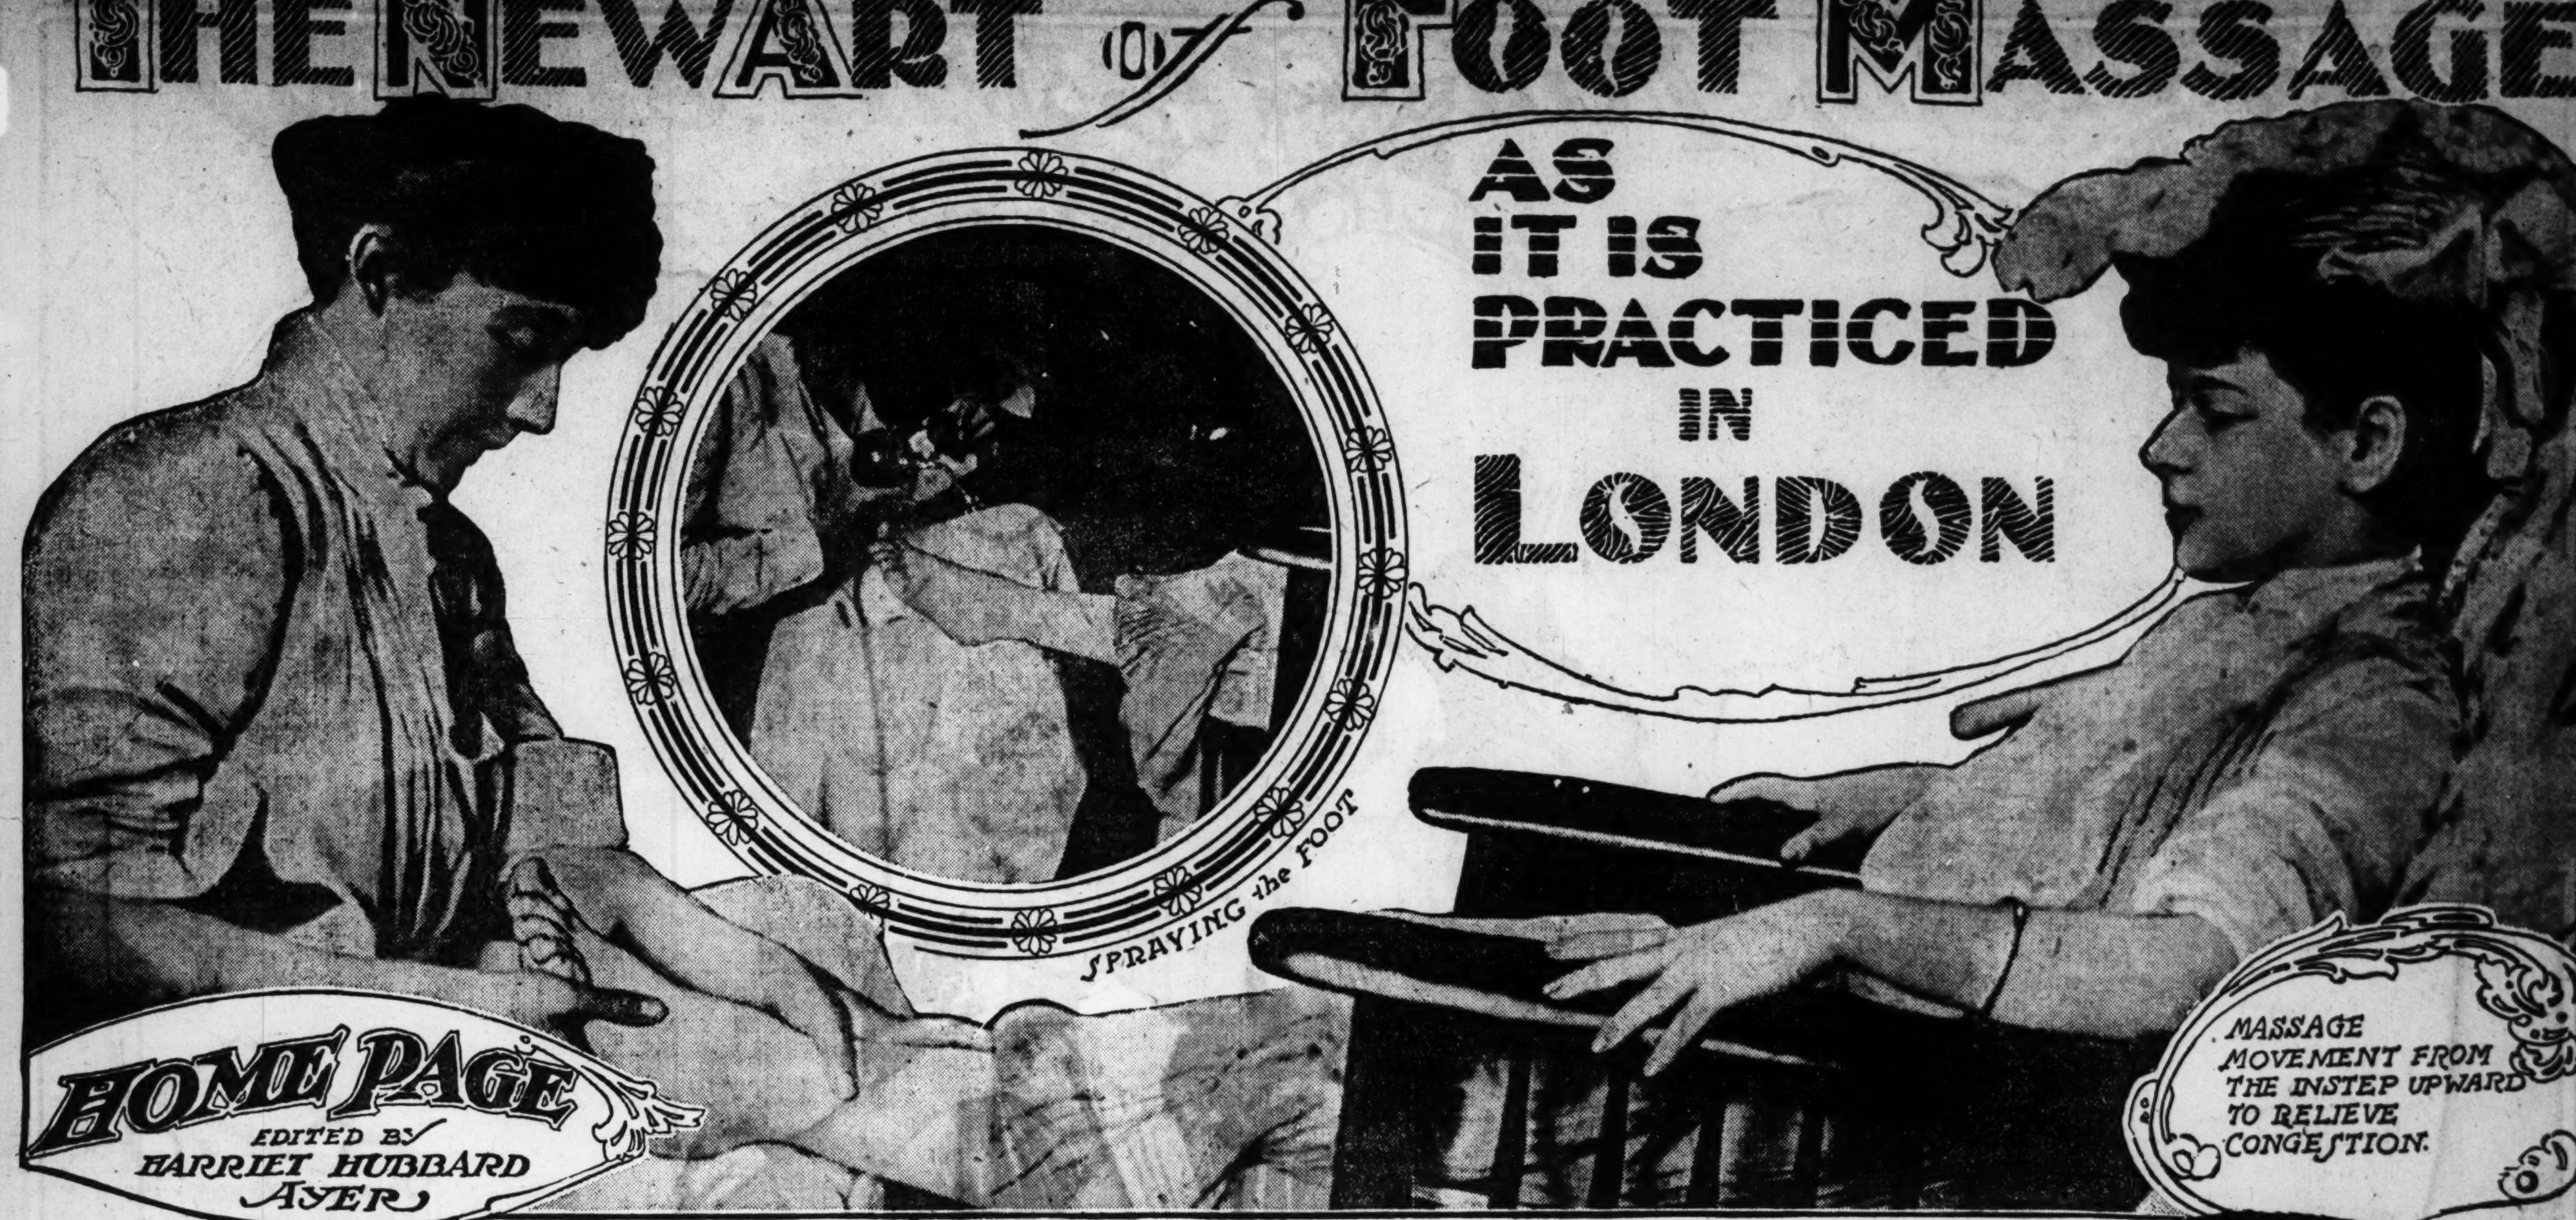
Here girls will be taught, first of all, the manners and the deportment that go to make up a successful saleswoman, which modern department store managers say is half the battle. Then they will be instructed expertly in weights and measures, in the [illegible]rt of doing up bundles; they will be [illegible] [illegible]ere girls will be taught, first of all, [illegible]ts, qualities, prices, handling. Besides [illegible]s, much attention will be given to penmanship that is plain and figuring that is accurate.

"You would be surprised to see how much trouble we have in just that way," said one of the department store chiefs to Mr. McAndrew in the course of his investigations. "You would hardly believe it, but our girls will carelessly make mistakes like this: They will sell shoes and write down corsets on their checks. All this makes us endless untangling and wastes much time."

Girls are to enter this course after their graduation from the grammar school, averaging 14 years of age. The first year of the "Trades School" course will be general and its duties obligatory. All the girls will take the same course, this comprising English, French, German or Spanish; home and social science (to include cooking, the managing of homes, sewing), a little primary chemistry, elementary nursing and some of the important principles of sanitation, penmanship and stenography, commercial arithmetic, physiology and physical culture, music, designing and drawing.

In the second the rourses will divide, with only the languages and English being carried on in all, together with a little history and "civics."

THE NEW ART OF FOOT MASSAGE AS IT IS PRACTICED IN LONDON



SPRAYING the FOOT

MASSAGE MOVEMENT FROM THE INSTEP UPWARD TO RELIEVE CONGESTION.

HARRIET HUBBARD

Woman in London, Though Not a Philanthropist, Is Beloved by Those Who Walk the City's Pavement.

By HARRIET HUBBARD AYER.

THERE'S a woman in London who probably receives as many blessings from a grateful public each day as any other philanthropist.

She does not found libraries nor endow beds in hospitals.

She just presides over a cool, dark, spacious room in fashionable Bond street and gives foot massage to the afflicted London pedestrian.

Of all the pavements for inciting pedal mutiny—comprehending, I might truthfully say, the separate insubordination of each toe—and an aggregation of pain and misery quite beyond human endurance—commend me to ye ancient city of London.

At a hotel last summer I was one of a wretched party of footsore Americans hobbling about and trying ineffectually to look pleasant and at ease.

Finally, however, my sufferings overcame me and I said to a woman near me.

"What is it in these London avements that works such havoc with one's feet? For the first time in my life I am carrying about a pair of positively recognizable pedal extremities. I intend to go tomorrow to an American shoe shop in Regent street and get shoes four sizes larger than I ever wore before—if they have anything that big—and see if I can walk with comfort."

My friend seemed to regard my idea as a brilliant inspiration. "I will go with you," she said, "for I am almost insane with footache, and get fitted to shoes on the same plan."

"We shall create a sensation as we stroll up New Bond street in shoes to suit the London pavements, but who cares if we can get over the agony we are now enduring."

The next day we were, as the children say, "as good as our word."

As spokesman I addressed a salesman at the American shoe shop in this fashion:

"We want shoes three or four sizes larger and wider than we now have on, in case you have any large enough to meet such requirements.

"Never mind what you think about it, we are half beside ourselves from aching feet, and we are going to be comfortable if we are shod in number nines and size E."

The man was very sympathetic, but he said:

"You couldn't wear shoes the size you think you would be comfortable in.

"I suggest that you get shoes one size larger, one width broader, because your feet are much swollen, but what you really require is massage treatment for your feet."

I smiled rather superciliously. "Massage treatment for the feet in London! I should like to know where you can get such a luxury. I have not heard of a foot masseur since I left America except the regular Swedish operators, who only treat sprains and surgical cases."

"O, yes, there are two or three persons in London who give such treatment," was the quiet reply.

"There is one man who is quite famous for foot massage, and a woman who is his pupil and who will take the swelling from your feet and give you great relief, I'm sure. I'll give you her address."

So we bought our shoes and went directly to the foot massage operator's room.

It is simply impossible to describe the relief a massage treatment will give if properly administered to tired, pavement-exasperated feet.

Foot massage has been illustrated and described on this page, and its benefits commented upon, but I must frankly admit that when I wrote the article, published a year or more ago, extolling massage treatment for weary feet I had no proper idea of the torments a walking delegate in a foreign land has in store for her in this particular direction.

To all who are afflicted with burning, swollen, tired, aching feet, I certainly recommend heartily such a treatment as I received in London.

In the first place the massage operator I refer to gives all her treatments in a large room at the back of a building as far as possible from disturbing noise.

"I selected this room especially," she said to me, "because people with aching feet are terribly nervous.

"Often they have not slept for several nights before they come to me, and are almost hysterical.

"Now, I cannot treat sensitive feet when the patient is jumping about or uncomfortable, so I have everything prepared to invite quiet, even sleep, during the operation.

"First of all take off your hat and gloves and seat yourself in this big easy chair, so. No, I don't use an operating chair; I want my patient to relax completely. No one ever lets go the nerve tension when seated in an operating chair.

"There you are. Now just go to sleep if you feel like it while I attend to those poor feet. You want me to tell you about it—explain as I go along. Very well. So! You see, I take off both shoes and stockings at once.

"The feet are great sympathizers with each other.

"Most chiropodists attend to one foot—put on shoes and stocking—and then undress the other, which has been aching meanwhile with redoubled force.

"I like both feet to be relieved as soon as possible so that the patient may get the benefit of immediate freedom from pain.

"Now, I first spray each foot with a cooling lotion. Yes, it has alcohol, a little carbolic acid and rose water in it, a little camphor and a little arica, too. You have an educated nose, haven't you?

"Now I begin to massage the foot, very gently with the ends of the finders first, then with the palms. I make the movement from the toes to the heel and instep, using the tips of my fingers or the entire palm or surface of both hands with a gentle pressure.

"Over the thick, fleshy part of the foot underneath I increase the pressure.

"This movement I make, as you will see, always upward in the direction of the blood current. After this I make the stroking movement which is also known as the hypnotic pass. It usually puts the foot patient to sleep.

"Now I continue the massage, working from the ankle up the leg nearly to the knee.

"I stretch the tissues gently and roll the foot and leg between my hands, so.

"These are the same movements that we use in cases of flat foot, or very low instep, which is the forerunner of flat foot.

"I repeat these movements with the entire foot, grasping it firmly and putting it through the rolling and compressing movements. Ordinarily I do not speak one word during the entire operation, and I give the feet a 45-minutes' continuous treatment by the clock.

"Next I give the Swedish movements to each toe. I just take the toes one by one and twist them back and forth, up and down.

"Once more I spray the feet and after carefully drying them I dust a healing powder all over and put on stockings and shoes."

There should be a good income in properly, quietly and scientifically administered foot massage in America, where only ordinary suffering in this particular is endured.

There should be a fortune in store for the clever American woman who will go to England or France and let it be known to Americans that she gives such treatments as I refer to, or in any of the countries where foreigners are subject to most excruciating foot torment caused by the difference of pavements as well as through the fact that the massage tourist does an enormously increased amount of walking when abroad.

"LA REVE" BACK VIEW SHOWING LACING

"LA REVE" FRONT VIEW

TOO MUCH cannot be said in favor of lightweight, pliable corsets. In these enlightened days no women need be burdened by uncomfortable ill-fitting stays. Corset-making has become an art.

Nothing makes a thin woman more ungainly or a fleshy woman as clumsy and uncomfortable as to be encased in unyielding stiff stays.

Each season develops new ideas and models in corset-making, and the accompanying cuts are from the latest models, as regards materials, cut and general novelty.

The "La Reve" is designed for the average figure. It has medium long waist, habit hips with jaratelles at the front and over back hips; it is laced at either side of the front steels; the top of corset clasp is so constructed that may be worn open or closed; when open, admitting of greater fullness in the bust than is needed by some, and at the same time relieving the wearer of the pressure of the top of the steel, which ofttimes makes corset-wearing uncomfortable.

In the back of the corset, at both top and bottom, are lacings about three inches deep, which permit the drawing together under the shoulders and over the hips so that perfect conformity to the figure is desired. This model is made of the finest silk Batiste.

The "Inedit" is totally unlike any other corset, for it laces at the sides, with clasp front, a wide elastic band spanning the hips, which makes it a perfect fitting model over hips and abdomen. This model, for slender and medium figures, is unequaled.

The "Leotie" has no laces at either the fornt, sides or back, but instead are silk tapes, which draw the corset closely together in front, being held firmly in place by small metal snap clasps. This is so perfect fitting in the back that a gown of [illegible]e sheerest material may be worn over it without any of the lines of the corset showing.

BEAUTY SECRETS LAID BARE FOR THE BEAUTIFUL

Quinine as a Hair Tonic.

MADAME—Quinine enjoys a high repute as a basis for hair tonic. I give you a very excellent formula for a quinine hair wash.

Sulphate of quinine, 30 grains; acetic acid, 3 grains; resorcin, 120 grains; water 4 ounces; oil of eucalyptus, 2 drams; tincture of cantharides, 3 drams; alcohol, 12 ounces.

Mix, shake until dissolved and filter. Apply to the roots of the hair with massage every night.

Remedy for a Sore Lip.

K. R.—It depends entirely upon what the skin disease was, as to the proper treatment now for your lip.

I give you a formula for an ointment which is very good, and in any case will be helpful, but of course I cannot guarantee that it will cure.

Subnitrate of bismuth, 1 dram; powdered arrow[illegible]t, 1 dr[illegible]m; ointment of benzo[illegible] oxide [illegible] ounce.

App[illegible] twice a day.

Treatment for Brittle Nails.

MAN: WOULD'ST KNOW WHAT TO WEAR?

ATTEND these lines, Mr. Man, if you want to be dressed correctly this coming winter. Fashions have changed since you were a boy. Those who control styles have dictated much that is new for the winter of 1902-3.

To begin with there are now six epochs of the day. Of course, the average man does not concern himself with all six, but he could if he would. For each there is a different dress, with everything, to the smallest trifle, laid down in black and white. Beside there are ten different articles of dress to be attended to.

All that fashion now leaves to the individual selection is the underclothes. Fashionable haberdashers assert that there is ever a fashion in pajamas, but men of the "four hundred" as yet have not bothered about anything in particular along this line.

These are the ten items which concern men's up-to-date dress—coat, waistcoat, trousers, hat, shirt, collar, cravat, gloves, shoes and jewelry. At no time in the six epochs of the day is the combination of the ten the same.

There is but one item over which controversy rages—the shirt. Can it be made with cuffs detached or not? The more conservative say "No" emphatically. Those who are willing to concede a little say that detached cuffs are good form for business wear. The anti-detached element reply with, "The cuffs become soiled during the day, as is the shirt; both must be changed for afternoon or evening." The controversy is by no means ended.

Aother important notation is that jewelry is becoming less and less conspicuous. The rule now is that a man cannot indulge in any display. His jewelry must be for use. Only when it is useful may it become ornamental. Watch chains, charms, diamond studs—all are passe.

Correctly gart[illegible]en wear their watches without displa[illegible]haps a le[illegible]ter [illegible] black silk fob h[illegible]orning or business wea[illegible]of the watch has a co[illegible]itted [illegible] The worst form of all is a watch chain with evening dress.

"Watches are worn to tell the time of day, not for show," say those who dictate the fashions.

The first thing a man concerns himself with when he arises in the morning is his business dress for the day. In London this is a top hat and frock coat. Here that is bad form save for elderly men. This is the proper attire:

1. Sack coat or cutaway, and light covert overcoat, if necessary.
2. Waistcoat to match coat, or of duck, or long ones of flannel, white or striped.
3. Trousers to match sack coat, or striped ones with cutaway.
4. Derby with either sack coat or cutaway; Alpine allowed.
5. Colored shirt; soft bosom preferred.
6. Wing, poke or high band turndown collar.
7. Tan or gray gloves.
8. Ascot, four-in-hand or string tie of somber hue.
9. High or lowcut calfskin shoes; flat lasts, with sack coats, patent leather shoes with cutaway.
10. Plain gold studs and cuff links

For the rest of the day and night the man who follows fashion's dictates must keep changing. Some of the items in one do for the other, but never are all ten the same.

His next change is for the afternoon's exercise, golf, tennis, wheeling, riding or automobiling. Here his coat becomes a Norfolk jacket, with a belt. The waistcoat is fancy plaid, and the trousers becomes knickerbocker to match the coat, or long ones of flannel, white or striped. The hat is an Alpine or a golf cap, the shirt is fancy flannel or madras, and a stock may replace the collar.

Heavy tan or white chamois are the choice in gloves, and heavy russets are the proper shoes. There is no jewelry, except, perhaps, a scraf pin of sporting design, or a leather watchguard.

If he attends an afternoon wedding later, the 20th century man wears only a frock coat of black or dark gray, with double-breasted waist coat of the same material of white duck or brown holland is permissible.

Dark striped trousers and top hat finish the attire. The shirt must be stiff, white bosomed and the collar of the standing variety.

Only a wh[illegible] tie is in good form and [illegible] gray suede, the shoes patent leather with buttoned tops. Simple gold jewelry is the rule.

If the afternoon function is less formal—a tea, or call, or some little gathering among intimates—the frock coat may be supplanted by a cutaway with a similar waist coat. Hat, shirt and collar remain the same, but the gloves may be tan or light gray suede. The shoes are patent leather, and only gold cuff links and studs are allowed in the line of jewelry. A scarf pin is not tabooed, but many of the best dressed men now wear none at all.

For evening dress there are just two attires for men—informal and formal. The informal dress includes club or home dinners, card parties or any function where only men are present.

Formal dress include weddings, receptions, formal dinners, theater parties, dances and all other functions where the women present wear decollete gowns.

The dinner jacket is the informal coat. Most important of all, the waistcoat must be black and of the same material. Black silk or satin velvet, or even white duck, are extremely bad form, say those who ought to know.

And a white tie with a dinner jacket is just as bad as a high hat with a sack coat, or brown shoes with a swallow-tail.

Of course in both formal and informal evening dress the trousers match the coat. A Derby is permissible with a dinner jacket, but an Alpine is not.

Some well-dressed men are trying to introduce the crush hat with the dinner jacket, but their efforts are only mildly successful.

The shoes in good form are the same as those of the afternoon, though low cut ties may be substituted for the high-top patent leathers.

Man's crowning glory comes with formal evening dress. Though scoffers may insist that the swallow-tail is the dress of the servitor, nothing is more becoming to a well-built, carefully groomed man. For a century and a half the swallow-tail has held its own against all comers.

Here everything must be just right or the whole effect is spoiled. No matter how carefully the tailor has performed his task a black tie would ruin the best-fitting evening suit. A black waistcoat would be equally bad form.

Men in mourning are the only ones who may wear a black tie and black waistcoat, and then they must indicate their state by black studs and [illegible] links and a mourning band on the hat.
